Greatest Rescue in History of Sea Follows Sinking of Giant Liner

1,709 People Saved From Ship Collision; Four Die in Crash

Pride of Italian Fleet Goes Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Two great trans-Atlantic liners, laden with thousands of care-free passengers, collided with a rending crash in fog off Massachusetts Wednesday night. One — the Italian liner Andrea Doria — keeled over and plunged to its doom in the ocean depths at mid-morning today, 10 hours and 47 minutes after she had been struck.

But before the luxurious Andrea Doria vanished beneath the gentle swells of the relatively calm sea, 45 miles south of Nantucket Island, its 1,709 passengers and crew were snatched to safety by other ships in history's greatest rescue operation.

Four died later. An undetermined number were injured.

The disastrous smash occurred at 11:20 p.m. EDT Wednesday night some 200 miles northeast of New York when, for some inexplicable reason, the Andrea Doria and the Swedish liner Stockholm crossed paths.

62 Canadians Aboard

Passenger lists reported 50 Canadians aboard the Stockholm and 12 aboard the Andrea Doria. At least six were British Columbians. Names were still being added to the partial Doria list at noon today.

Two Toronto men, Alderman W. Frank Clifton and importer Eugene John Mayer were known to have been aboard the Andrea Doria.

The Andrea Doria carried modern radar equipment which should have enabled it to spot another ship miles away even in the densest fog.

At 11:22 p.m. came the electrifying radio message from the Stockholm:

"We have collided with another ship."

"Badly damaged. Full bow crushed. Our No. 1 hold filled with water. . . help if you can."

Then, ascertaining the identity of the other vessel, the Stockholm told the Andrea Doria:

"Lower your lifeboats. We can pick you up."

Back came this message:

"We too are beginning to list. Impossible to put boats over side. Please send lifeboats immediately."

Other ships in the vicinity, including the majestic French liner Ile de France, began picking up

Rescuer Rushed In Fog

Editor's Note: The Associated Press radioed Capt. Raoul de Beaudran, master of the Ile de France, for an account of the rescue operation after the collision of the liners Andrea Doria and the Stockholm. This is his story.

By CAPT. RAOUL DE BEAUDRAN

ABOARD SS. ILE DE FRANCE (Via Radio). (AP) — Received SOS from Andrea Doria at 11:30 p.m., as we were passing six miles south of Nantucket in a dense fog that had set in a half hour earlier. Could not see the bow from the bridge.

Immediately began trying to contact the ship for more details. Message simply said she needed assistance. We messaged we would be able to reach her in two hours.

We asked if she was sinking but received no answer. From this time on she was using her emergency apparatus. It was too far to hear anything direct, but listening to other ships, I knew she was sinking with 1,700 aboard. Despite fog, we rushed at 22 knots speed to the spot.

The Ss. Cape Ann and another ship had already arrived. One had two lifeboats and the other eight, which would not be enough. The Stockholm messaged that she was sending some, although badly damaged herself, and might need lifeboats herself.

I gave an intense mental prayer for a clearing of the fog. In truth the fog did start lifting and there was the Doria, quickly identifiable by her stern list.

Ten of our lifeboats were lowered in five minutes and headed for the ship, 500 yards away. The crew of the boats showed magnificent discipline and courage.

Orders were given from our ship "y loudspeaker."

We picked up about 760 persons, many half naked, some injured, some mourning their dead.

I am now rushing back to New York.

How shall I regain my schedule?—but what's that compared to 760 lives.

Cypriot Boy, Woman Slain In New Riots

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Two Greek Cypriots—a mother and a teenage youth—died today in the latest outbreaks of violence in Cyprus.

The woman was shot down in a Nicosia grocery's shop within hours of the lifting of the curfew in the area, which includes the capital's notorious "murder mile." The latest killing was the second in Nicosia in two days.

In a small village in western Cyprus, three masked men beat an 18-year-old youth to death with sticks. His mother also was attacked and was taken to hospital in a "serious condition."

TIMES SQUARE OF ATLANTIC, CRASH SCENE

NEW YORK (UP) — The collision between the Andrea Doria and Stockholm occurred in the area off Nantucket lightship which is known to sailors as the "Times Square of the Atlantic." A score of vessels ranging from luxury liners to small freighters answered the SOS's from the two disabled giants. The navy aircraft carrier Tarawa was alerted at Quonset Point, R.I., but was not needed in the rescue operations.

FLYING NEWSMAN'S STORY

I Saw a Great Ship Die Today

(Editor's Note: British United Press staff correspondent James Whelan was aboard a U.S. Navy plane which arrived off the Nantucket coast just as the liner Andrea Doria was sinking. His radioed dispatch follows.)

By JAMES WHELAN

NANTUCKET, Mass. (BUP) — I saw a great ship die today. The Italian liner Andrea Doria slipped quietly into the sea at 10:09 a.m. while our plane circled overhead.

Nearby, the line Stockholm, her bow gutted by the collision which destroyed the Doria, limped toward New York. We saw two destroyers and two Coast Guard cutters near the sinking vessel.

We were flying about 500 feet above the ship for about 30 minutes watching the sleek $29,000,000 craft gradually list sideways deeper and deeper in the water.

At the very end, the bow tilted sharply forward and the Andrea Doria sank out of sight, nose first.

At 10 a.m. (EDT) water lapped over the bow.

A minute later the rudder appeared completely out of the water. In another 60 seconds water seeped into the smoke-stack.

The three outdoor swimming pools, emptied earlier by the tilt of the ship, started taking water at that point.

By 10:40 a.m. the ship was lying completely on its side, water licking over the bow. Crewmen crowded the rails of nearby rescue ships to witness the end of the beautiful liner.

As the bow nosed down, a huge swell boiled up over the fantail. Then there was a circle of light green water.

As the Andrea Doria started under, lifeboats still in their davits tore loose from the ship—a grim reminder of what might have been had help not been so near when the collision occurred.

Debris gushed from the sinking wreckage. It looked like crates and lifebelts.

Great bubbles mixed with heavy oil slick as the ship went down, still tugged some lifeboats behind her.

Ten minutes later all we could see was debris and oil.

We took a fix and found the ship sank at 48 degrees and 39 minutes north latitude and 69 degrees 50 minutes west.

Sinking Ship Looked Like Broken Toy Boat

NEW YORK (UP) — James Geggis of the United Press, the first newsman to fly over the scene, reported that the Andrea Doria looked like a "broken toy boat on the calm sea in the glare of the rising sun." Geggis flew within 500 feet of the ship but saw no sign of life aboard.

The ocean lapped at the edge of the first observation deck.

"Lifeboats bobbed about the Andrea Doria and the Stockholm," Geggis reported. "They were filled with bright red life jackets. A helicopter hovered over the Stockholm, then dipped down to a space cleared on its deck to remove the injured. Survivors jammed the decks. They looked up at us but there was no waving."

Geggis said the bow of the Stockholm was "a jagged mass of steel and steel plates were peeled back like a sardine can, forming a hole extending from a foot above the water line to the bowsprit." The UP correspondent said he couldn't see the damage of the Andrea Doria because she was listing so badly, but the damage to the Stockholm indicated she had knifed into the Italian liner "like a can opener."

COLLEGE BOYS' SYSTEM 'TAKES' HAROLD'S CLUB

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A Harold's Club official said Wednesday the club has lost an estimated $96,000 over a period of weeks to a group of college boys with a 24-hour-a-day "system" for playing roulette.

Manager Guy Lent said he believes seven University of Nevada youths were involved, but doesn't know their names.

"And I doubt that anyone else in the club does," he added. Vagueness and anonymity always surround reports of big gambling winnings here because of the internal revenue service's interest.

Lent said he believes the youths started "casing the wheel"—recording the winning numbers—about June 1 and began actual play some time later.

U.S. NAVY EXPERTS ASK

Why Didn't Radar Prevent Collision?

WASHINGTON (UP)—U.S. navy experts were baffled today as to why radar did not prevent the collision of the luxury liner Andrea Doria and the passenger ship Stockholm.

They expressed doubt that any atmospheric condition could have blinded the electronic eyes of the two big vessels as they steamed through the fog-shrouded waters off Nantucket.

One expert said certain weather conditions could keep a radar "target" from being picked up at a distance of 15 miles or more. But he said any object the size of a passenger liner should show on a radar scope as the ships closed to less than 15 miles.

Sea return, or the action of the ocean waves, might again interfere with radar search at a distance of one-half mile or less, he added. But he said that if radar is working properly it should be able to probe the blackness of night and weather at distances greater than half a mile and less than 15.

It's a good thing scientific equipment fer rescuin' wrecks hez kept pace with scientific equipment fer avoidin' wrecks.

There's a lot more people nearly swimmin' th' Strait these days, but th' "mission completed" list still ain't crowded.

Laughren Halfway Across In Eighth Strait Assault

(By Radio-Telephone From Times Reporter Denny Boyd)

At 2 p.m. today Victoria's Ben Laughren was more than halfway across Juan de Fuca Strait and swimming strongly in his eighth attempt to swim from Victoria to Port Angeles.

Laughren's navigator, Stan Page, put Laughren, who is making excellent time, at a point two miles southeast of Race Rocks and 10 miles from his starting point at Ogden Point breakwater.

Page expected Laughren to pick up a flood tide later in the afternoon at the international boundary, with the swim, if successful, to take approximately 11 hours.

PERFECT CONDITIONS

Water was still calm and weather conditions were still perfect as big Ben neared Race Rocks.

Ben started at 5:38 this morning from the breakwater after a lengthy consultation with his swim team whether to make the attempt from Victoria or from Port Angeles.

His course took him east of Constance Bank, and by 10:30 he was clear of the bank and heading directly for the U.S. shore, being swept westward toward Race Rocks shortly after.

The water temperature of 45 degrees seemed not to bother Laughren, and he was alternating between a sidestroke and a crawl, stopping to feed on orange juice and dextrose once an hour.

CPR boat Princess Joan and MV Kalakala both veered

course away from the swimmer during the morning at the request of skipper Maurice Wilkinson of the accompanying launch Meota, and the Kalakala came to a stop nearby.

Later on, the minesweeper HMCS Comox, out on post-refit trials, came in close while the ratings on board gave a cheer for Ben. A U.S. Coast Guard helicopter also paid the swim team a visit.

Ben's wife was also aboard the Meota, while trainer Ove Witt was following the 280-pound swimmer in a rowboat.

This is the 53rd attempt on the strait, including the successful Port Angeles to Victoria swim by Bert Thomas one year ago this month.

CANADIAN SURVIVORS LISTED

Cowichan Family In Ship Collision

Among the B.C. passengers on Ss. Stockholm, that was seriously damaged in Wednesday night's collision with the Andrea Doria, were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Olson and their two sons, Fred and John, of Lake Cowichan.

They left their home about two weeks ago, and bought a new car which they were taking with them to Sweden for a three-month holiday.

Mr. Olson is retired, and his sons operate a Bute Inlet logging operation.

John de Mayer of Toronto, boarded at Cannes, France; Alexandrine Nassum, Josette Nassum and Nicolas Nassum, boarded at Naples; Frank W. Clifton, Toronto alderman, boarded at Naples.

Milan Babic, boarded at Naples, Ezio Colagrandi, boarded at Naples; Eugene and Frieda Gladstone, boarded at Gibraltar; Son Mary Callistris, boarded at Genoa; Harvey Holinger, boarded at Genoa; Adolf and Violet Grubenman, boarded at Genoa.

Greater Vancouver residents aboard the Stockholm en route to New York with 400 of the survivors include Harry Bombardier, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ruus and their children, Miss Laine Ruus, Hannes Ruus and Miss Anneli Ruus, of North Vancouver.

Early Steel Peace

NEW YORK (AP)—James J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, said Thursday he expected a settlement of the steel strike before this week-end.

MANCHESTER (Reuters) —England scored 307 for three wickets on the opening day of the fourth cricket test against Australia today.

B.C. Girl Drowned

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—Carol Stitt, 8, of Oliver, was drowned in Tugmuit Lake here Wednesday night, police said, within sight of 10 children and two adults who were unable to swim enough to save her.

Marilyn's Diary

Hello Folks!

There are times when a day in our lives is like several pages out of a Martin and Lewis script. Take Wednesday, for example.

This was one of those days when I didn't glare at the alarm clock when it hollered at me at 7:30. I felt like swimming today and I couldn't get moving fast enough.

By 7:45, I was sitting down to boiled eggs, toast and coffee. I purposely ignored Jack

Judges when he started chortling over again about the breakfast last week when he served me a medicine ball between two pieces of toast.

Breakfast over, we collected our gear while coach Gus fretted, as usual, about women never, never being on time.

We went to the boathouse, climbed into our coaching boat, and heckled Jack Todd as he led us out to open water.

Gus ordered me over the side but, to be contrary, I complained bitterly about having to jump into that water while they did nothing but sit in the boat and soak up sun.

All of a sudden, someone pushed me and I started my swim a couple of minutes earlier than I had planned.

I suspected, and I still do, that a certain Mr. Todd pushed me but just to be on the safe side, I managed to splash and thoroughly soak everyone in the boat before our three-hour swim was over.

At one time, Jack picked up a piece of kelp, waved it over his head and ordered me to swim faster, just like Simon Legree.

After we had returned to the hotel, Gus announced that only guests in formal dress would be allowed ring-side seats to watch the fight on his TV set. We knew it wasn't being televised but we played along with him.

Gus asked for formal dress so he got it.

Phyllis Griffiths came in a slinky evening gown which she wore backwards, giving her a plunging neckline, set off with rain boots. Dorothy Howarth wore a mink jacket and white gloves. Maria Brenk dressed up as a little girl and I dressed as a little boy with short pants and a red cap.

But Jack Judges won the kelpie doll. Jack came dressed in a negligee.

Car Sunk in Slough, 4 Drown in North B.C.

PORT EDWARD, B.C. (CP) —Four persons were drowned late Wednesday night when an automobile went off the road on the outskirts of this north coast cannery village and somersaulted into a slough.

A fifth person, Rufus White, 40, of Masset, B.C., was taken to hospital at Prince Rupert, 11 miles north of here, with minor injuries.

R.C.M.P. identified the lone woman killed in the crash as Joyce Williams, about 19, of Masset, B.C. Three men killed with her were unnamed until relatives could be notified.

Three youths came along shortly after the accident and attempted to rescue the trapped passengers but they were unable to get into the submerged, upside-down vehicle.

Police took an hour to get the vehicle out of the slough.

It was the third B.C. accident in the last fortnight in which persons were drowned when their cars ran off the road.

Selma Dixon, 21, of Prince Rupert was drowned July 15 when the car in which she was riding left the highway and plunged into the Skeena River near Prince Rupert.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wills of Tupperville, Ont., were drowned when their automobile plunged down an 80-foot cliff into the Coldstream River, 57 miles north of Revelstoke. The body of Mr. Wills has not yet been recovered.

haste toward the fog-wrapped Andrea Doria.

Down the dangerously leaning Italian vessel's sides on precipitous rope ladders and other devices her passengers and crew scrambled.

Lifeboat crews gathered them in, by the dozens, then by the hundreds. One man was plucked out of the water.

The epic scene went on through the early morning mists and haze until five hours later—all were aboard the hovering mercy ships.

Even the damaged Stockholm managed to pick up about 400.

Capt. Calami and a handful of his senior officers and crew members remained aboard their stricken queen of the Italian merchant fleet, calling on all their experience in a final effort to save her.

For a time it appeared there was some hope.

They managed to start pumps and halt the ever-growing angle of list, which had reached about 45 degrees.

But then the great vessel's deck began to appear certain.

FORCED TO GIVE UP

Under orders from his company not to remain if the situation became hopeless, the captain and his men at last had to give up.

They too climbed down the side for the last time into waiting lifeboats.

Terse messages from the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Evergreen told the story of the proud liner's last moments in mid-morning:

"Sinking. Just her fantail showing."

Then:

"SS. Andrea Doria sank in 225 feet of water at 10:09 a.m."

It was a tragic end, for the plucky pride of the Italian merchant fleet—a 29,000-ton, 656-foot floating palace put in service just three years ago at a cost of more than $29,000,000.

She was insured for $16,000,000.

HELICOPTER AIDS INJURED

The Andrea Doria was en route to New York from Genoa, Italy, while the smaller, 12,644-ton Stockholm, sailed Wednesday from New York for Europe.

The Stockholm, far less luxurious and catering to travellers desiring more modest accommodations, carried approximately 500 passengers and crew of 200. It is mostly a tourist class ship.

She suffered a fearful smashed bow, and one of her crew members lost his life. He was Alf Johansson, 30. He died after a helicopter had whisked him to Nantucket island from the Stockholm.

The Andrea Doria ranked 13th in gross tonnage among the world's passenger vessels.

Five of those injured were flown by helicopter to Nantucket from the Stockholm, including the fatally injured crew member.

Three of the injured also were crew members. The other was a seven-year-old Italian girl. All suffered fractures.

Two other injured persons were reported aboard the United Fruit freighter Cape Ann.

HEAD FOR NEW YORK

Most of the rescue vessels set sail immediately for New York with those rescued.

They were expected to begin arriving late today, led off by the Ile de France with 738 survivors, of whom 20 were reported injured.

The other included the Cape Ann, with 175, the military transport ship Pvt. William H. Thomas, with about 165, and a cutter with a number of others.

Capt. Raoul de Beaudan of the Ile de France, in a radio account of his vessel's mercy mission, said he ordered the liner to head for the scene at 22 knots despite the fog.

The fog, he said, was so heavy that he could not see the bow of his own ship from the bridge.

Of those his lifeboats picked up, he said, many were "half naked, some injured, some mourning their feared dead."

It was, he added, "horrible." Facts relating to those who lost their lives was clouded.

The U.S. coast guard in Boston said the Andrea Doria's captain reported three dead aboard his vessel. It was not clear whether they died before the rescue operation, or afterward.

In addition, a coast guard cutter reported near noon that it was trying to pick up a body floating in the water near the Stockholm.

It could not be established whether this was one of the Andrea Doria's victims, or indicated a fifth death.

GM Business Drops; Firm Said 'Too Big'

NEW YORK (AP)—A report by General Motors Corporation of a $644,000,000 decline in its business for the first half of 1956 was accompanied Wednesday by a statement by the American Institute of Management saying the company is just plain "too big."

The half-year report of the world's largest auto maker said over-all profits were down $157,000,000 compared to the first half of 1955.

The report said, however, that sales and production of GM cars outside the United States "exceeded last year's record levels."

The institute was established Canadian production for the second quarter was 78,372 cars and trucks against 74,142 a year earlier.

WELL MANAGED

The management institute, a non-profit organization, said after a three-month study that GM is an excellently managed, highly-efficient firm, but added: "It is too big for the good of American businessmen who must deal with it and too big for the good of the country." In 1948 to appraise the management of business firms.

Hemlock Prejudice Worries B.C. Loggers

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lumbermen are concerned about a widespread prejudice against hemlock which they regard as largely groundless and as a threat to British Columbia's forest industry.

"People simply prefer fir lumber," said a spokesman for the B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association. "It is true hemlock is not as good an all-round wood as fir... you have to be a little more careful in using it, but in many categories it is a match for fir.

"In coast logging we are now cutting at the north end of the Douglas fir region, and we're into the middle of the hemlock region. Hemlock made up 24.8 per cent of the cut in 1947; 29.1 per cent in 1955. Fir constituted 58.3 per cent of the cut in 1947 and 49 per cent last year.

"By 1959 or 1960 the industry will be cutting as much hemlock as fir on the coast."

Deal With Gun Firm Hit By Opposition

(From Times News Services)

The government has been charged with giving an improper handout in profits to a gun-making firm, but Defence Production Minister Howe denies it.

Opposition members Wednesday raised a storm over the issue, with Mr. Howe contending the government paid only a "reasonable" amount to Sorel Industries Ltd. for guns for its new destroyer escort ships at Sorel, Que.

Progressive Conservative and CCF members variously described the gun deal as "an unjustified handout," "highly improper" and unjustifiable" and "gravy" for the firm making the armaments during the Korean war.

Most of the sharpshoots centred around the fact that the government, to get the company into gun production after a lay-off between the Second World War and 1950, assumed $2,890,000 of its cost of plant maintenance in the five-year period. Mr. Howe said this was about half the firm's "dead loss" on plant upkeep, though opposition members called it a contribution to Sorel profits.

CCF Member Charges Subsidy

Fred S. Zaplitny (CCF, Dauphin) said the government had "directly subsidized" the company by installing about $6,000,000 worth of machinery in the plant to enable the 3.5-inch guns to be produced.

Mr. Howe replied that the government-installed machinery remains the property of the government and cannot be used by the company on non-government work.

Explaining the payment for plant maintenance, he said the Sorel plant is the only one in the country capable of making the naval guns, and is contained some $25,000,000 worth of machinery.

When the firm was approached to make the guns in 1950, it took the view it should be compensated for having kept the plant in shape despite the fact it had been told in 1945 there would be no more government orders.

The government had taken the stand that the company was entitled to compensation for some of its "dead loss" in the five years between wars.

The government payment covered about half the "loss" and was not profit, the minister said. Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary North) called the government's action "an example of being impractical and imprudent."

'Ridiculous', Says Alberta Tory

"It's ridiculous," he said. Mr. Harkness said the maintenance payment was "just a way of concealing" an extra profit for the company.

"It sounds like gravy," John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) said.

Discussing the fact that the U.S. had paid less for the guns than the Canadian government, Mr. Howe said the U.S. participation had greatly lowered the over-all cost of the project.

Mr. Zaplitny and Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglington) took Mr. Howe to task for saying early in the discussion that House committees would not serve a very useful purpose if they were to be used by opposition members to collect evidence for use against a minister.

"A most unfair statement and a most unparliamentary one," Mr. Zaplitny commented.

Mr. Howe reported later that of the $23,757,000 voted for his department in the last fiscal year he spent only $16,075,000. The biggest drop was in an allocation of $8,200,000 for capital assistance to defence projects, of which $2,084,000 was spent.

Mr. Fleming noted, however, that this year the department is asking parliament to vote $22,002,000.

Mr. Howe also said he would have no objection to bringing in a bill next session to knock $50,000,000 from the $150,000,000 allocated by a statute to a revolving fund for stockpiling defence materials.

20-Cent Boost For Fishermen Averts Strike

VANCOUVER (CP)—A settlement giving wage boosts to 3,000 workers in the British Columbia fishing industry has averted a crippling strike.

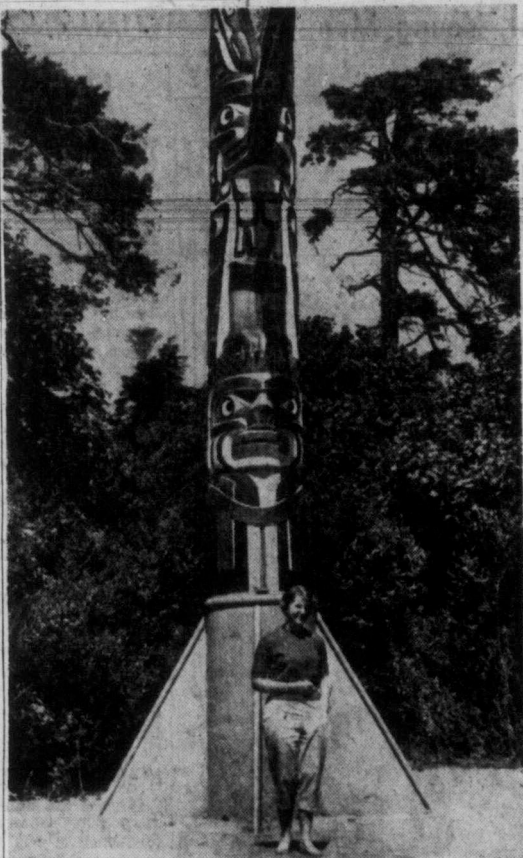

The agreement, signed Wednesday by United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union and the Fisheries Association, gives 3,000 canner workers, networkers, fresh fish and cold storage workers, and reduction workers a 20-cent hourly wage hike.

The boosts, to be paid over the two-year contract period, are retroactive to April 16 increasing the basic shoreworkers' rate of $1.32 by 17 cents this year and an additional three cents next year.

More than 600 salmon tendermen will get a $25 monthly increase this year and another $25 next year.

Compulsory checkoff of union dues, a key UFAWU demand, has also been agreed to by the companies.

Next year shoreworkers will get an added benefit in the form of a three-cent hourly increase through company contributions to a welfare fund to be jointly administered by union and management.

GREEK PAPER FLAYS DUKE'S CYPRUS TALK

ATHENS (AP)—A vehement attack on the Duke of Edinburgh was made by the pro-Greek government newspaper Ethnos in an editorial Wednesday.

Referring to an address made by the duke Tuesday to men of the Wiltshire Regiment about to leave for Cyprus, Ethnos said he had let loose an indirect attack on his motherland by blaming Greece for spreading anti-British propaganda through Athens radio.

Ethnos commented: "The prince consort has long ceased to be a Greek in our estimation and we are delighted to learn that he has severed every link with his past."

Cable Snaps; One Killed

GILFORD, N.H. (AP)—A sight-seer hurtled to his death and seven others were injured Wednesday when a steel cable on a mountain chair lift snapped.

The 3,200-foot cable was carrying about 20 tourists up Rowe Mountain in the scenic Belknap Mountain recreation area.

The one-inch cable broke about 200 feet from the mountain top. Killed was William Kirby, 35, of Salem, Mass., who plunged 30 feet head-first into a pile of rocks.

National Hospital Scheme Must Wait Until Spring

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal authorities have ruled out the possibility of a national hospital insurance scheme being launched before the spring of 1958.

There had been some earlier prospects that the projected $325,000,000 plan might go into operation next year. But the provinces have been slow in reacting to the federal offer and the key ones—Ontario and Quebec—have reached no final decisions.

The offer was made last January. The federal administration said it would pay half the cost of a national health insurance scheme starting with hospital care and diagnostic services.

The offer was contingent on a majority of provinces representing a majority of the Canadian population joining the scheme. So far, only British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan have accepted.

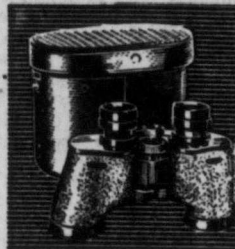

Federal officials said the scheme would work if any five provinces joined along with either Ontario or Quebec. They had some doubts as to whether Quebec would join but thought Ontario would.

The scheme has some bearing on federal budgetary planning. The initial federal costs, if all provinces joined, would be about $180,000,000 in the first year of operation.

The initial federal costs, if all provinces joined, would be about $180,000,000 in the first year of operation.

Atomic Isolation

THOUGH IT WILL PROBABLY be lost or blurred in the domestic debate of the November election, the decision now facing the United States must be rated one of the most important in its history. Should it commit its safety, and the safety of the free world, entirely to nuclear weapons? And if it does so can the free world's alliance long endure?

This question has been raised by Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who proposes to reduce the United States' armed forces by 800,000 men in the next four years. If that policy is carried out the United States will be able to fight the ultimate world war of nuclear destruction but no other. It will be unable to resist any acts of local aggression, except with the use of nuclear weapons, thus almost inevitably producing a world war.

Already, says the New York Times, "the United States is in a position where it could not block a major assault by Communist China or Formosa, Quemoy and Matsu without using atomic weapons." If the Radford plan is implemented the United States will have no significant ground forces for use overseas. It will be entirely dependent on its air force and its bombs.

Admiral Radford and his supporters argue that this eventually should not arise, that the threat of American air power will deter all aggressors, large and small.

The chiefs of the army and navy, however, and many leading statesmen reject this reasoning outright. They recall that the threat of "massive retaliation" did not deter the local aggressions of Korea and Indo-China and they regard the dependence on nuclear weapons as dangerous folly.

As The New York Times observes, local aggressions are more likely in the next decade than a world war and if they occur the United States should try to localize them, as in Korea and Indo-China, instead of spreading them with the use of unlimited force to the point of no return, perhaps to the point of worldwide ruin.

Even assuming that no aggression, large or small, erupts anywhere in the world, the political results of the Radford plan will be extremely grave and disruptive. For it must certainly involve the withdrawal of all or most of the United States' ground forces from Europe.

In a military sense—if all wars are to be fought from the air with nuclear weapons—that withdrawal may be of little importance. In a political sense it might well prove disastrous. It would convince most Europeans that the United States was retreating into a kind of atomic isolation and would return to Europe, if necessary, only to destroy it.

Whatever Admiral Radford may think privately, his policy is isolationism in a new guise. It would be so interpreted by the United States' allies, it would alienate most of them and could hardly fail to wreck the free world's solidarity.

It is no wonder the American army and navy chiefs are in revolt against Admiral Radford and that President Eisenhower, as commander-in-chief, confronts a new and deep schism in the three armed services.

Admiral Radford has attempted to cool these fires by saying that the Joint Chiefs of Staff have made no recommendations to the President and that he alone must make a final decision. Since all the issues thus raised are politically embarrassing they will be postponed until after the election. But during the next year Mr. Eisenhower or his successor must decide them, with consequences that no president, nor anyone else, can possibly foresee.

What Is Workable Alternative?

MR. L. S. ECKARDT, PRESENTING arguments to the Sloan Commission on behalf of the Truck Loggers' Association of B.C., says that licensing, including licensing by allocation of management licences, "is a stride in the direction of state socialism and regimentation."

This is the case he submits in opposition to forest management licences. It is, in essence, a protest against government control as that control is exercised under present forest administration. The submission invites the automatic question: Would any other method of government control which would assure sustained yield be any less "a stride in the direction of state socialism?"

The argument put forward by Mr. Eckardt—and he is not alone in making it—calls for a recapitulation of the origin of forest management licences.

When Chief Justice Sloan, sitting as a royal commissioner on forest industries 10 years ago, brought down his report, he placed over-riding emphasis on the need for enforcing a policy of sustained yield. In other words, he pointed to the inevitable decline of the industries if unregulated cut-out policies continued—and over-cutting in different districts was obvious at the time.

In order to regulate cut, the B.C. Forest Service evolved the forest management licence system which stipulated the harvest the holder of a licence could reap from Crown timber and required him, when he had timber of his own, to bring it under the agreement regulating annual cut.

By this means an increasing amount of timber was placed under control and a sustained yield policy was established.

That is a basic principle which must underlie any consideration of the forest management licence system. The system itself is obviously not perfect. It has faults and they have been very properly brought to light by different witnesses before the present commission.

But where forest management licences are criticized as a stride toward state socialism, it seems only proper that critics should present an alternative which assures sustained yield. Up to the establishment of forest management licences no broad policy to effect sustained yield was applied in the woods.

In the light of past experience it is difficult to see how forest crop-pings—as opposed to forest liquidation—could be enforced without government regulation.

One to Remember

THE CURRENT SERIOUS OUT-break of polio in Chicago emphasizes the need for wide and efficient administration of the Salk vaccine. Under an emergency plan it is hoped to immunize half a million children and pregnant women as quickly as possible. Fifty clinics are being set up and thousands of residents are seeking the life-saving treatment.

There is no doubt but that criticism of the handling of the vaccine in Chicago. There are bound to be delays and errors in a rush program so vast. But the salient point emerges that Salk vaccine is at least available for many. A relatively few months ago there was no such protection and many a child who now will be saved from crippling or death would have fallen a victim to the cruel disease.

Canada has been particularly fortunate, not only in the lighter incidence of polio but in the exemplary way in which the vaccine has been administered to children of school and pre-school age. The Government's health department has earned high praise in its handling of free distribution, in the purity of the product and the speed with which the work has been carried out.

Such efficiency often dulls public appreciation by removing the fear and emergency it set out to combat. People soon forget dangers when they have been competently overcome. But the Salk vaccine episode in Canada has been a splendid achievement. It is one the public should long remember.

441,682 of the Best

OF ALL THE FIGURES USED TO prove Canada's growth, prosperity and development in the last 18 months, none is more important than the 441,682 births recorded in this country during 1955.

Although offset by an increase in mortality totals over the preceding year, the fact that the annual number of new native Canadians nudged closer to the half million mark than ever before in history is welcome news.

This is a generation which will grow into the vital job of filling out

Canada, preserving its character and maintaining for the country its own distinctiveness.

To its numbers will be joined countless new Canadians of birth beyond this nation, drawn here by the richness of the land itself, the opportunities it offers and the type of society it has created. Their contributions, the individual patterns they weave into the nation's fabric will be welcomed, but the fabric, thereby enriched, will remain authentically Canadian as long as the birthrate demonstrates the healthy growth it has shown in recent years.

The Last Canoe

A CANOE—I have said this often before but it deserves repetition before we forget it altogether—was the first and most important Canadian invention. More than anything else, it made the nation possible in the first place, carrying Canadians from coast to coast. But so far as I can see from this vantage point, the canoe is dying. Only my neighbor, Mr. Horace Snifkin, seems to be keeping it alive and he won't last much longer.

It is only for sentimental and historical reasons, I suppose, that Mr. Snifkin maintains his Canadian canoe when an alien invention, the internal combustion engine, has taken its place. Every season he strips the varnish off his ancient craft, with an infinity of labor, re-varnishes, launches and then sits on shore and admires it.

Of course, there is no use paddling it. The canoe was never notable for its safety, but alone and helpless in a swarm of speedboats it is so dangerous that a sensible parliament no doubt will abolish it shortly and thus close the pioneer age of adventure.

I HASTEN TO ADD, however, that the speedboat owners, who have replaced the paddlers, are considerate of Mr. Snifkin. They realize that he is an old and feeble man, they hope to anticipate his early departure to the Indians' happy hunting grounds and they are willing to tolerate him for a few years yet.

Very kindly, therefore, they do not actually run Mr. Snifkin down if he sometimes ventures forth timidly at dusk in his crude and frail structure of cedar strips. They merely buzz around his canoe, with a shattering sound, a playful wash of foam and billows to remind him that this is the twentieth century and the age of progress.

THE speedboatmen can afford to wait. In a few years they will possess every lake in the country, a few canoes will survive as exhibits in the museums, school children will be taken to view them as they view the stone axes of the cave men for educational purposes, and perhaps the last canoe maker will be hired, in his old age, to build a final masterpiece for installation in the park.

In preparation for that day of ultimate progress I am arranging with Mr. Snifkin to will his canoe to the Provincial Archives and I am hoping to have him stuffed, at the proper time, to be exhibited along with specimens of other extinct species for the amusement of posterity.

AS Mr. Snifkin says, we are about to lose, with passing of the canoe, not only the first Canadian invention and a superb art form in its own right, but certain intangibles which, like most intangibles, are more important than practical things.

We are losing, to begin with, a bodily skill and a muscular strength unknown to the race of speedboatmen. For you need neither skill nor muscle, nor even a slight ray of intelligence, to operate a speedboat. You need nothing more than money, a love of speed and an immunity to sound. An idiot can operate a speedboat and many do. Only a craftsman can operate a canoe.

BUT more than craftsmanship is required. The paddler must be a philosopher with a sense of time, and modern man, in saving it with his gadgets, has lost time completely. The speedboat, rushing from one place to another and back again in endless circles for no purpose whatever except to kill time, is the symbol and image of the age of progress, the great killer of time.

The murder of time, as Mr. Snifkin agrees, may not be very important to the nation which seems to live comfortably without it. Population, though, is important to the nation and Mr. Snifkin does not see how we can produce an adequate population without the canoe. It was in the canoe, a few years back, that most of the marriages of Canada were proposed and arranged. The canoe was the craft of courtship, the vehicle of love, the insurance of posterity. Whereas no one can make love or discuss marriage in a speedboat. The words could not be heard above the roar of the engine. Besides, the inmates of the speedboat have no time for anything but speed.

WE are producing, Mr. Snifkin fears, a race which has no interest in love, will soon abandon the institution of marriage and, childless, will perish from the earth like the Great Auk, whom it so closely resembles. Then it will be replaced by another primitive race which, lacking speedboats, will have time for marriage and even time to live.

The newspapers, says Mr. Snifkin, are full of love stories these days, they portray such amorous symbols as Hollywood movie queens who are now introducing the higher aspects of American civilization to Britain, but actually all this news is as out of date as the bustle. The newspapers don't know it yet, but the internal combustion engine has replaced love and elevated mankind to higher things.

THE newspapers may be interested in Miss Marilyn Monroe but the younger generation is thinking only of an outboard. Miss Monroe has only one woman-power while an outboard has fifty or more horsepower, can travel faster than any woman and even make more noise. There probably is no room for human beings in the outboard era and certainly no room for Mr. Snifkin's lonely canoe, now tied to a wharf as a last surviving testament to the Canadian species and its primitive instincts.

SUMMING UP

By ART STOTT

Reviewing the Testimony

IT IS five minutes to twelve for the Sloan Commission on B.C. Forest Resources, commission counsel C. C. Locke said yesterday to open his summing up of evidence presented to the Chief Justice during the last 18 months.

Mr. Locke has assumed the job of condensing the testimony of some 225 witnesses, which, with argument, stretches over 20,000 typed pages.

Public hearings will end shortly, Mr. Locke expects to finish sometime Friday. Unless there is reply—and justification for it will have to be shown—the entire issue will be left at that point with Chief Justice Sloan, sole commissioner, whose able report 10 years ago enhanced his reputation for such work.

From him will come a document with recommendations on which the Government may set policy for the industry which provides nearly half of every dollar produced in British Columbia.

It will cover forest resources approximately twice as vast as the accessible merchantable softwood timber of all other parts of Canada combined.

Monumental Labor

This is the subject on which the commission has labored since Feb. 21, 1955, for which it has toured both northern and central interior B.C. and on which it has sat, with night sessions recently, in order to permit a report sometime this fall.

The commissioner is unwilling to delay his findings beyond autumn. He wants the government to have them in time for study well in advance of the next session.

In these closing days the Chief Justice sits in his familiar seat, centering the court of Appeal bench, but in this task he sits alone.

There is an air of efficiency in the proceedings relieved by an easy humor in a room whose high ceiling avoids the suffocation of baking July sun.

Below him, on the tables before commission secretary Capt. F. G. Hart, stretch brown-bound volumes of evidence and exhibits. The array is formidable. About the room sit legal representatives of some firms, high forestry officials, men familiar with problems of the woods and their economic importance.

Mr. Locke begins his presentation. A small joke precedes his suggestion that the voluminous evidence should help the Chief Justice in his conclusions.

Light Touch

The Chief Justice replies in kind, acknowledging sympathy for the country magistrate who wished he had to hear only one side of a case, because it became much more difficult when both sides were presented.

Mr. Locke refers to the charge that many witnesses presented cases in their own self-interest. Why not? They are in the commercial end of forestry, and when each speaks in self-interest the total brings a picture of the broad interests of all in the field.

Your thoughts run back to evidence which has been submitted by big and not so big concerns, by certain representatives who introduced party politics into their arguments—and to the commissioner's prompt and proper refusal to consider such material under the terms of his commission.

Statistics were produced by Mr. Locke as the serious business of the summing up began. They emphasized the economic importance of the wood industry to the province, B.C.'s growing trend toward manufacture, the relative decline in logging earnings compared to the whole industry because of higher degrees of manufacture, and the gradual shift to pulp operations.

B.C., he pointed out, is still the great reserve of softwoods in all Canada.

Markets received his attention. British Columbia, he noted, depended for its prosperity on the willingness of the U.S. to accept its timber products. In all 75 per cent of B.C. lumber, pulp and paper production depends on markets over which the province has no price control. Hence the importance of keeping costs within competitive range of other producers.

Healthy Market

Quoting expert witnesses, he said the open log market—the source from which anyone may buy raw material—is healthy, though declining. The market logger—who cuts the timber and sells it as logs—has more opportunities to make money than ever before. He will no doubt survive by his own efforts, but many believe he will turn into a contractor because of the tremendous costs of logging.

A small logger, incidentally, is defined as one who invests less than $400,000 and has less than two years' timber ahead of him. He needs from $50,000 to $100,000 to go into business.

His numbers, particularly if he is tied to some operator of a conversion plant, have increased since the war because of easier financing, though the true independent has been declining for about 25 years.

The small logger will always be here, but in what form is doubtful. Forest Management Licences have made little difference to the market logger yet, since he could only get into the traditional areas of large companies as a contractor. But he faces stiffer competition. Sawmills are cutting into his field and can outbid him.

No Complaints?

Main objections to logging by contract, Mr. Locke reported, arise from the unwillingness of some to work for anyone else and from the conviction that a contract logger has not the opportunity to grow big. It is suggested by the commissioner that many contract loggers may be happy with their situations and consequently have not appeared before the commission because they have no complaints.

So the summing up continues with a point made of the fact that a large number of sawmills employing few people account for a small percentage of payroll. A small number of big employers account for a large amount of payroll.

As Our Readers See It

Canada's Defence

Generals Simonds and Pearkes have had their inconclusive "say" anent the defence and preparedness of Canada's weapons and militia, and one wonders at the close correlation evident in their utterances with those of Conservative leader George Drew!

As "political" red herrings the statements merit tolerance, as criticism in the responsible sense they are misleading and mischievous of intent.

Defence Minister Campney has met them head on with denial and positive action.

Canada's safety is in the hands of a trustworthy custodian. Defence Minister Campney has shown a "flexible inflexibility" that is splendidly assuring in regard to the security of Canada.

KATHLEEN M. WORTHINGTON-LAKE, 851 Maddison street.

Preserving Paintings

Re the question and answer published July 23: What do artists use to prevent oil paintings from going dark?

The answer given only partly answers the question.

All oil paintings should be allowed to thoroughly dry.

The painting should then be cleaned and varnished with a good picture varnish, namely Mastic or Domar.

The painting should be hung in a good light; no glass should be in front of the painting.

In due time the varnish will yellow, the reason being it is a gum. It is then necessary to remove the old varnish and apply a new coat.

If paintings are not varnished dust and grime will penetrate the pigments. The painting under those circumstances cannot be cleaned. It will be ruined.

May I again say all paintings should be varnished especially now when oil is being used for cooking and heating. One finds a scum of grease on the face of oil painting. Varnish prevents this penetrating the pigments.

WALTER P. JEUNE, 1025 Fort street.

Graceful Recognition From Across the Strait

The Tacoma News-Tribune

For decades Tacoma was able to boast proud possession of the tallest totem pole in the world. Located first at 10th and A streets, the totem was transferred to the foot of 9th Street in front of Fire Headquarters Station No. 6, where it shines forth as a beacon and most welcome tourist attraction. But now some of its glory has been lost.

Two weeks ago the tallest totem title was surrendered to our neighbor in British Columbia, Victoria, capital of the Canadian province. With no little admiration Victoria lifted into place in Beacon Hill Park a towering totem pole of 127 feet and 7 inches in height. Tacoma's 103-foot totem thus becomes relegated to second place.

The Victoria totem was the crowning achievement of a chief of the Kwakiutl Indians who carved it from a 160-foot cedar with the able assistance of a son. Incidentally, the totem was financed largely through the public's subscription of 10,000 "shares" at 50 cents each, a splendid illustration of civic pride and noteworthy achievement.

Totem poles are found in many Puget Sound cities, notably Seattle, Bellingham and Everett, but it remained for Victoria to outdo all of them. Significantly enough, British Columbia is heralded as the capital of "totemry" although the coast of Alaska is literally alive with these specimens of the Indians' handiwork. Tacoma is sorry to lose its title but happy to see it bestowed on such a splendid neighbor as Victoria.

New York City and Fluoridation

From the monthly newsletter of The American Dental Association

The responsibility of the community for the adoption of a public health measure, such as fluoridation of the water supply, was demonstrated last month in New York with the organization of the Committee to Protect Our Children's Teeth, Inc.

The purpose of the committee is to spread facts and correct misinformation on water fluoridation, according to Dr. Benjamin Spock of Cleveland, chairman. Dr. Spock, visiting professor of child development at Western Reserve University and one of the nation's most widely known pediatricians, said that water fluoridation is "the safest, most effective and cheapest way to protect children's teeth... up to ten years of successful use, of the procedure by more than 1,100 communities across our country have proved its efficiency and absolute safety."

The committee's first educational campaign will be conducted in New York City, where Board of Health has recommended adoption repeatedly, because it is felt that "New York's decision will be pivotal and perhaps decisive in advancing the measure across the country." A $100,000 budget has been proposed, and tax-deductible contributions are being accepted by the State Charities Aid Association, 105 E. 22nd St., New York, N.Y., a member group.

Vice chairmen of the Committee are Mrs. Mary W. Lasker, president of the Lasker Foundation; Mr. Basil O'Connor, president, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis; Dr. Thomas Parran, dean, University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public Health and former surgeon general of the Public Health Service; and Dr. William F. Shepard, second vice-president, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The more than 125-member committee includes Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, syndicated health columnist; (whose articles appear regularly in The Victoria Daily Times).

The Doomed Forest

TO REACH the forest you leave the television aerials and the trim houses of the logging town and go up a depressing valley with dry and desolate hills that have been logged off to the very crest.

It's true that in certain lights they have a stark and Group-of-Sevensish beauty, but to those who love the forests, they are a dreadful sort of hell.

From there the road goes up another valley where fire swept through some years ago. It's blackened stumps now and rampant bracken and tall dead snags that are white and smooth and sometimes have the sheen of satin.

There, the road stops suddenly in a place of loose and dusty gravel. For those who know it, there's an unmarked trail that goes down by the creek where bracken grows head-high and higher, and, on a summer day, the scent is almost overpowering.

The forest starts in a couple of hundred yards. Through it, for four miles, is a narrow trail where walkers must watch their feet among the shadowed roots of virgin timber.

For it's dim when once you get within the forest, dim and cool with a soft religious light.

It's silent, too. In four miles of steady walking you may hear perhaps a wren or a jay but few other birds.

Logs make perilous bridges across the creeks, bridges that demand a steady head and unfaltering feet. But, for the most part the trail is soft underfoot with the springy softness of the true forest floor.

At this time of year, for those who know their island flowers, there are plenty to be seen.

Pale and delicate they are, these flowers of the deep forest. See this low growing Queen's Cup, so white and pure rising on slender stem above the smooth and shiny leaves that are such a lovely green. Look how the petals are nearly dropping now. But, in their place, will come an oval berry of china-blue.

And here's False Bugbane, growing in a shady, moist spot. How white and bristly the small flowers are. How dainty and how fairy-like. Those are stamens, really, but, to the casual eye, they might look like petals.

Smell this white rein orchid, and treasure up the memory of the scene.

Here's pink-stemmed Coral Root, and Wintergreen, and Single Delight, or Single Beauty if you prefer that name, or Monisee Uniflora if you're fussy.

Here, too, is trailing dogwood. It's like a perfect little dogwood, only made in fairy size and no taller than your middle finger.

But most fairy-like of all is Twin-Flower. See the tiny green leaves, the slender stem, the pink bell-shaped flowers of delicate scent. Have you ever seen a daintier flower? How gross it makes a harebell seem.

Yes, these and many others you may still see in the cool, green depths of the untouched forest.

But you'll not likely see them. Because this four-mile trail through the forest is doomed. It'll go this fall when the loggers move in. The death of all those giant Douglas firs is certain.

The sun will blaze down on stumps where now the hemlock seedlings grow in the cool green glades. The roar of bulldozers and the scream of power saw will drown out the song of the wren.

There are those who've known this forest for many years and loved it well. They'll not pass that way again, they say. Already there's a sadness to it, a looking their last on all things lovely.

All their lives they've seen the forests go. They've seen them going to the mill as chips. They've seen them going out on flat cars and on logging trucks. One by one, their forests have gone.

And the death of this last loved forest is almost more than they can bear.

It'll mean a road through the valley and across the island, for only four miles remain to link the gravel roads from East Coast and West.

"If they could leave the forest as it is," she said, "and simply cut a swathe for the road."

"If they could leave a wide strip of forest on either side of the road," he said. "Why destroy the forest, and talk about scenic roads for tourists in the same breath?"

"We've seen it," they say. "But what of our children and our children's children?"

And I don't know the answer. I only know that last weekend was one I'll remember all my life for the still, deep beauty of the doomed forest.

I know, too, that for certain kinds of people the cool green depths of untouched forests, the sound of wooded creeks, and peace and solitude are not only precious but vital.

Some day, I suppose, I'll drive that road to the West Coast. But the forest won't be there, the forest that is more beautiful by far than Famed Cathedral Grove, the forest that makes Englishmen's River Park and Little Qualicum Falls Park look like puny stuff.

Going, going, GONE. What ARE we doing to posterity?

Humidity Aplenty Ideal For Peppers, Egg Plant

I saw a coldframe a few days ago with nothing in it. It was built to store chrysanthemum roots over winter, the owner told me. For this purpose it had been constructed deeper than usual.

Too bad it was empty when it would have been ideal for a good crop of sweet peppers and egg plant. They grow well in a closed frame with lots of humidity, needing only a crack of air when the thermometer hits ninety.

Recently I saw a gardener digging a drain tile from beneath his lawn and noted a beautiful weeping willow 10 feet away.

To be beautiful a weeping willow must have water in quantity and there is no better place for a steady supply than a tile drain. The roots will travel 30 feet or more to reach the water they need.

I wouldn't be surprised to see that willow tree cut down in a

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

No Auto Hitching Posts

LONDON—A further bit of American influence that is about to penetrate into Britain is the parking meter. Not more than a handful of people in this country have ever seen one of these, let alone used one. But they will see plenty of them as soon as the new Road Traffic Bill becomes law.

By next month, when the new parking regulations are expected to come into effect, the makers of the meters plan to have 5,000 ready for sale to local boroughs, with more provided at a rate of 1,000 a week.

It is a safe bet that when the meters do make their appearance on English streets, folks here will buck against them, if on no other score than that they detract from the old-world charm, just as they have fought against the modern lighting standards that progressive borough councils have tried to put up here in London.

I mentioned a while back the protest meeting held by the householders of the street I live on (Cavendish Avenue, in St. John's Wood) to fight against the up-to-date, efficient, cheaper-to-run lighting that had been installed and was about to be switched on. They fought to retain the antiquated gas-lamp standards converted to electricity.

Well, other streets joined in and big names of the area (including Canada's Sir Beverley Baxter, MP, who lives on nearby Hamilton Terrace) were rounded up as heavy artillery for the battle. The council was convinced that the charm of St. John's Wood must be preserved and now they have to pull down their slick modern lighting standards and take them away.

FROM STREET LIGHTING to street walking is an easy step, which brings us to the topic about which there is more hue and cry than anything else in London right now. Home Secretary Lloyd-George has met the agitation to clean-up "the city of vice" that London has become by a neat bit of side-stepping.

He has said: "There is no evidence of the existence in this country of brothels in the popularly accepted sense of a house full of prostitutes from whom a customer may take his pick."

This bit of evasion gets around the fact that Britain's present anti-vice laws have no real teeth in them. The law defines a brothel as a place in common use by two or more women for immoral purposes. The people who run London's brothels (the Messing gang) have been smart enough to make sure their premises aren't legally brothels by letting them out in rooms to individual women.

By law, no woman can be convicted for entertaining men friends in her own flat, so the brothel-keepers flourish while the Home Secretary and the police are powerless to do anything about it.

MAGNIFICENT LINERS CRUSHED; ONE SUNK IN 225 FEET

DRAMA BY AIR Ship Radios Told Graphic Sea Tragedy

BOSTON (AP)—Some of the drama surrounding the collision of the Italian liner Andrea Doria and the Swedish liner Stockholm was contained in the following radio messages picked up.

11:22 p.m. (EDT), from the Stockholm: We have collided with another ship. Please. Ship in collision.

12:08 a.m. from the Stockholm: Collided with another vessel in position 40-34 N 69-45 W. But still undetermined our damage.

12:09 a.m. from the Stockholm: Our No. 1 hold filled with water. We have to stay in our position. Help if you can.

12:22 a.m. from Stockholm to Andrea Doria: Lower your lifeboats. We can pick you up.

12:35 a.m. from Andrea Doria: We are too bending (listing). Impossible to put boats over side. Please send lifeboats immediately.

1:05 a.m. from Ile de France to Cape Ann: Vessels near the scene. We shall be area at 1:45 a.m. What can I do to help?

1:10 a.m.: Cape Ann to Ile de France: He says immediate need for lifeboats for about 1,000 passengers and 500 crew.

1:12 a.m.: Cape Ann to Ile de France: We have dispatched two lifeboats.

1:35 a.m.: Stockholm to Andrea Doria: We are launching all available lifeboats.

2:25 a.m. apparently from Stockholm: The Andrea Doria has begun to abandon ship.

3:05 a.m.: Stockholm to Ile de France: Our foreship damaged. Our No. 1 hold flooded. Otherwise ship all right. Will try to proceed to New York at slow speed. If you are going to New York with passengers from Andrea Doria can we keep company?

3:07 a.m.: Ile de France to Stockholm: Will proceed New York full speed when all rescued. Please ask another ship. My schedule imperative.

Lost Italian Liner Built In 1953 for $29 Million

Loss of the Andrea Doria represents the second disaster to claim Atlantic passenger ships in just over three years.

It was Jan. 25, 1953, when the Empress of Canada burned at a Liverpool dock. There was no loss of life.

In comparison of tonnage, Andrea Doria was larger than the ill-fated Empress. Doria's tonnage is listed at 29,083 tons and the Empress of Canada was 20,325.

Here are some other random tonnage which may help to fix Andrea Doria's size in the minds of Victoria travellers:

656 FEET LONG

The Andrea was built in 1953 in Genoa, Italy, owned by "Soc. per Azioni di Nav." according to Lloyd's register of shipping. She was 656 feet in length and 90.2 feet beam. She was built with five decks, powered by steam turbines and had twin screws. She was built to carry 1,241 passengers and a crew of 575. She was loaded to capacity at the time of the disaster. Cost of the ship was $29,000,000.

The other ship in the collision, Svenska-America Line passenger ship Stockholm was built in Gotaverken, Sweden, in 1947. Her tonnage is listed as 11,995 tons. She is 503 feet long and 69 feet beam. She could turn up 19 knots, carried 393 passengers and 170 crew in full accommodation.

Recent sea losses around the world include the British submarine Sirona at Portland, Eng. (13 lives lost), in June, 1953; Swedish tanker Johannishus off Ramsgate June, 1953 (19 lost); Japanese ferry Sinun Maru, Inland Sea, Japan, May, 1953 (35 lost).

Largest loss of life in recent years occurred in Japanese waters September 26, 1954. The ferry Tosa Maru sank in Tsuaru Strait with a loss of life of 1,172.

OLD MARINE FAMILY

Capt. Piero Calamai, skipper of the Andrea Doria, is a member of an old Genoese seafaring family.

He was born in Genoa, Italy, and graduated from the local Nautical Academy.

He began his sea-going career 35 years ago and is one of the youngest officers in command of an Italian Lines vessel.

One of his brothers holds the rank of admiral in the Italian navy.

Calamai served as a junior naval officer in First World War. Following the war he was made third mate on the Ss Montecarlo.

In 1936 he was appointed captain of the 16,000-ton Ss Toscana.

He was later appointed staff captain of the Conte Grande, Augustus and Conte De Savoia.

He was a lieutenant-commander in the Italian Navy during World War II.

Capt. Calamai is married and has two daughters. He lives in Genoa.

Israel Bans Pork

JERUSALEM, Israel Sector (AP)—Parliament Wednesday night adopted a law authorizing local authorities to limit or prohibit pig breeding, trading and the sale of pork.

The law fulfills demands of the religious - orthodox parties which claim pork consumption contradicts Jewish religious tradition.

Cyprus, which has a written history dating back to 1,500 B. C., has been governed by nine different nations.

SAILED ON DORIA LAST YEAR

Luxury Ship's Loss Saddens City Woman

By AB KENT.

A feeling akin to mourning was felt by a Victoria woman when she learned today of the death of a great ship—the Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria.

Mrs. Edmond Jorje de St. Jorre, 1630 Pinewood, sailed aboard the Doria during a world cruise last year.

"You become attached to these ships after sailing with them for so long," she explained.

"It was a magnificent ship—a perfect ship—absolutely impossible for it to burn, and all those safety devices."

"It was simply beautiful and so spacious. I suppose they're building them just too big these days."

But there was something which disturbed Mrs. Jorje de St. Jorre.

In the first class salon was a life-like figure of the great

MAJOR SEA DISASTERS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The outstanding peacetime ship disaster in recent history was the sinking of the Titanic in 1912.

The sinking of the Titanic on its maiden voyage after striking an iceberg took a toll of 1,517, many of them prominent in the world's business and social life.

There have been other great marine catastrophes through the years but none that has remained in the minds of the public like the sinking in the north Atlantic of the luxury liner, considered unsinkable, on her voyage from England to the United States.

The same year that the Titanic went down, 1,000 people lost their lives when the Japanese steamship, Kikkemaru, sank off the coast of Japan.

CANADIAN SHIP SANK

Two years later 1,024 were lost when the Canadian Pacific Steamship, Empress of Ireland, sank after colliding with a Danish collier in the St. Lawrence River.

Another 1,000 lives were lost in 1916 when the Chinese steamer, Hain Yu, sank off the China coast.

Six thousand Chinese, including government troops, died when a crowded evacuation ship sank off southern Manchuria in November of 1945.

Since the Second World War, the greatest loss of life, some 1,300, was when a Japanese ferry capsized during a typhoon.

Dreaded SOS Unleashed Mighty Rescue Operations

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The clock said 11:22 p.m. EDT.

All was quiet at the East Moriches, Long Island, station of the coast guard as the radio operators logged routine messages from ships at sea.

Then came that most dreaded of all calls for help—S O S.

The Andrea Doria, Italian luxury liner, was in trouble some 50 miles south of Nantucket Island off the New England coast. She had collided in the dense fog with the Swedish liner Stockholm and needed medical assistance and life boats.

A few minutes later came a call for help from the Stockholm.

Within a matter of seconds after receiving the SOS from the Andrea Doria, the information had been relayed to the coast guard's headquarters for sea search and rescue operations in downtown Manhattan.

RESCUE OPERATIONS

The coast guard flashed an all-points orders and the organization's vast rescue plan went into operation from New York to Portland, Me.

Nine coast guard boats converged on the scene.

Two huge flying boats were ordered out from Floyd Bennett Field in Brooklyn and Quonset Point, R.I. but their flights later were cancelled because of fog.

An aircraft carrier and a navy destroyer were readied at Boston as were two more destroyers and two fleet tugs at Newport. A later order sent a number of "unsinkable" motor life boats from coast guard stations in the Cape Cod area.

As the tilting Andrea Doria lost use of her radio she switched to an emergency set. The signals were picked up by the Stockholm and relayed as rescue ships closed in on the scene.

MANY BOATS HELP

The Cape Ann, a frigate ship, was the first to arrive—shortly after midnight. She went between the two stricken ships and launched her lifeboats as the Andrea Doria played her spotlights on the water.

Two hours and 15 minutes after the first SOS, an army boat, Pte. William H. Thomas, began lowering her lifeboats. Next to arrive on the scene were the Robert S. Hopkins and the S.S. Elmwood, when radioed that she had 25 lifeboats.

Shortly after the arrival of the army boat, the luxury liner, Ile de France, notified the coast guard she was nine miles away and was ready to launch her lifeboats.

Through the night, the coast guard headquarters kept in constant touch with the rescue boats as numerous smaller craft joined in taking passengers off the liner.

B.C. Telephone Expands Services In Island Areas

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Completion of a $60,000 project improving and extending telephone service here has been announced by the B.C. Telephone Co.

Aerial cables containing 2,900 miles of wire have been installed providing telephone facilities in new subdivisions and 500 additional phones in the Port Alberni exchange.

A similar project in the Beaver Creek area is nearing completion, company officials report.

LAKE COWICHAN — B.C. Telephone Company announces that work will begin soon here on a $10,000 project to extend outside cable facilities in the exchange area.

When the work has been completed, aerial cable containing more than 390 miles of wire will have been placed.

Canada has a total freshwater area of 268,611 square miles, compared with 3,577,163 square miles of land.

Big Push Under Way To Unionize Offices

Greatest effort yet made to organize Victoria office workers is being made jointly by representatives of Canadian Labor Congress and Office Employees International Union.

William Lowe, Vancouver, international organizer for the union, said here he expects the present few hundred organized office workers in Greater Victoria to swell to between 2,000 and 3,000 in the next three years.

Office workers, he said, are the only significant labor force remaining which are largely unorganized.

He estimated the potential number of unionized office workers for this area to be in the neighborhood of 6,000 out of a total 38,000 office employees in B.C.

"Response to the campaign to date is far beyond expectation," Mr. Lowe said.

Organizers find it difficult to keep pace with the number of inquiries from office personnel interested in organizing.

"Office workers have become aware of the need to organize and bargain collectively to gain equal status with employees in other industries," he said.

Mr. Lowe pointed out that whereas many office workers maintain a 44-hour week, the longest week of any organized group under his union is 37½ hours.

Also, the wage scales of organized workers are generally above those of unorganized office employees.

Recently his union negotiated a

Pensioners Get Cheques Earlier Under New Order

OTTAWA (CP)—Old age pension cheques are to be delivered by the post office on the last banking day in each month, instead of the last mail delivery day, Finance Minister Harris said Wednesday.

He said the change was recently ordered by the health and welfare department.

Mr. Harris, replying to a Commons question by Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), said post offices receive the cheques ahead of the delivery date to allow time for sorting.

how different can a light rum be?

Amazingly different!

For this is Columbus White Label rum. The light rum that mixes with citrus juices, sparkling water or ginger ale. To cocktails it adds a new dry twist. On the rocks it's smooth and mellow — in a word: versatile.

This rum will fascinate you. The difference amaze you. Try Columbus White Label rum and see for yourself how different a light rum can really be!

80-Mile Winds Hit Saskatchewan

Heavy Damage As Hail, Rain Strike Over Widespread Area

MOOSE JAW (CP)—Rain, wind and hail lashed southwestern Saskatchewan Wednesday causing severe damage.

At Swift Current, 60 miles west of here, 80-mile-an-hour winds tore up numerous trees, broke plate-glass windows, and hurled lumber and milk cans around like feathers. Shaunavon, 40 miles south of Swift Current, was hit by a 10-minute hailstorm during which inch-thick stones battered crops. Heavy winds in the Chaplin area, 40 miles east of Swift Current, caused a short power failure at Union Hospital. The auxiliary power was turned on and duties went on as usual.

A rain storm hit the Moose Jaw area for the second time in less than two weeks. Sixty-mile-an-hour winds with gusts up to 85 miles an hour and half-inch of rain, which fell in little more than a half-hour, damaged property and tore branches off trees.

The Saskatchewan Power Corporation reported the towns of Admiral and Cabri were without light and the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs reported wire trouble east of Swift Current.

Frank Carr, a Swift Current bricklayer working on an addition to a school, was wrapped up in loose roofing, which the wind rolled around him. He escaped shaken but uninjured.

'Monster' Only Rare Whale

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—A Michigan State University fisheries biologist Wednesday identified the monster carcass washed up on a lonely Alaska beach as a beaked whale, one of the rarest of the beaked whale species.

Dr. Peter Tack, head of the Michigan state fishery and wildlife department, flew Tuesday to the spot where the creature was beached some months ago 80 miles south of Yakutat.

Dr. Tack said after examining the remains its probable length was about 38 feet. Original reports had estimated the creature, which had become nearly buried in the sand, as much longer.

The so-called "red hair," he said, turned out on close examination to be fibrous matter which is the residue of decomposing whale flesh and blubber.

GAS LEAK THREATENING NORTH BAY CITY BLOCK

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—A property owner said Wednesday that a whole city block in the downtown business section here is in danger of being wiped out by fire unless a dangerous gasoline leak is found.

Gasoline which experts believe has been leaking from one of four nearby service stations has been seeping into basements in the block and flooded some to a depth of five inches several times.

O. E. Gallardi, part owner of a building housing Lindsay and McClusky, Ltd., a fuel company, said the gasoline in his basement had him "scared silly all winter long."

Crews from the city engineer's department Wednesday began digging trenches in the heart of the business section, looking for the leak's source.

They would find it "even if half of North Bay has to be dug up," said city engineer J. D. Reid.

Nehru Accused Of Taking Away Cabinet Powers

NEW DELHI, India (Reuters)—A resigning government minister Wednesday caused a sensation in the Indian parliament when he accused Prime Minister Nehru and the cabinet's "inner circle" of usurping the powers of the cabinet.

Chintaman Deshmukh, whose resignation as finance minister was accepted Tuesday, said in a prepared statement to the House of the People lower house that the cabinet's powers had been usurped in the decision on the reorganization of Indian states.

Eden Rejects Attlee Plea For Makarios

LONDON (Reuters)—The government Wednesday night rejected a plea by former Labor Prime Minister Earl Attlee that Archbishop Makarios, leader of the union-with-Greece movement in Cyprus, be brought back from exile.

The plea was rejected in the House of Lords by the Marquess of Salisbury, spokesman for the government, who said Makarios was deported to the Seychelles Island in the Indian Ocean last March because he connived at and fomented "a campaign of violence against our troops and our friends on the island."

"Let him publicly condemn violence," said Salisbury, "and a new situation would be created and many things might be possible."

Salisbury was answering Attlee's contention that the deportation of Makarios "to put it mildly, was an error of judgment."

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, said Makarios will have to be brought back some time. He could not be exiled or separated from his church forever.

The archbishop suggested that when Lord Radcliffe, now in Cyprus to frame a constitution, produces his first draft "it must obviously be discussed with Archbishop Makarios."

Revenue Cut By Woods Plan Says Lawyer

Forest management licences eliminate competitive bidding and thus reduce public revenue, L. S. Eckardt, counsel for the Truck Loggers' Association of B.C., told the Sloan Royal Commission Wednesday.

Opposing the granting of any more licences, Mr. Eckardt said: "Since the public forests belong to all citizens they should be made aware of the effect of forest licences on their pocketbooks."

"In the past, public timber was sold by public auction to the highest bidder. Under the management licence system, it is sold to the licensee at appraised value without competition."

DOUBLE VALUE
Mr. Eckardt told Chief Justice Sloan that the record of timber sales in the past two or three years shows that competition has resulted in bids often reaching double the government appraised value.

"When you consider the billions of feet of government timber which may be involved in management licences, the potential loss in revenue to the public through departure from competitive bidding is truly staggering."

He argued that no more licences should be issued and existing ones should be carefully reviewed and scrutinized by an independent commission or advisory board.

Police Launch Saves Sailors in 'Fridge'

NEW YORK (AP)—A police launch went to the aid Wednesday of two young adventurers who set out to sea in a five-foot refrigerator. Jeffrey Mayer, 13, and David Kelly, 14, had progressed less than a mile in Bowers Bay when their homemade ship began shipping water. Police returned them to shore unharmed.

DAFFY GIMMICKS FLOOD U.S.

'I like Ike' Doodads Fill 26-Page Catalogue

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON (CP)—The season of the gimmick, the gadget and the slogan, one of the daffier highlights of an American election year, is rolling around once again.

It has brought with it a wide assortment of gadgets, banners and other items which the meticulous Republican supporter may wear, carry or otherwise display to proclaim his love of Dwight D. Eisenhower as the party's candidate for the presidency.

The Democrats haven't yet toted out their campaign wares, largely because their candidate won't be known until after the party holds its nominating convention in Chicago next month.

REPUBLICANS WELL STOCKED
But the Republicans, with Eisenhower's candidacy a foregone conclusion, already are in the field with a 26-page campaign catalogue stocked with ideas the Republican can use to show he'll be supporting Eisenhower when the votes are cast Nov. 6.

He can, if he likes, sport a T-shirt with a picture of the beaming president and an "I still like Ike" message and wear along with it socks, red suspenders, handkerchief, cap or raincoat all with accompanying "Ike" slogans.

Bitter Republican Feud Sparked By Stassen's Backing of Herter

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON (CP)—Harold E. Stassen's trial-balloon advocacy of Governor Christian Herter of Massachusetts for the vice-presidency has thrown into the open a bitter Republican feud over that No. 2 spot on the party's ticket in the Nov. 6 general election.

While it subsequently developed that Herter, far from being a party to the move, actually has agreed to nominate vice-president Richard M. Nixon for re-election, the governor's announced decision has neither daunted Stassen nor erased the significance of his efforts to put another man on the ticket.

Stassen says he realizes it would require a "draft Herter" movement within the party to induce the governor to accept the nomination himself. And the nomination himself. And the nomination itself. And the nomination itself.

Eisenhower continued Wednesday to keep silent on Stassen's surprise anti-Nixon drive, but Herter said in Boston that Nixon "is clearly acceptable to the president."

LOT CAN HAPPEN
Stassen, who is Eisenhower's special assistant for disarmament, took the position that a lot can happen between now and convention time.

Some other Republicans agreed with him—but they were thinking about the possibility that Stassen himself might be dumped before then from his cabinet-level White House assignment.

Back of the Stassen manoeuvre is a fear among certain elements of the party that Nixon may prove to be a political liability to the Eisenhower ticket in the forthcoming campaign.

WON'T DUMP NIXON

The same dislike for party schisms in public undoubtedly has restrained other Republicans sharing Stassen's view from backing his stand, while Nixon's supporters, spearheaded by national party chairman Leonard Hall, have been prompt to rally to the vice-president's defence.

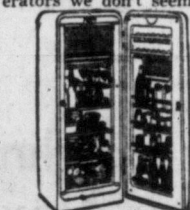

The immediate reason for the Republican distaste for Nixon as vice-presidential candidate is the two major illnesses Eisenhower has suffered in the last

Party strategists figure that the public will realize that by voting for an Eisenhower-Nixon ticket they will, in effect, be voting Nixon into the White House if the 65-year-old Eisenhower fails to live out his four-year term. ## ESQUIMALT'S BEST READY TO GO

All set for the Vancouver Island Little League tournament here on Saturday and Sunday is the Esquimalt-Vic West Little League All-Star team. Left to right, front row, Larry Shaw, Barry Warner, Rickie Barnswell, John Yankoski, Danny McIllood and Brian Cowx. Back row, Wayne Mowat, Murray Pastuck, Charlie Anslow, Dennis Morris, Peter Baines, Lorne Harper (coach), Fergie Webster, Bobby Crelin and John Kirkendale. Opening game Saturday at 2:30 pits Esquimalt against American League.

IT'S MY VIEW BY Bill Walker

David Colin Kilburn is the new coach of Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League.

The point now is: how does he stand with the general public?

The reaction so far has been favorable.

It's about nine out of ten for the former Peck's Bad Boy of the Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League. Lester Patrick, who should know, says simply: "Colin will do all right but he's got to hold himself in restraint; I've talked to him, he understands his problem, he says he can master it, and I think he will."

In other words Colin's biggest worry now is not to blow his stack. At least not so often as in the past. In that regard his background as a citizen suggests he's capable of living up to the new trust that is his.

In the past few years since becoming a permanent citizen resident, he has taken an increasingly active interest in minor sports. He holds official capacities in several organizations of this nature, and he has been instrumental in providing recreation for several youngsters.

In addition, often at the request of parents, he has taken of his time to discuss certain juvenile problems with those parents.

Simply, he has become a leading citizen and a credit to the community.

An All-Star, Through and Through

There is no doubt as to his hockey ability. He has been a consistent performer through the years. A firebrand, yes, but an all-star winger too, which partly explains that tendency to erupt in spasmodic outbursts of physical objection.

Hockey is his love, and he loves to win. That's what makes him guilty of the charges.

But now he is in command. He must set the pattern. The will to win will never suffer, that's certain. But he must mellow his objections as he teaches others to do every day in minor sport.

It's a big task, being coach of a professional hockey club. But the thought here is that he has the psychological attributes which could produce success.

He has promised a "sixty-minute club" and that's been his code as a Cougar. Those who don't cut the mustard the way he likes it sliced, can go without.

He will have free reign, will Colin, and already is planning his club.

And he knows full well where the halter rubs, and he must fit it personally.

"Colin will do all right," we too think.

Brundage Under Fire ---'Misguided Humbug'

SYDNEY, Australia (BUP)—Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic committee, has been pictured by a Sydney newspaper as a "misguided old humbug," "a monumentally misinformed bore," and a man who is "mentally muscle bound."

The tabloid Daily Telegraph became editorially disturbed at Brundage, the Chicagoan who long has been a world leader in amateur sports, because of a recent remark restricting Great Britain's Duke of Edinburgh in the Olympic games at Melbourne in December.

"His latest piece of flapdoodle (caused, we understand, because Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret attracted a lot of attention at the Stockholm equine event) is an edict that the Duke of Edinburgh must not meet officials in the arena at the Melbourne Olympics," the Telegraph stated.

"Would this misguided old humbug adopt the same attitude about President Eisenhower if the games were held at San Francisco," the Telegraph asked. The editorial concluded with the suggestion that "the Melbourne organizing committee, keeping their reply as athletically polite as possible, should tell mentally musclebound Avery to take a running jump at himself."

Browning Leads Rout Of 'Bellies

Rocks Close Gap
On Second Place

Rocks 17, Salmonbellies 7

Archie Browning, the diminutive man with a hard shot, made his return to the green profitable for everyone on Wednesday.

He rattled four goals past New Westminster's overworked netminder, Ron Delmonico.

About the only persons in Memorial Arena who didn't appreciate his return to action were the Salmonbellies, the victims of a 17-7 rout, as the whole Victoria team fattened scoring averages and moved within four points of second-place Vancouver Pileaters.

The score would have been even larger, too, if Shamrocks had bothered to go all out.

As it was, the Rocks were satisfied just to sit back and let the Salmonbellies batter their collective heads against George Johnston's brick wall of goaltending.

Even then New Westminster didn't get many chances to increase the score as the Shamrocks, although not at their best, were more than enough for the youthful Salmonbellies, last night using a number of juniors who were not quite good enough.

BAMFORD IN FORM

For Victoria, Bill Bamford fired two goals and picked up three assists, while Pee Wee Bradshaw had two goals and two assists.

Cliff Sepka and Re. Reisinger each scored twice for the losers. Salmonbellies, who were more inclined towards pugilism than lacrosse, and the Rocks, always ready to take them on, mixed it up a bit at the end of the second period.

The officials, who did not seem too inclined to enter the fray, finally banished Bert Bertoia and Len Kupchak to the penalty box with majors, while Kupchak still trying to get at Bertoia.

However, this brief moment of excitement was soon forgotten, and the game settled once more into its usual, slow routine.

In the preliminary, the old battle of experience versus youth was enacted once more, and the ex-Shamrocks easily taught the youngsters a lesson, 5-1.

For the Old-Timers, Jim Ranson scored two goals and Fred Ranson, Ed Popham, and Arnie Ferguson each fired one after Norm Parker had started the scoring for the Junior Rocks.

Emery Hurls No-Hit Victory

Victoria 8, New Westminster 0

NEW WESTMINSTER (Special) — UCT's Dave Emery, to the pleasant surprise of his coaches, has found other Babe Ruth League batters just as docile as the local variety back in Victoria.

Emery, with an 8-1 record for UCT this year, pitched his second no-hitter of the season Wednesday as Victoria Babe Ruth League All-Stars blanked New Westminster, 8-0, in their opening B.C. tournament game.

Victoria will now play either Marpole or Inter-Community in the tourney semi-finals Friday.

Emery allowed but one New Westminster batter to get on base and retired the last 20 men to face him as his mates played errorless ball.

Lone New Westminster base-runner came in the first inning with one out. Emery missed with a 3-2 pitch and walked his only man. The runner reached second on a passed ball but died there.

Emery struck out 13 batters over the route.

Victoria broke up the game with a four-run sixth inning, followed by four more in the seventh. Gary Lawrence led the winner's 10-hit attack against New Westminster pitching with three straight hits.

Linescore:

BOWLING CHAMPS

A. Ashford and T. Campbell of Burnside bowling club edged out A. Findlay and B. Dalgarno of Victoria West in men's doubles lawn bowling for the Fairall Cup. Deadlocked in the regulation 21 ends, the last ball gave the Burnside team the win.

Balloch's Two-Hitter Good Only for a Tie

Rotary and Mawson-Gage struggled through two extra innings but failed to break a 5-5 tie in a Pony League game at Carnarvon Park on Wednesday.

John Balloch, pitching for Rotary, was the tough luck performer. He gave up only two hits, while Mawson's hurler, Jim Marshall, was touched for nine safeties.

The game will be replayed Friday night.

Rotary edged Gyros, 3-2, in an League action at Little League Park to move into a second-place tie with Odd Fellows.

In the Colt League, Dowells stopped Morrisons, 8-3, while ANAF Vets blanked Hagels, 9-0, at Royal Athletic Park in the North Kiwanis League.

Tickets Here For Red Match

B.C. All-Stars, the team that tied Aberdeen, 2-2, when they last took to the field, line up once more on August 11 in an effort to defeat Russian Lokomotiv.

Lokomotiv, currently on a foreign tour, will arrive in Vancouver after playing games in Toronto and Montreal.

No Russian team has played in North America before.

Tickets may be purchased at Wagner's News Depot, 1320 Douglas.

CINCINNATI (AP)—Pitcher Pat Scantlebury Wednesday was recalled by Cincinnati Redlegs from Havana of the International League.

RUSSIANS GOT REPLICA

V's Still Hold World Cup

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—The trophy which Russian players received for winning the world hockey championship early this year was only a replica, says the Summerland Review.

The World Cup is still in Penticton, home of the former world champion Penticton V's, writes Sid Godber, publisher of the weekly newspaper.

Godber, former editor of the Penticton Herald, covered the V's when they defeated the Russians in 1955 to capture the trophy which Russia won the year before by trouncing Toronto East York Lyndhursts.

Bill Warwick, one of the stars of the Penticton victory, kept the cup and sent a duplicate back to the International Ice Hockey Federation.

The Federation did not notice the difference, Godber writes in his sports column. So when Russia's team recaptured the world championship at Cortina D'Ampezzo, Italy, late last winter, they received only the replica. The earlier trophy stands on display in the Warwick brothers' restaurant in Penticton.

"As far as we know," Bill Warwick said, "We're not the first to keep the trophy. I think that every four years or so some team decides to keep it. We don't know who has the original. But we've got the 'one we won'."

CITY SOCCER LEAGUE TO AIR PLANS TONIGHT

CUP TENNIS OPENS FRIDAY

Bill Unworried, But Not So Herb

It's his own business of course, but non-playing cap-methode is perhaps just a little bit strange.

While his U.S. Davis Cup team, here to meet Canada in the north section final of the American zone, practiced perspiration under the hot sun Wednesday on Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club's championship courts, Talbert was doing a few fast laps around the back courts.

When Talbert finally came puffing back to watch his athletes at play, Herbie Flam and Ham Richardson were "having a little trouble breaking serve" against Ron Holmberg and Barry McKay in a round of doubles.

Flam was also having trouble finding himself on the grass courts, after just coming off clay courts in Chicago Monday, and was missing shots badly.

But Talbert contemplated his sunburn and evinced not one bit of concern that Flam perhaps was not too sharp. And, although he still wouldn't say, it is becoming more probable that Flam and Richardson will draw the opening singles assignments Friday against the Canadians.

Too, there's always Holmberg and McKay, who are being touted as the U.S. doubles combination for Saturday.

EAGER BEAVERS

The two youngsters, on their first Davis Cup team, were in high spirits and working together well Wednesday. They were even reluctant to leave the courts when the practice ended and it was time for the Canadians to take over, pleading for "just one more game."

All this youthful ebullience was lost on the Canadian team, however, who seemed to be taking the whole cup-tie very calmly.

When their turn came to work out on the grass, they were all found napping in the clubhouse.

Swaps Romps To New World Mark

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Superb Swaps rewrote the world record book of horse racing for the fifth time Wednesday by winning the $110,500 Sunset Handicap with leisurely ease.

Never threatened, he actually was under tight rein most of the way to his seventh victory of the year.

The big fellow stepped out over the 1 1/2 miles distance for the first time in his brilliant career and came home in a clocking of 2:38 1/5.

Ringling down the curtain on Hollywood Park's summer meeting before a crowd estimated at 41,500, California's chestnut wonder cracked the old mark of 2:39 4/5, set in 1949 by the Maine Chance Farm's Ace Admiral, at Santa Anita Park.

Reds Begin to Wilt In Heat of NL Race

Braves Extend Margin

By The Associated Press
The heat's on in the long-simmering National League pennant race and Cincinnati Redlegs look like the fall guys who get burned.

Talk around the league pegged the second-place Redlegs as a club living high on a day-to-day business with their home run power shielding a pitching staff on borrowed time. The dugout gossip is beginning to look good with Cincinnati starting to crack just when Milwaukee Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers are playing pennant ball.

The third-place Dodgers finally got to Brooks Lawrence, who was 3-0 against them for a 2-1 decision Wednesday night. Duke Snider's 25th home run in the ninth broke up a duel between Lawrence, now 14-2, and Don Newcombe, 14-5.

The defeat sent Cincinnati skidding 4½ games behind the first-place Braves who fattened up on the last-place New York Giants 7-4. Ex-Giant Bobby Thomson brought them from behind with a grand-slam home run.

Brooklyn and Milwaukee have four-game winning streaks, with the Braves winning 14 of their last 16 to boot. Dodgers, winning eight of their last 11, now are within 1½ games of Redlegs—who have blown a four-game edge over Brooklyn by losing five of nine in a week.

In the other NL games, Roberto Clemente gave Pittsburgh a story-book finish with a grand-slam, inside-the-park home run that beat Chicago Cubs 9-8 in the ninth inning. St. Louis Cardinals pushed across two in the 10th to beat Philadelphia 8-7.

In the American, southpaw Whitey Ford and New York Yankees put an end to Chicago's non-sense with a 10-1 breeze over the White Sox. Second-place Cleveland remained 8½ games behind Yankees, walloping Washington 11-3. Detroit tied Baltimore for fifth place, beating Orioles 6-2. Kansas City scored eight runs in the seventh to whack fourth-place Boston 9-4.

Pearce Defeated By Mexican
PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont. (CP)—In the surprise upset of the day, an unseeded sculler from Mexico City stroked to victory over double winner Jon Pearce of Hamilton. Leanders in the preliminary heats of the junior singles at the Royal Canadian Henley regatta Wednesday.

Roberto Retolaza, 26, who has never rowed outside Mexico before, took a fast four-length lead over Olympic trials winner Pearce, gave way to him in the body of the course, then spurred ahead at the finish to win by a good three lengths.

Joe Knew
NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Joe Louis said Tuesday the former heavyweight boxing champion had known for a month that something was wrong with his heart although at first he suspected he was suffering from an injured rib.

Louis, now a professional wrestler, was denied a licence by the Illinois Athletic Commission when a commission doctor reported Monday that the one-time Brown Bomber has a damaged heart.

Olympic Marksmen Top Skeet Entry Here

Frank Opsal and Earl Caldwell of Vancouver, named to represent Canada in Olympic trapshooting, will lead a strong field out to the Victoria Gun Club Aug. 4 and 5 for the B.C. skeet championships.

Opsal and Caldwell tied for first place in the 500-target singles at the Canadian championships in Calgary recently.

Opsal is the defending all-gauge B.C. champion. Frank Cooper, 410-gauge champion, and Len Parker, 20-gauge champ, will also defend their titles.

Leading Victoria shooters will be Ted Bailey, runner-up in several events last year.

Approximately 20 entries have been received from the State of Washington for the two-day tourney.

Shooting will commence at 9 each morning. There are five events: 410-gauge, 20-gauge, all-gauge, five-man team and high gun.

The shoot will be conducted in accordance with the rules of the National Skeet Shooting Association.

Curate 'Holidays' On English Test Team

LONDON (CP)—A 27-year-old Anglican curate takes a holiday from his religious duties to play for England in the fourth cricket test match against Australia opening at Birmingham today.

Rev. David Sheppard, a tall, broad-shouldered man who gave up first-class cricket for the church two years ago, was named to the England team at the beginning of the week.

He is the second cricket veteran to be called out of retirement to bolster the England batting during the current five-match series. Cyril Washbrook, 41-year-old Lancashire captain who had not played test cricket for five years, was the hero of the third test at Leeds earlier this month when England won by an innings and 42 runs.

The two countries now are tied with a victory apiece, Australia taking the second match at Lords. The first ended in a draw. Victory in the fourth test would clinch the Ashes, symbolic of cricket supremacy, for England, the current holders. Australia, as challenger, must register an outright series victory to take the Ashes.

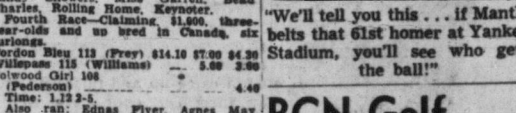

Sheppard was being groomed to take over the mantle as England's foremost batsman from Leonard Hutton and Dennis Compton. He broke into first-class cricket with Sussex and had scored a double century and two other centuries for the county team before he was 21.

In 1952 he scored his first century as a member of an England team and the same year topped the first-class batting averages.

Here's Proof...

NASH RAMBLER HIGHEST TRADE-IN

Official figures* prove 1955 Ramblers return $90-$100 more than comparable models of "Big 3"

The 1956 Spring edition of the National Used Car Guide lists the trade-in values of all makes of automobiles sold in Canada... and the Nash Rambler is shown as having the highest trade-in value in its class, $90 to $100 higher than all other cars in the low priced field. Yes, the world's safest automobile has the highest trade-in value.

When you buy Nash Rambler you buy not only the strongest, safest car ever made in Canada, you also get the car with the highest trade-in value in the low priced field. Worth considering next time you buy a car.

RAMBLER '56...WORTH MORE TODAY...AND TOMORROW, TOO!

This is the new, "Safety-Styled" King Size Rambler. And King-Size it is, with the accent on safety and roominess. The brilliant 1956 Nash Rambler has room where it really counts—on the inside. But there's more to it than a King-Size interior. It features Double-Safe, All-Welded construction...

new Typhoon Engine with increased horsepower... increased economy... new 50% larger brakes... Deep Coil Springs on all four wheels... greater manoeuvrability... and Rambler's already famous Airliner Reclining Seats, Twin Travel Beds, and Weather Eye Heating and Ventilating System.

AIRCOS LOSE HUGHES

Willie Rejoins United Friday

With Willie Hamilton back from his holidays and Art Hughes sitting out a transfer waiting period in Vancouver, Victoria United is looking toward its Coast Soccer League game against North Shore Aircoas at Athletic Park Friday night with more enthusiasm than they've shown for weeks.

Speedy Hughes, who was one of the prime factors in Aircoas' 6-0, 6-3, defeats of United in the first half of the summer schedule, is transferring to Halcos, and must sit out the weekend.

Replacing Hughes at centre-forward will be Tom Cooper, while the rest of the Aircoas' lineup will be the same as the one that put them in third place in the first-half standings.

Hamilton will take over his old left-half position, while Dave Guthrie will take over at centre-half.

In goal for United will be Archie McMillan, while Bill Hope and Joe Robbins will be fullbacks. Other half is Harold Holroyd, while Ced Robb, George Wright, Tom Druce, Timmy Walker and Ken Hilbert will form the forward unit. Spares are Harry Carruthers, Joe Hillhouse, John Pickburn, Willie McMillan and Cec Harrison.

Game time is 8.15.

LOGART VICTOR

CHICAGO (AP)—Isaac Logart, the cute Cuban from Camaguey, slicing cuts near both eyes of game Jed Black, Wednesday night decided on a unanimous 10-round decision and stretched his winning streak through 10 fights.

Leo Rejects Two Offers

NEW YORK (AP)—Leo Durocher disclosed Tuesday night he has rejected managerial offers from two major league clubs since resigning as manager of New York Giants last September.

The famous "Lip," making his first visit to the Polo Grounds since he severed his connections with baseball, declined to identify the clubs except to say that both were in the National League.

"They were wonderful offers, too," Durocher said. "They told me to write my own ticket, but I wasn't tempted."

B.C. Girl Swims 15 Miles In First Strait Attempt

Boisterous Juan de Fuca Strait took two marathon swimmers out of the running in attempts to swim to Port Angeles Wednesday.

Former Vancouver airline employee Billie Benedict, 26, gave up a trial effort—her first—after swimming an estimated 15 miles which took her to within nine miles of the Washington shore.

The girl was making her first distance swim after a week's training in local waters. She stayed in from 3:16 p.m., when she left Macaulay Point, to 9:16, when she gave up in the face of wind-whipped water about a mile past the international boundary.

Persistent Saanich swimmer Bill Muir, making his ninth try at swimming the strait—his fourth this year—was in the water about four hours, 50 minutes, in a swim from Saxe Point to a spot about a quarter mile northeast of Albert Head.

MISSED TIDE
Rough water and the fact that the swimmer missed the tide he was expecting forced a halt to the attempt.

Miss Benedict and her navigator, Alf Webb, were enthusiastic with the girl's trial effort.

"She's a good swimmer. She'll get across there if I can get her on the proper tide," said Webb. "We weren't getting anywhere, so I brought her out. I've never seen anyone in such good shape when she came out," he commented.

Webb has played a leading part in navigating attempts by local swimmers for more than a year.

"I felt wonderful," the swimmer said today. "It was quite a big thing for me; I wanted to see what I could do. I know now what I'm up against in the Strait.

TRY AGAIN

"As soon as Alf Webb says the tides are good, I'll go again." The girl has had the swim in the back of her mind all summer and was anxious to give it a try. She had never done any distance swimming before, she said, but is a former swimming instructor, having worked at Crystal Garden about nine years ago and in California, where she worked for 1½ years.

She weighs 162 pounds, about 30 pounds above her normal weight, and stands five feet, seven inches.

Apparently well-suited to resist the 51-degree water, Miss Benedict climbed aboard the navigating boat virtually without aid.

The girl was born in Atlin and attended Cedar Hill Primary and Mount Douglas High schools here. She left Victoria about five years ago.

Muir expects to make his 10th attempt on Juan de Fuca before the end of the month and was to plan with navigator Bud Phillips tonight.

"The tide wasn't quite as strong as we had hoped and we missed it by a little. Then the wind came up and raised a two or three-foot chop. We were dead off Albert Head."

He said they could see from that point farther into the Strait where the water was very rough.

Muir's course was intended to follow the shoreline as closely as possible from Saxe Point to Albert Head, then cut straight across to Port Angeles. He started at 3:59 p.m.

(BB PLUS) "JOHNNY CONCHO" (Odeon)—This story of arrogant Johnny Concho, a cowardly free-loader in Cripple Creek, Ariz. of 1875, who kept the town in a state of subjection only because he was the brother of feared gunslinger Red Concho, is, in spots, packed with drama and interest. Unfortunately too many crooks spoiled the broth.

Most commendable thing about "Johnny Concho" are the story, an adult affair based on psychology instead of gunfire and million-mile rides, and bit characterization. As well as playing the title role Sinatra also produced the film. And it would be difficult to say whether he was responsible for the over-long pauses as the camera flickered from grim-faced citizen to grim-faced citizen or director Don McGuire.

This was the main weakness of "Johnny Concho." It was too studied. It was played-acting instead of "living." It created unreality instead of reality. But for this lapse the film might have approached the same bracket as "High Noon" or "Shane."

SOMEWHERE the psychology went adrift. It was too difficult to believe that 190

AIRPLANE RIDE CREDITED WITH COUGH 'CURE'

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—An airplane ride is credited with curing Karen Davidson, seven, of a severe attack of whooping cough.

On medical advice, Karen's mother, Mrs. Jerry Davidson, took the girl up in a plane. At 7,000 feet the child began to cough and got rid of the liquid in her lungs.

After reaching 10,000 feet, pilot Sam Perry brought the plane down and upon reaching the ground Karen seemed to be much better. Her father reports that she continues to improve.

Woman Saved Twice From Burning Home

(From The Canadian Press)

VANCOUVER—Seventeen-year-old Bill Hill of Surrey fought off a vicious dog to pull an elderly woman from her burning home here twice Wednesday.

Hill, digging a ditch for a telephone pole support in lane, noticed flame shooting from the roof of the home of Mrs. J. Doughty.

He found the elderly woman rushing in and out of the house. "She had a hose and she said she could put out the fire herself," Hill said. "She kept talking about her dog, and running into the house. The dog was out in the yard."

The young telephone worker said he twice pulled Mrs. Doughty from the house while the dog snapped at his ankles. The house was destroyed.

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED

VANCOUVER—John Liver, 21, was killed Wednesday night when the motorcycle he was driving collided with a car driven by Gordon Gibson, 18, of West Vancouver, in Vancouver's south end.

An unidentified girl, reported to be from Portage la Prairie, Man., was taken to hospital with a possible fractured left leg and hip injuries. She was riding with Liver.

OGOPOGO FROLICS

KELOWNA—The monster Ogopogo was seen basking in the blue waters of Lake Okanagan about three-quarters of a mile offshore from here Wednesday.

And you can take the word of G. A. Smith, Toronto, that Ogo is not a myth. His wife Dorothy and four children, along with about 20 other people bathing in the water, are also convinced there is a lake serpent.

"He had four dark green coils, said Mr. Smith. "His head seemed to be under water, and we watched him for a good five minutes."

HOSPITAL CUTS WAGES

KAMLOOPS—Directors of the Royal Inland Hospital here expect a deficit in the hospital budget at the end of this year, following a reduction in the number of patient days paid for by B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

The service has reduced the number from 58,000 in 1955 to 56,100 this year.

SOCKEYE REACH FRASER

NEW WEST MINSTER—More than 400 gillnetters patrolled the Fraser River Wednesday as the big Chilco River run hit the river.

Observers estimated the average catch to be 100 sockeye to the boat.

GAS DECISION STICKS

VANCOUVER—The Public Utilities Commission decided Wednesday not to reconsider its decision on natural gas distribution in Prince George.

It ruled May 23 that Prince George consumers must contribute to the overall cost of Inland Natural Gas Company's supply line.

JAILBREAKERS SENTENCED

JOKE OR NOT, WOMAN'S GOT 1 LIVE COW

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—

Mrs. J. M. Marshall, Jr., mother of three growing children recently left her milkman this note:

"The way we drink milk, we feel it is best for you just to leave 1 (one) cow instead of our normal delivery."

Wednesday, the milkman, with nary a smile, delivered a Jersey cow and a bill for $400.

Appended was a note that the Marshalls could return the cow if they weren't satisfied. That seemed the likely course.

BLOW AT GRACIOUS LIFE

$100,000 Trust Fund Idle; 'Gentlewomen' Unavailable

VANCOUVER (CP)—A $100,000 trust fund is lying idle because "gentlewomen" born in the United Kingdom are no longer interested in learning how to handle Royal Doulton china or how to sit in ladderback chairs.

This tale of the decline and fall of gracious living came to light in British Columbia Supreme Court here before Mr. Justice T. W. Brown.

On behalf of a trust company, Reginald H. Tupper sought approval to transfer $70,000 from Queen Mary's Coronation Hostel to a Vancouver foundation. The hostel, founded in 1913 so that gentlewomen could live there while learning practical household work and service, was endowed with $100,000 by Lord Strathcona.

But by 1954 there were not enough people to use the help available, officials said. The hostel was closed and the Doulton china and rush-bottomed chairs were auctioned.

Mr. Tupper suggested a new scheme whereby the fund would assist needy girls and women from the United Kingdom seeking employment in B.C. Mr. Justice Brown requested Mr. Tupper to draw up an order along the lines he had proposed.

Battle Over New Vancouver Span Sparked by Delay in Two Piers

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Legislative Reporter

A battle is going on in Vancouver over who is responsible for a five-months delay in construction of two supporting piers for the new $16,000,000 Second Narrows bridge in Vancouver.

Construction of two supporting piers, to be situated on the old bridge company's property on the north shore, has been held up since February because permission to build has not been granted by the federal transport board.

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi has denied that the provincial government engineers are to blame for the delay.

But a highways official stated last week that department engineers had neglected to seek permission from the transport board.

DECISION SOON
Deputy Highways Minister Evan Jones said today the matter is now before the transport board and he expects a decision soon.

Mr. Gagliardi supported the contention of his consulting engineers that the blame rests with the Burrard Inlet Tunnel Bridge Co., operators of the old Second Narrows Bridge.

He said that as soon as the government learned the bridge company would not allow work to proceed on piers 5 and 6 it moved to get formal permission.

Mayor Charles Cates of North Vancouver said that present plans are to continue operating the old bridge and that tolls will be reduced below those of the new bridge.

Commented Mr. Gagliardi: "I don't care what they charge. They can run it free for all I care. All I hope is that it doesn't fall down before our new bridge is completed."

Col. W. G. Swan, designer and consulting engineer on the new bridge, has charged that the Burrard Inlet Tunnel and Bridge Co., operators of the old bridge, is responsible for the delay.

"In the case of piers 5 and 6, which still haven't been started, we were ordered off their property when we started to drill for tests of the substructure," Col. Swan said.

"They could very easily have given us an unofficial okay to proceed with the piers while awaiting a ruling from the transport board," he said.

Canoeists Start Trip

WINNIPEG (CP)—An adventurous quartet left here Tuesday by plane for the Nelson River and a 400-mile canoe trip along an early route taken by Hudson's Bay Co. personnel in bringing furs from York Factory in the north.

For two of the four—A. H. J. Lovink, Netherlands ambassador to Canada, and Eric Morse, executive director of the Association of Canadian Clubs, Ottawa—it will be the sixth summer they have spent following the trails of early explorers.

Other two in the party are Tyler Thomson of the American embassy in Ottawa and Frank DeLaute, secretary to the governor-general, both making their first trip.

The latest trip will take them down the Nelson River, the Hayes into God's Lake, back to Hayes at Oxford House, down the Carrot River to Walker Lake, to Cross Lake and up the Nelson.

IN CITY DIVORCE CASE

'Peep-Holers' Lied, Says Judge

Tops In Teens

A summertime feature, Tops in Teens, will look to focus the spotlight on Victoria and district teenagers who are representative of the great majority of our fine young people.

80-Pound Lad Real Worker

ON SATURDAYS Jimmy Roach's bundle of newspapers weighs almost as much as he does.

Fourteen years old, he's been too busy to grow much and he tips the scales at 80 pounds. Yet he services 82 customers on his Times route in Glanford area and he never stops smiling.

THOUGH SMALL, he's husky and he figures to make a place on a bantam hockey team this winter. It's a toss-up whether he likes hockey or fishing best. He recently spent a two-week spell fishing up-Island and landed 20 salmon.

"Biggest was 12 pounds," he says. He enters grade nine at Colquitz Junior High School this fall, aims to be an architect and likes industrial arts. His father is an engineer which may explain the leaning.

HE WAS PICKED as a Times Top Teen because of his dedication to please his customers. He got his big route after proving himself on smaller ones. Efficiency in news circulation is a family tradition also subscribed to by brother Henry, 17, a sub-manager, and little brother George, 12, who is also a carrier.

Jimmie has won his way on carrier-boy trips to Seattle, Parksville and Port Angeles and has taken home prizes and ace salesman crests repeatedly.

HE TURNS OVER MONEY from his route to his Mom at home at 970 Burnside, paid for most of his own bike and buys his own clothes. When Jimmie passes by, people think, "He looks like a heckuva nice kid."

MECHANIZED HOUSEHOLDS Norway's 900,000 housewives bought 600,000 electrical household appliances in the last five years.

Two investigators in a divorce case were charged by Mr. Justice Harry J. Sullivan in a written judgment filed in Supreme Court Tuesday of "committing perjury."

The judge said this was his main reason for refusing the divorce petition of PO Thomas M. Little and awarding the custody of three children to Mrs. Geraldine Little.

He also ordered the sailor to pay all costs of the divorce proceedings.

Mr. Justice Sullivan noted that the only witnesses called in support of the specific charges were Gordon Murray Dunnett, a private detective, and Gerald Fiddick, a part-time detective and real estate agent.

BELIEVED WIFE
His Lordship said he did not believe the evidence of the two men, and accepted the evidence of Mrs. Little.

"My acceptance of her evidence as against that of the investigators Dunnett and Fiddick means that I have found confirmation . . . that both of these witnesses committed perjury before the court," he said.

"Counsel for the petitioner," said the judge, "who called these men as witnesses was embarrassed by and apologized for the spectacle presented by the witness Dunnett, and for the disparities between his evidence and that of his junior partner, Fiddick."

His Lordship said during the trial, on more than one occasion he found it necessary to curb the "enthusiasm" of Dunnett, "to remind him that he was under oath, and to indicate that he was a court of law and therefore not in charge of the proceedings."

Referring to Gerald Fiddick, the judge said that he supplemented "his earnings as a real estate salesman and accepted a fee of $1.25 per hour for the time which he spends supporting the 'peep-hole' activities of his superior officer, the above-mentioned Gordon Murray Dunnett."

COME TO SENSES
"I feel sure that without the encouragement of such agencies as represented by people like 'private eye' Gordon Murray Dunnett," the justice added, "the petitioner might have come to his senses eventually and this Canadian family become reunited and happy as they should be."

Mr. Justice Sullivan was equally as critical of the petitioner for taking the proceedings against his wife and naming his former friend John McDonald of Victoria as co-respondent.

His Lordship noted that for a long time the petitioner and Mrs. McDonald were "bosom" friends. "They drank together at various service clubs and canteens and elsewhere," he said. "Each had a strong affinity for rum and beer and the evidence justifies assignment of the slang appellation of 'lush' to each of them."

The judge related that a happy state of affairs existed until the petitioner became suspicious of his wife and his friend.

BEER FOR HANGOVER
The rift between the two men reached a climax, the justice said, when McDonald appeared one morning with a few bottles of beer for the petitioner.

Little ordered McDonald out of the house, the judge said, and McDonald promptly left taking the beer with him.

"This inconsiderate act of the co-respondent of depriving the petitioner of the reputed medicinal properties of those few bottles of beer upon a morning of acute hangover, probably has greater significance than any other element of this unfortunate story," said Mr. Justice Sullivan.

Overdue Americans Spark V.I. Search, Return Safely

An American couple and their two daughters Wednesday night sparked the biggest search to be carried out on the West Coast in recent months when their 16-foot clinker-built boat developed trouble in waters off Vancouver Island.

Five tugboats, two RCAF planes and more than 200 men hunted the water separating the mainland from the island when the small craft failed to return to Parksville after a 15-mile trip to Mistaken Island.

Object of the search were Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Offley and their two daughters, about eight years old, of Springfield, Oregon.

They were due to arrive back in Parksville at 9:30 Wednesday night. Engine trouble kept them from arriving at their destination until shortly after 3 a.m. today.

The Offleys were unaware of the search and failed to inform anyone of their return to Parksville.

Meanwhile, the RCAF had dispatched a crash boat from its Comox base on Vancouver Island at 3:25 a.m. and a Canoe from the Sea Island base near Vancouver at 4:17 a.m.

The air force was not notified of the American family's safe return until after 6 a.m.

More than 70 men were active in the search, with another 150 persons involved in co-ordination of the concentrated hunt.

Alberni Boy Vanishes; Takes Savings

An 11-year-old boy who vanished from his Alberni home Tuesday morning with all his savings—close to $40—in his pockets, is sought by island police forces today.

David Welch is described as four feet, 10 inches tall, slight build, with brown hair and hazel eyes.

When he disappeared at 10 a.m. Tuesday he was wearing a striped T-shirt, blue jeans and brown shoes.

RCMP at Alberni said today they are checking local schoolhouse haunts in case he has not left the district, but his mother believes he may have headed toward Vancouver.

There is no organized police search underway but all forces on the island have been alerted.

Sproat Lake Project Brings New Protests

SPROAT LAKE (CP)—Ratepayers here continue to oppose proposed development of Sproat Lake by the B.C. Power Commission.

Despite the commission's intention to reduce the operating range of the lake level, a recent meeting of the ratepayers moved to protest the power scheme through letters to the provincial water controller.

The commission plans to use Sproat Lake as a water course in the flow of water from Great Central Lake to Sproat River for power purposes.

Originally the commission had announced the lake level would vary from seven to 10 feet above low water mark, but it was announced July 17 it would be from five to eight feet, in deference to property owners on the lake shore who sought a lower level.

Gulf Island Vote On New Hospital

Money By-Law Goes to Property Owners Saturday for $98,825

GANGES—Property owners of the Gulf Islands will vote Saturday on a money by-law to borrow $98,825 for building and equipping a new hospital at Ganges to replace the Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital.

Total cost of the building will be $272,485, but the provincial and federal governments will make up the balance of the sum over that provided by the hospital improvement district if the by-law carries.

Mrs. Warren Hastings, chairman of the hospital board, has been conducting a campaign through the islands this week to explain the hospital scheme.

A similar vote was taken Dec. 8, but was rejected by a narrow margin. Two-thirds of the votes cast must be affirmative for the by-law to carry.

Proposed plan for the building shows a 24-bed, one-story concrete building, with all modern facilities and surgical conveniences. Site for the building is at Ganges, overlooking Ganges Harbor.

Tax required to pay off the by-law loan would be less than two mills the first year, Mrs. Hastings said, and likely would drop each following year.

Chief returning officer is Maurice Atkins of Ganges. Deputy returning officers and polling places are as follows:

Ganges, at Mahon Hall, Edwin Worthington and Edwin Parsons.

Fulford, at Community Hall, Mrs. Ida M. McManus.

North Pender, at Community Hall, E. Sedgwick.

South Pender, at Pritchard's Hall, Edmund Pritchard.

North Galiano, at residence of Mrs. Violet D. Baines.

South Galiano, at Community Hall, Mrs. Phyllis S. Parmenter.

Mayne, at Mayne Island Community Hall, George Maynard.

Saturna, at Community Hall, James E. Money.

Czechs Cut Army PRAGUE (Reuters)—Czechoslovakia announced today that she is reducing the strength of her army by 70,000 men—the second cut in her forces in 12 months.

Island Log, Sawmill Jobs Getting Scarce

DUNCAN—Job applications and layoffs are common in the logging and sawmill industries here, in marked contrast to the almost full employment and shortage of workers earlier in the month.

R. S. Robinson, manager of the Duncan office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, said in his monthly report that skilled loggers are being placed, but that sawmill work is scarce.

"Little encouragement is given to those interested in sawmill work," he said. "Orders for employees in this industry are practically nil."

Western Forest Industries Ltd., which laid off its night shift of 85 sawmill workers at Honeymoon Bay because of a logging camp work stoppage, has shown no sign of recalling its men.

The construction picture in this area has not, as yet, shown the expected labor demand, while inquiries continue to be made in connection with the pulp mill construction project at Crofton, Mr. Robinson reported. It is estimated that the building to house construction and administrative personnel at Crofton will be completed in about two months.

H. E. Fowler & Sons Ltd., Victoria, has started work on the South Cowichan High School near Mill Bay. This project will cost just under $250,000. It is expected that plans soon will be ready on which tenders will be called for a six-room elementary school in Duncan. The general contractors will have completed their part on additions to schools at Glenora and Sahtlam this week.

Greater activity in real estate continues with a definite lack of dwellings for sale, so that the demand is not being satisfied. Rentals also are scarce throughout this area, it is reported.

Proposed subdivisions may improve the general situation in the distant future, but there is no immediate relief in sight and many construction workers scheduled to arrive in this area will be unable to bring their families.

Salmon Available In Gulf of Alaska

NANAIMO—Salmon can be found "almost anywhere" in the Gulf of Alaska, Pacific Biological Station scientists said on their return from a voyage on the seiner Key West II to sample North Pacific waters.

"You can set nets almost anywhere in the gulf and get salmon," said George T. Taylor.

A two-week trip and catches at eight stations yielded 170 salmon of various sizes and species.

In all Canada, only the mountain valleys of B.C. have that rare combination of rich, fertile land, plentiful sparkling mountain waters, and incessant sunshine, so essential to the growing of the very best fresh fruits. Couple this with the "know how" of Canada's most modern and up-to-date fruit growers, and the result is fruit of distinctive and surpassing flavor and goodness—the very best available, regardless of source.

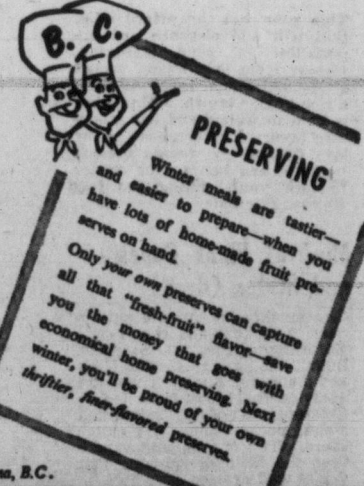

All B.C. Mountain Grown tree fruits are identified with this hallmark on the end of the box. So... if you want the best when you're buying fresh fruit, be sure to look for this hallmark... it means finer flavor—finer quality. It means the best fresh fruit your money can buy... worth looking for—worth waiting for!

IT'S TIME FOR B.C. APRICOTS

... now in full supply at your favorite store. This year B.C. APRICOTS are larger than usual and the quality and flavor are excellent. The crop is about the same as last year, so there'll be plenty of delicious B.C. APRICOTS at reasonable prices.

Peak of the season for home preserving is right now... so plan your APRICOT preserving right away!

Fontana-Richardson; Bedard-Flam Meet in Davis Cup Singles

By BILL RAYNER

Canada's Don Fontana will meet Ham Richardson of the U.S. Friday afternoon at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club in the first singles match of the Davis Cup tie between the two countries.

The second singles match Friday will pit Canada's top tennis star, Bob Bedard, against Herb Flam of the U.S., winner of the national clay courts championship in Chicago Monday.

Draw for the singles was made by Mayor Percy Scurrah in the City Hall council chambers this morning while both teams and members of the Davis Cup committee looked on.

After non-playing captains Bill Talbert of the U.S. and Jim Skelton of Canada put their choices into a convenient trophy, Mayor Scurrah first drew Richardson's name. He followed with Fontana, Bedard and Flam.

Bedard's name was then drawn out of the trophy once more, and he will meet Richardson Sunday in the third singles match. Fontana and Flam are then automatically opponents in the final singles match Sunday.

COULD CHANGE

Sunday's singles pairings are open to change, with the mutual consent of the team captains. Talbert and Skelton also named their doubles combinations for the doubles match Saturday, also subject to change up to one hour before game time.

Talbert named Ron Holmberg and Barry MacKay, the two youngsters making their first Davis Cup appearance, to meet Skelton's choice of Bedard and Montane.

The other two members of Canada's team, Lawrence Barclay and Paul Willey, will not see action unless Skelton changes his mind about his doubles and final day singles choices.

CONTENTED SMILES

The luck of the draw that put Flam against Bedard in the second singles match brought smiles of content to the faces of the Canadian officials.

It is felt that Bedard will have his best chance against the muscular Flam, eighth-ranked nationally in the U.S. Flam, coming directly from clay courts in Chicago, was reported having a little trouble adjusting to the grass championship courts at VLTBC.

"It was a good draw," said Canadian captain Skelton after the names were announced. "I am quite satisfied with the pairings. They couldn't have been better."

NO DIFFERENCE

The hopeful aura that has pervaded the Canadian camp all week that a major upset was possible, was completely lost on Talbert after the draw this morning.

"It made no difference who met whom," said the non-playing captain. "We're satisfied either way."

Talbert's choice of his two untried youngsters for the Saturday doubles was an indication that the U.S. team was not too worried about Canada.

The winner of this cup-tie, the American Zone north section final, will meet the south section winner, Mexico, in Rye, New York, early in August in the American Zone final.

Ticket sales are brisk for the three-day event, and a near-capacity crowd of 1,500 is expected to be on hand for the first two days. Tickets, on sale at Eaton's music centre, can be purchased for $1.50, $2.00, $2.50 or $3.00 for one day. Three-day series prices are 4.00, 5.00, 6.50 and $8.00.

Matches will start at 1.45 p.m. daily. Saturday's doubles match will be preceded by a preliminary event.

BETWEEN TIMES ON VACATION WITH MONTE ROBERTS

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

An American tourist lost $300 in traveler's cheques Wednesday to a thief who pilfered his wallet from a city auto court.

R. P. Mathews, Yale, Ill., told police he awoke to see a man removing his pants through his cabin window at the Windsor Auto Court.

His pants were discovered later outside, but his wallet, containing the cheques, was gone.

Two Victorians and one Duncan man are among 250 Canadian telephone technicians being trained in Montreal for duties at radar stations on the Mid-Canada Line.

They are D. R. Stevens and William Sowler, Victoria, and Christian Gunnlaugson Jr. of Duncan.

Training will include arctic survival. Duties at the radar posts will be to co-ordinate electronic apparatus, and keep it in working order.

A $28,000 auto supply building will be constructed at 2116 Douglas by Stewart-Warner Sales Co. Ltd. Building permit was issued at City Hall for one-story premises of concrete block construction. Farmer Construction Co. will be contractor and design was by Clack, Clayton, Pickstone.

Funeral services for the late Lt.-Cmdr. L. G. "Bill" Clayards, who died Tuesday in Ottawa, will be held Monday at 2.30 p.m. at McCall's chapel with full naval honors.

The service will be followed by cremation.

A former Oak Bay deputy police chief, the 33-year-old officer was appointed to the directorate of naval intelligence at RCN headquarters in Ottawa last year.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Having read one of Wallace Reburn's London Letters recently, I am curious to know how much a Canadian citizen in Canada would forfeit in taxes should he sell a play to Hollywood for $100,000.—J.H.

A.—It is impossible to answer your question by stating a specific sum. Not even an income tax official could give such a statement unless he knew what other income tax the author paid, and he also would need to know whether the tax on the play would be paid all in one year or under the election clause of the act would be spread over two or more years. The tax is dependent on the author's regular income tax computed apart from the tax on the play. There are cases which might not be called on to pay any tax on a play or novel.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times' "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Wind Switch Saves Homes In Fire Path

Belongings Moved To Island Beach

A change of wind Wednesday was all that saved two homes on Mudge Island, near Nanaimo, from going up in flames in a forest fire, the office of D. B. Taylor, district forester, said today.

The only permanent residents of the 900-acre island, Mr. and Mrs. J. Rolph, and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Stone, moved belongings to the beach and watched as a 25-acre blaze swept toward their homes.

The fire turned away as the wind veered.

More than 35 men fought the fire, and aided by the shift in wind direction, kept it from jumping False Narrows and endangering larger Gabriola Island, less than one-quarter mile away.

Mr. Taylor, head of the Vancouver Forest District that includes Vancouver Island, warned today that a slight increase in humidity "done little good," and that British Columbia's fire threat is "really dangerous."

Weather officials say there is no rain in sight.

Nine fires were burning on Vancouver Island today, although 13 have been reported since Wednesday. Over the whole of the Vancouver Forest District there are 15 fires burning.

FORMER OPERATOR of a Victoria jewelry store, F. W. J. Kenton, recently piloted an RCAF helicopter in the Arctic to a Canadian endurance record, the air force announced today. Non-stop, 335-mile flight was made near Hudson Bay with F. O. J. Singleton of Fernie, B.C., as navigator. Kenton operated Kenton's Jewelry Store, Yates Street, for four years after the end of the last war. He joined the RCAF in 1950.

SAYS 'GOSH'

Old News Good News For John

Three telegrams got through to bush-maraoned John Gilliland late Wednesday and he learned belatedly that he was B.C.'s most famous high school graduate.

After he was named winner of the Governor-General's silver medal, highest matriculation marksman in history and winner of $400 in scholarships, it became impossible to give him the news.

Working at Sarita River Logging Division of MacMillan and Bloedel beyond Port Alberni, he was harder to contact than a movie star on honeymoon.

He had bedded early due to forest regulations which meant he had to arise at 3 a.m. Wednesday and didn't return from the woods until 1 p.m.

Even then, the telegrams from relatives didn't tell all the story.

Speaking to the Times long distance he uttered a "gosh" or two, said he was "rather happy" when informed of the marks he received.

John, now 17, is thinking of a career in science, "maybe nuclear physics." He credited his teachers with his win and felt his record 97.3 exam average was helped by a study schedule of two or three hours a night.

4 BROTHERS VISITING

City Railroader Bound for Siding

By PETE LOUDON

An old Victoria railroader will be switched to a quiet siding Friday.

Workers at Point Ellice CNR roundhouse will gather to present a purse to veteran locomotive foreman James R. Walker, who will end 34 years service, 32 of them in Victoria.

Taking part in the event will be his four brothers, railroaders all, who have gathered together from other parts of Canada for the first time since 1919.

All told, their CNR service totals 202 years.

First there is Ross Walker, already retired after 50 years service. He was a CNR machinist at Dauphin, Man. He retired at 65, two years ago, and is holder of a gold (life-time) pass.

Jim, who retires Thursday, is next in line of seniority. He is 65.

Tom is 56, has 37 years' service and still works as a conductor. He says he is the black sheep, being the only non-machinist in the family. He works out of Prince Albert, Sask.

Brother Frank also has 37 years' service. He is a locy foreman at Brandon, Man., and is 54 years old.

Bill, assistant foreman at North Battleford, Sask., has served the CNR for 44 of his 59 years.

COME NATURALLY

Railroading came easy to the Walkers. They had the example set by their dad, William A. Walker, who died in 1923, started firing when he was 14 and became the senior engineer of the railway. He brought the first locomotive from Winnipeg to Portage la Prairie.

Friday's presentation will be made by A. B. Stuart, CNR boilermaker. R. A. Bell, transport assistant has charge of arrangements.

Meantime the five brothers are reminiscing and wrangling mightily over remote points of railroading history. Only one of the boys brought his wife out to the coast.

Mrs. Frank Walker says she suspects she was brought along to gain entry for the quintette to the posher "ladies and escorts" sections of various local entertainment centres.

"It's quieter and they can argue more comfortably without the noise of the men's side," she explains.

Heather Duncan Tops City Dancers At Portland Games

Top Victoria winner at highland games in Portland, Ore., last weekend, was Heather Duncan, 17, daughter of dancing instructor Mrs. Adeline Duncan and piper Ian Duncan.

Heather won three firsts, a second and a third in five open events.

Other Victoria dancers who placed in their classes were Janet Klunk, Lynn Williams, Lola Brown, Margaret Brown, Tanis Troy, Dennis Underwood and Angus McKenzie.

Piper James Troy placed in piping events under 16 years. The Greater Victoria Schools Pipe Band piped in the colors, to open the games.

Local dancers and pipers who competed in Portland will also attend Victoria's highland games at Macdonald Park this Saturday.

Cabinet Stalls 6-Day Shopping For Victoria

Staff Being Increased For Voting Machinery

By NORMAN CRIBBENS, Times Legislative Reporter

Action Expected At Next Session

A city bid for legal six-day shopping has been stalled by the provincial cabinet, at least until the next session of the legislature.

Mayor Percy Scurrah said today he has received a letter from Provincial Secretary Wesley Black.

It states the cabinet has given "serious consideration" to the Victoria request that six-day shopping should be permitted by order-in-council instead of being submitted to the legislature as an amendment to the Shops Regulation and Holiday Act.

"It is the considered opinion of the executive council that it is much wiser to consider your proposal in relation to the whole rather than deal with the problem in a piecemeal manner at this time," Mr. Black wrote.

"I am disappointed," said the mayor.

"It rules out improved shopping hours for the tourists this season," he added.

REVISE OLD ACT
He felt the government decision stemmed from a heavy demand for revision of the old act. He said it is about 25 years old.

"It means the government will consider the whole matter at the next session and probably bring in legislation dealing with it."

The brief was submitted to council by the Six Day Shopping Week Committee of Victoria, chaired by J. Harold Wilson. It represents at least 80 licensed city business houses including vendors of leather goods, confections, newspapers and magazines, clothing, jewelry, notions, stationery, pharmacies, hardware, flowers, antiques and the city's two largest department stores.

The stores wish to remain open Wednesday afternoons.

The brief also was endorsed by 12 professional and business organizations here and the Joint Council of Retail Employees of Victoria, with the proviso that employees would have a five-day working week regardless of the extended hours.

THE BEST USE BOATS
None of the leading marathon swimmers would ever go out in training, or in a swim, without an accompanying boat.

To swim a proper crawl stroke is one of the delights of the water. With the crawl, you can swim farther faster, taking much less out of yourself than by any other method.

A common fault of the average crawl swimmer is throwing the head from side to side. This causes headaches and neck cramps. And, in a very short distance, such a swimmer is lagged out. The remedy: turn the head for breathing purposes to either side, depending which seems the easier for you, but definitely breathe on one side only. Roll the neck to turn the head. Don't jerk it.

Another common fault is to fight the water. The swimmer beats a heavy tattoo on the surface with arms and legs in a frantic attempt to achieve speed. All our Lakeshore Club swimmers, sprinters and marathoners alike, are relaxed to enable them to gain great momentum. Relaxation is very important in crawl stroke swimming. Don't be tense.

JOIN A CLUB

We would advise those who who want to become proficient in swimming to join any of the clubs, the YMCA or the YWCA, under a competent instructor.

You need not wait till fall. Summer courses are available. But if you can't take instruction now, start in the autumn. Meanwhile—follow safety rules.

SAFETY IN SWIMMING

By MARILYN BELL and GUS BYDER

Water safety includes the proper way to swim. On your first swim of the season, don't attempt to go half a mile.

Take it easy. Wait for a few days before trying to swim any distance, either out to that dock 100 yards away, or that diving platform 200 yards out, or that seawall half a mile off. You would probably get there. But remember—you have to come back.

Never swim away from shore without a boat unless your swim is supervised. Far better to swim parallel to the shore.

SHOPPING GUIDE

A New Gold Color Coat To Restore or Change Shoes

By PENNY SAVER

I have a pair of gold evening shoes that were a constant source of worry every time I wore them, because once marked, permanently marked. I put an end to my worries, though, after using a new gold shoe colorcoat. My gold shoes which I was afraid would become duller and duller, are shiny and just like new again. After cleaning the shoes well, you brush the fluid onto the leather in even strokes with the applicator. Let it dry for an hour, and if necessary, repeat, but usually one coat will do. The liquid restores or changes the colors and surfaces of smooth leathers. In a box comes a bottle of liquid, an applicator, and an envelope of gold powder which is added to the liquid. Shake well and use. It costs 35 cents, complete.

Little girls' duster coats that can be worn prettily over the frothiest party dress or her favorite skirt and sweater, are available in one of Victoria's children's stores. In navy blue or powder pink, these dusters are made of whiz-washable linen. They are styled with full backs fashioned from a gathered yoke. Pockets, large and roomy, are attractively set far around the sides. The sleeves are cuffed, and four large white buttons lead to a playfully pointed collar. In sizes four to 6X, they are $7.95, and from seven to 14, $9.95.

For the little leaguers in town, there are baseball playsuits that will wash easily and keep their color. In grey, with red or maroon thin stripes all over, these suits have calf-length trousers with elasticized waists and cuffs, and short-sleeved shirts. There's even a peaked cap of matching heavy-duty cotton drill material. They have been sold almost as quickly as they have arrived, but there are size three's at $15.00 a set.

White cotton knit T-shirts with fly-away collars have insets of red and white or navy and white striped cotton at the neckline giving a nautical look to your summer outfit. Wear these shirts with shorts, pedal pushers or skirts for real comfort. They are $2.98 each.

Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to find any of the items mentioned here in the column.

It's Salad Week! Try These Simple Recipes

This year as its theme for Salad Week, July 26 to Aug. 4, the consumer section, Canada department of agriculture has chosen "Simplicity in Salads." It is hoped that everyone will join in the celebration and make it a year-round habit. To help you, here are ideas for simple individual salads—we will print one for every day of Salad Week. Serve these salads for lunch with a sandwich or for dinner as part of the main course. You can serve your own favorite dressings with them, or why not try the variations of French dressing that have been suggested to go with each salad? You will find both the salads and the dressing easy to make, easy to look at and wonderfully easy to eat! Here are your salads for tonight's supper and tomorrow's lunch:

TODAY

Start salad week off with a quick salad that everyone in the family will appreciate. Take big circles of cucumber, mild-flavored onion and tomato and overlap them on pretty side plates. Add large sprigs of parsley and pass French dressing that has been flavored with chopped hard-cooked egg and a touch of oregano.

FRIDAY

A fruit salad will be refreshing, especially in this warm weather. On crisp lettuce arrange an attractive mound of melon balls or cubes and colorful whole fresh berries. Or pile the berries inside a ring of cantaloupe that has been peeled and seeded then placed on a bed of shredded lettuce. Serve with dressing made from French dressing mixed with tart red jelly and a little liquid honey, or French dressing mixed with cottage cheese and honey.

Darlene Baird Becomes Bride Of D. Branson

In a recent summer ceremony in St. Aidan's United Church, Miss France Darlene Baird, daughter of Mrs. Anne Baird of Victoria and Mr. Hugh Baird of Haney, became the bride of Donald Bertram Branson, son of Mrs. Jessie Branson, 727 Pine Street, and the late Mr. B. Branson.

Rev. J. Lyn Clerihue performed the double-ring ceremony and Mrs. E. Sheldrick, cousin of the bride, was soloist and sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her cousin, Kenneth Beattie, was gowning in a white nylon net over satin bridal gown fashioned with a strapless bodice of French lace. She wore a matching lace jacket with sleeves tapering to lily points at the wrists. The bouffant skirt, posed over hoops, featured a front paneling appliqued with mother of pearl sequins.

Her fingertip veil of illusion net misted from a bonnet trimmed with seed pearls and lily of the valley. Her bouquet was of stephanotis and a large orchid. She wore a single strand of pearls, the groom's gift.

Matron of honor was the bride's twin sister, Mrs. Eileen Dunaway, and bridesmaid was Miss Betty Beattie, cousin of the bride. They were gowning alike in blue and pink waltz-length dresses of nylon net over satin with matching hats of pleated net. Their cascade bouquets were of deep pink and blue carnations. Flower girl, Cheryl Stewart, cousin of the bride, wore a yellow flowered nylon frock with pleated net bonnet. She carried a basket of mauve sweet peas and carnations.

Master David Stewart, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Best man was Wallace Dunaway, and ushers, Glen May and Cliff Compton.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother at 2806 Foul Bay Road, where the wedding party received guests in front of a flower-banked fireplace. The bride's table, covered with a hand-crocheted cloth, was centred with a three-tier cake in a mist of tulle dotted with pink rosebuds. Tall candles in silver holders completed the arrangement. Mason Sheldrick proposed the toast to the bride's future happiness.

Leaving for a motor trip to the interior of B.C. and into the United States, the bride wore a sheath dress of brown, green and beige with a matching beige duster, brown hat and white accessories. Her corsage was an orchid. Mr. and Mrs. Branson have now made their home at 2806 Foul Bay Road.

ORGANIZED PLAY

BOLSTON, Eng. (CP)—Municipal officials are offering school teachers £1 a day if they will organize games on the local playing fields during the summer vacation. It's part of a plan to keep children off the streets. Note to applicants: If it rains, the pay is cut in half.

CO-OPERATIVE NURSERY

Intent on the serious business of molding clay into shapes of favorite animals are four youngsters who attend the Cecaler Victoria Nursery School in Oak Bay. Pictured with one of the teachers, Mrs. F. E. Wallis, are Kelly Shepherd, Susan Wilks, Tara Currie and Kathy McGee. The school, owned by the parents, is a co-operative arrangement with parents, supervisors and teachers combining efforts to make the school a success. The parents form the executive and do the painting, furnishing and supplying as well as laying down policies for the school. Operated on the co-operative basis for the past six years, the school's program features finger painting, carpentry, clay work, easel painting, various fun projects and excursions. Director, Mrs. D. L. Durrant, is assisted by four teachers on staff. Sessions run from September to June, and during the summer a special class is held through July. In September, a new preprimary class for five-year-olds will be held in the afternoons.

ROYAL GREETING

Facts Given on Hair And Its Arrangement

Here are a few facts about hair and its arrangement.

A woman's hairdo usually reflects the mood and tempo of the day in which she is living. At certain times in history hair-dressers have had a field day creating complicated hairdos. At the time of our great grandmothers women boasted that they could sit on their braids. Those were the more leisurely days!

The short bob of 1925 and the three-inch haircut of 1941, the poodle cut and our current styles have much in common. At these times women were rushing about indulging in careers, social and civic activities and sports. This sort of life calls for a simpler and more comfortable style, one which is easier to care for.

Short hair requires a good permanent unless you have naturally curly tresses.

Soaps which are too strong in alkali are hard on the hair. Some of the best authorities believe that long before drab, lifeless hair appears, unhealthy hair conditions have prevailed for a long time. Some even go so far as to believe that such conditions can lead to greying locks. Good health, cleanliness and scalp massage are preventive measures.

Test yourself to see if your hair is oily or dry. If your hair becomes oily a few days after a shampoo, if you have dandruff or thin hair at the temples, perhaps the little oil ducts are too active.

You should shampoo your hair more often than you would if you had a normal or dry scalp.

Massage helps normalize these oil glands and is therefore recommended for an oily scalp as well as for a dry one.

If you have dry hair your scalp probably will feel tense, your hair will feel brittle, you may have dry flakes on the scalp, and the ends of the hair probably will be extremely dry and may split.

If this is the case do not shampoo your hair too often. Hot oil treatments will be helpful. Massage and brushing are first aids. Look also to your vitamin intake.

If your face is round—hair should be high on top and close at the sides of the face. The opposite is true if your face is long and thin.

If you have a small nose—wear a middle part if it suits the general contour of your face. Do not have a middle part if your nose is large. A middle part also widens the face in appearance. Therefore if you have a broad face use a slanting part. If your chin is pointed and your forehead broad—bring the hair in at the temples.

TO LIVE IN LABRADOR

Mrs. K. G. Pratt with Leonard, three years, and Marilyn, eight and a half months, left today by plane for Vancouver from where they will fly, on Tuesday, to Montreal. They will be met in Montreal by LAC Pratt, and together the family will fly to Goose Bay, Labrador, where they will make their home. The children's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Carter, 2564 Penhyn street, where Mrs. Pratt and the children were guests prior to their departure.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Return From White Rock

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Mellish have returned to their home, "Heatherbelle," 4551 West Saanich road, after visiting in White Rock, B.C.

Entertain This Evening

Victorians and out-of-towners will be guests this evening at a dinner party being held by Mrs. Norma MacDonald at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Following dinner, the party will attend the Smile Show being presented at Langham Court Theatre. Guests will be Judge and Mrs. W. D. Askren and Mrs. Worrell Wilson, Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. K. B. Lumbard, Palo Alto, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Jones, Winnipeg; Mrs. P. C. Boomer, Chicago; Miss Annette Pye, Vancouver; the Rev. Herbert Cawley, Liverpool, Eng.; Dr. G. Szekely, Nelson; Mrs. R. Bruce Malcolm, Mr. and Mrs. John Dunbar, Mrs. Alma Jordan, Miss Frances Jordan and Mr. J. B. Kenny, all of Victoria.

To Wed Up-Island

Of interest in Victoria and Up-Island is the announcement of the engagement of Cora May Manton, Alberni, elder daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Manton, Victoria, to Arthur Norman, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Skipsy, Alberni. The wedding will take place in St. Alban's Church, Port Alberni, August 18, at 2.30 p.m.

From California

Mrs. A. Jones came from Vista, Calif., to attend the wedding, last evening, of her nephew, Mr. H. George Harper, to Miss Janet Bompas in First United Church.

Girl Sports Reporter Refused Equal Rights by Fellow Workers

CALGARY (CP)—In the field of daily newspaper sports reporting on Canada's prairies, women are not entirely common—and Marilyn Cooper says she's fairly certain they're not entirely welcome.

Miss Cooper, 22-year-old native of Toronto who says she fell in love with the west during a trip to Vancouver two years ago, came to Calgary last year to work as a sports reporter for The Albertan.

"Oh, it's been fun all right," said the pioneering Miss Cooper, an attractive girl with short-cut light brown hair and with a habit of squinting one eye and then the other as she counts up the months she has spent with The Albertan as the only female sports reporter in the city—and perhaps on the prairies.

"But it's been unfair. The men wouldn't give me equal rights."

TREATED WELL

That wasn't to say she hadn't been treated well by her fellow workers or by the people in the sports she covered—such as basketball, trapshooting, tennis, track and field, softball.

"I'm not bitter about it at all," she laughs. "They got used to me after a while and then started treating me like one of the boys. Except, of course, for one thing—they wouldn't let me into the press boxes."

The Press-Radio Sports Club, an association of male sports reporters and broadcasters in Calgary, set the rules, Miss Cooper said. She was allowed to purchase a membership in the club, but "they never told me about their meetings until after they'd held them."

CLUB CALENDAR

Liberal Women's Forum will hold a picnic in Beacon Hill Park on Friday from 12 noon. Members are to bring their basket and cup.

Social meeting of Women of the Moose, Chapter No. 25, to be held Thursday evening at 8 p.m. in K of P Hall. The chapter will also hold a bingo party Saturday evening at 8 at the home of Mrs. J. W. Priddle, 1501 McRae avenue.

Calletes will meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. Klunck, 2565 Forbes street.

and I never got to vote on anything."

She could get into press boxes for minor sports, where few of the men attended regularly, but "I wasn't allowed near the press facilities in the football stadium or hockey arena when a senior game was on—even if I was reporting the game."

"The men said it was for my own protection, that they might be swearing or something," Miss Cooper said. "But nobody was afraid to send me down to Lethbridge with a men's basketball team!"

TOOK JOURNALISM COURSE

Miss Cooper, one of five children of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cooper, a former lawyer and now a retired farmer living in Willowdale, a Toronto suburb, attended school in Toronto and then took a three-year journalism course at Ryerson Institute.

There she became sports editor of The Ryersonian, a school publication, and it was this that got her the job in The Albertan sports department.

Two years ago, she and a girl friend travelled to Vancouver for a three-month holiday. She said she liked the west so well she was determined to return, and six months later obtained the job with The Albertan.

FATHER HEARS VOWS

Parents' 40th Anniversary Janet Bompas' Wedding Day

Father of the bride heard the vows of Janet Marianne Bompas, when she was joined in marriage with H. George Harper, HMCS Naden, in First United Church, last evening, the 40th wedding anniversary of her parents.

She is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. G. G. Bompas, 3219 Rutledge Street, and the groom is the son of E. E. Harper, 410 Vincent street, and the late Mrs. Harper. Dr. E. J. Thompson assisted Rev. Bompas in conducting the ceremony.

White gladioli decorated the church, and soloist was Miss Marion Matcham. Miss Margery Vaughan played traditional organ music.

A full-length gown of white brocade was worn by the charming bride. She wore a fingertip veil and carried a bouquet of yellow roses with ivy.

Ballerina-length gowns of blue brocade were worn by the bride's three attendants, who carried bouquets of yellow gladioli. They were Mrs. C. A. Bury, matron of honor; Mrs. C. A. Joslin, bridesmatron, and Miss Yvonne Callister, bridesmaid.

Ring-bearer was Master Donald Bury. C. A. Bury was best man and ushers were G. Joslin and G. Warwick.

At the reception in First United Church Fellowship Hall, the bride used a cake knife which her mother had used at her wedding reception, 40 years ago. F. J. Knudsen proposed the toast to the bride.

The bride chose a blue duster and dress ensemble with pale yellow hat and yellow corsage, for travelling on honeymoon up Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper will live in Victoria upon their return.

Wednesday evening, Miss Enid Lapham was surprised with a miscellaneous shower at the home of her fiancée's sister, Mrs. E. A. Locke, 1190 Rhoda Lane. An orange and yellow decorated clothes-basket, also a gift, held the gaily-wrapped parcels. Miss Lapham received pink and white carnations, while her mother, Mrs. F. Lapham, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. B. Foster, also received carnations en corsage. Guests included Mrs. G. Hooley, Mrs. J. Brule, Mrs. J. Pimm, Mrs. W. Parker, Mrs. G. Morris, Mrs. H. Parker, Mrs. T. Parker, Mrs. J. Locke, Mrs. W. Simm, Mrs. F. Parsons, Mrs. E. Meads, Mrs. N. Davis, Mrs. K. Lapham, Mrs. L. G. Carter, Mrs. R. S. Conn, Mrs. W. Aspin, Mrs. W. Smith, Mrs. B. Parker and Miss Joan Morris.

Miss Beth Gagnon-Williams was guest of honor recently at a shower party held by Mrs. G. W. Russell at her home, 1281 Balmoral road, where many gifts of china were presented in a decorated paper rose container. The bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. G. Gagnon-Williams received carnation corsages. Guests were Mrs. Grant Diamond, Mrs. G. Brooke, Mrs. T. R. Rogers, Mrs. R. Anker, Mrs. G. S. Russell, Mrs. M. Stuart, Mrs. A. Jordan, Mrs. I. MacDonald, Mrs. B. K. Oxendale, Mrs. R. Hanley, Vancouver; Mrs. R. Diamond, Mrs. D. G. Henderson, Mrs. G. Diamond, Mrs. A. L. Jordan, Mrs. P. Brooke, Mrs. R. Hall, Mrs. J. Morry, Mrs. Dan Cornish, Mrs. D. C. M. Diamond, Vancouver, and Miss Florence Russell.

Miss Gagnon-Williams was also guest of honor at a kitchen shower given by Mrs. D. R. McKay and Miss Kay McKay. A "model" sailboat held the many gifts. Corsages were presented to the guest of honor, her mother, Mrs. G. Gagnon-Williams, and to the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. G. W. Russell. Present were Mrs. D. G. Henderson, Mrs. D. C. M. Diamond, Vancouver; Mrs. A. M. MacLeod, Mrs. A. Harwood, Mrs. R. Peterson, Misses Donna Whiting, June Panter, Chris Malacoff, Bernice Perfect and Marie Dabinette.

On July 31, Miss Cooper sails from Vancouver for Australia, where she hopes to find employment in the newspaper field for six or eight months before going on to Singapore to visit friends and then to London.

"Then I'll have to come back to Canada and save up enough money to start again," she said.

"In the meantime, maybe The Albertan will hire another woman sports reporter to carry on the fight for equal privileges."

Mr. and Mrs. Skaien Married in Vancouver

In a quiet ceremony in the chapel of Chown Memorial Church in Vancouver, Miss Laura Pearl Murray became the bride of Ralph Andrew Skaien, Rev. G. S. Packham officiated at wedding, which was solemnized in the presence of members of the bridal couple's immediate families.

The bride, a Royal Jubilee Hospital dietitian, is the daughter of Mrs. Murray of Lyleton, Man., and the late Mr. Baird Murray. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Skaien, Vancouver, formerly of Cabri and Swift Current, Sask.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, G. A. Dyson, of Victoria, chose for the ceremony a suit of pale shantung with white accessories. Her only attendant, Miss Dorothy Gray of Victoria, wore a blue light-weight tweed suit with a white hat. Best man was Calvin O'Hare.

A reception party was held in Mayfair Banquet Hall, where Richard Cotsford proposed the bride's health. The newlyweds left by car for a honeymoon trip through Washington and Oregon. The bride is a graduate of the University of Manitoba, and the groom obtained his degree in agriculture at the University of Saskatchewan and is farming near Cabri, Sask., where the newlyweds will live.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. N. C. Davidson and Miss Sue-Ellen Davidson, Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Dyson, Mrs. K. G. Moe, Victoria, and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick with Terry and Jimmy Patrick, Calgary.

Investing a Family Matter—Woman's Caution Helps

TORONTO (CP)—Helen Cleveland, an investment counselor for 40 years, says that although fewer women play the stock market they invest as wisely as men.

Bound for Hawaii for her first long holiday since she started working, Miss Cleveland said women are successful because they are more cautious.

"They have to be," she said. "They don't get the salaries that men do and they have to be careful with what they have." Because of women's cautious characteristics investing should be a family matter.

TWO HEADS BETTER

"In the old days men believed investing was too difficult for women, but today two heads are better than one," she said. "And if the money is lost the head of the household doesn't get all the blame.

"Men haven't the time today and getting the information is the wife's job. After all, why shouldn't women do the investing for the family? They do all the other buying and it's the same principle but a different type of buying."

She advises beginners at the stock market to be wary of tips.

"You have to be sure your information source is reliable," she said. "Someone might have started a rumor to push up the market and get rid of his own stock at a handsome profit, leaving the green speculator holding the bag."

Her only tip is not to invest haphazardly.

"A good yardstick is to have 35 per cent in bonds and those not all the same kind, 15 per cent preferred, 40 per cent common and 10 per cent speculative," she said. "There are no hard and fast rules, of course. It all depends on circumstances."

SAFETY RULE

The investor should not speculate with any amount he can't afford to lose.

"You hear only about the people who made money, never about those who lost," she said. "Nobody's smart enough to win all the time."

The daughter of a mining engineer, Miss Cleveland entered the brokerage business after graduating from high school.

"I had no experience but I absorbed it," she said. The stock crash in 1929 was a "cheap lesson." She'd made money that year and "thought I knew it all."

"In about eight hours I discovered I didn't and I've been learning ever since. That's what makes this business so fascinating."

MOTHER'S INSTINCT

LATTON, Wiltshire, Eng. (CP)—Jenny, a five-year-old female terrier without pups of her own, has started adopting other small animals in need of a mother's care. So far she has had two rabbits and a kitten.

For a double-quick luncheon, toast some split hamburger buns in the broiler, top with hot cooked large dry lima, a couple of strips of sliced cheese and a good shake of catsup. Put back in broiler just long enough to make the cheese bubbly.

TO EXCHANGE VOWS

Church of Our Lord will be the scene of a 10 a.m. wedding ceremony Saturday, when Miss Mary Barbara Jessop, daughter of Mrs. Frank Centry, 151 Wellington avenue, becomes the bride of Mr. Brian Drew Ainscough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Ainscough, 1665 Hollywood Crescent. Dr. J. C. Brown will conduct the service and the bride's attendant will be Miss Nancy Idiens. Best man will be the groom's brother, Mr. Ralph Ainscough, Vancouver. ## Fried B.C. Chicken Perfect Patio Fare

The B.C. poultrymen are raising birds so you can have fried chicken all year round—so why not take advantage of it this summer?

Fried chicken makes perfect picnic or patio fare. Pan-fry, oven-fry or deep fat fry, fresh, tender B.C. fryers to golden perfection: serve with flaky biscuits, cold or hot potato salad and a crisp, green tossed salad to appease outdoor appetites.

Keep cold foods cold by packing them in containers surrounded by ice cubes. Keep hot foods piping hot by preparing them at the last minute, then wrapping tightly in heavyweight aluminum foil or encasing them with layers and layers of newspaper.

Pan-Fried Chicken—Coat frying chicken pieces with flour mixed with salt, pepper and paprika. (This coating prevents drying, gives crispness and a golden brown color.) Brown pieces in about 1/4-inch hot fat in frying pan; turn to brown evenly. Reduce heat. Cover tightly. Fry slowly 30 to 40 minutes. Uncover pan the last five minutes of cooking to re-crisp the skin.

Oven-Fried Chicken—Coat frying chicken pieces with flour mixed with salt, pepper and paprika. Brown in shallow baking pan containing 1/4-inch hot fat. Turn to brown evenly. (Browning can be done on top of stove or in preheated 425 deg. F. oven.) When browned place chicken skin-side down in pan. Bake in hot oven, 425 deg. F., for 45 to 60 minutes.

Batter-Dipped Fried Chicken—2 pounds-frying chicken; 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour; 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder; 1 teaspoon salt; 1 egg, slightly beaten; 2/3 cup milk; 1 tablespoon salad oil or melted shortening; 1 teaspoon vinegar; fat for deep frying. Wipe cut-up frying chicken perfectly dry. Sift dry ingredients together. Add egg and milk. Beat well. Add shortening and vinegar beat until smooth and light. Dip pieces of chicken into batter. Let drain 5 to 10 minutes on rack. This "rest" prevents batter from slipping off during cooking. Place pieces in wire basket, just to cover bottom of basket, leaving space between pieces. Lower into heated deep fat, 350 deg. F. Cook 12 to 15 minutes. Drain pieces on absorbent paper. Makes 4 servings.

Barbecue Dinners Call for Smooth Desserts of Homemade Ice Cream

The ice cream freezer is moving outdoors alongside the barbecue pit as another embellishment to the fad of outdoor dining. Along with recipes for barbecue sauces and how to turn out a perfect steak, personal experiences in ice cream making are being exchanged over backyard fences, and even at men's luncheon tables.

Some people prefer the early Philadelphia type ice cream which is a simple mixture of cream, sugar and flavoring. Others think there is no substitute for a cooked custard base and the rich, creamy product it produces. And sale of packaged ice cream mixtures indicate there are just as many other people who prefer the commercial mixes.

Like the recipe ingredients, there are many variations in the proportions of salt and ice used to freeze the cream, but the generally accepted ratio is four parts ice to one part salt.

This is the proportion, which combined with steady agitation of the cream mixtures, produces a smooth ice cream, free of frozen particles. Another tip for smooth ice cream is slow turning of the mixture for the first few minutes, and more rapid, constant churning after the mixture is thoroughly chilled.

As the ice melts and the salt brine drains off, continue adding ice and salt in the four to one proportion to maintain an even temperature. Later, when the cream has hardened and the crank removed, pack with additional ice and salt and let the cream ripen for at least an hour.

Here are basic recipes for Philadelphia ice cream and for a cooked, custard type, both of which can be varied with different flavorings or the addition of sugared fruit in season:

Philadelphia Ice Cream—1 quart light cream; 1 cup granulated sugar; 1 teaspoon salt; 2 egg yolks, beaten; 2 cups milk, scalded; 1 1/2 teaspoons flavoring extract; 4 cups thin cream. Mix flour, salt and sugar and add to slightly beaten egg yolks, stirring until smooth. Add the scalded milk slowly to the egg mixture. Cook in top of double boiler until mixture thickens. Mix the ingredients, stir until the sugar is melted and freeze, then freeze.

—by Byrne Hope Sanders

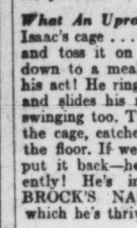

MONTREAL, July 26th—Wish I had a roof-top... from which to shout the praise of ARRID. For Arrid will keep you wholly free from perspiration stains and from odor, as it's made, now, with Persol. There's no need to be only half-safe in your personal daintiness. Just rub Arrid in—and rub odor out. You'll find that it won't dry out in the jar—keeps creamy always. Arrid saves your clothes from any danger of unsightly stains—as so many thousands of Canadians have discovered. These hot July days can be very treacherous, unless one takes the best of precautions—and uses Arrid faithfully. Only 50c a jar at drug counters everywhere.

Oh Bliss! To relax on a hot summer's evening with a tall glass of perfect, seed coffee! Best way to get the real flavor of freshly-made coffee is to use INSTANT CHASE & SANBORN. Look through the window on the jar and see the rich coffee color that means rich coffee flavor. The Chase & Sanborn people have nearly 100 years of coffee experience to teach them how to capture all the precious coffee flavor. They promise you the flavor of freshly-made coffee with their Instant. Get a jar right away and discover this new coffee pleasure for yourself.

What An Upstart! We've rigged up a little bell on the top of Sir Imac's cage... and he's learned how to lift it off and toss it on the ground. Every time we sit down to a meal, our beautiful Budgie goes into his act! He rings the bells inside; climbs outside and slides his mirror up and down so that it's swinging too. Then he hurries to the bell on top of the cage, catches it in his beak and tosses it on the floor. If we don't pick it up right away and put it back—he chirps and calls to us insistently! He's in perfect condition, thanks to BROCK'S NATURAL FEEDING DIET on which he's thriving.

"Sure, I'll Take Your Travellers Cheque." Those are familiar words in stores, hotels and gas stations across the world! Travellers everywhere carry Travellers Cheques sold by the BANK OF MONTREAL in preference to cash because the cheques are refundable in full if lost or stolen. Yet they are so easily cashed—by you alone—not only at all banks, but also at a wide selection of business places. If you are planning a journey on your vacation this year, make sure you carry your money the safe way—in the form of Travellers Cheques. Buy yours at your local B of M branch. "My Bank" stocks the Travellers Cheques you need, in the denominations you need... whether you're off to the seaside, the United States or the Continent. And incidentally, while you're away, why not take advantage of a B of M Safety Deposit Box for the protection of your valuable papers and trinkets?

Bleak Ride But Berlin-Moscow Express Expects Big Bookings

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

BERLIN (AP)—The Blue Express leaves Berlin every day for Moscow and it's a good idea to take along sandwiches.

No food is served for the first 23 hours of the two-day 1,117-mile journey eastward.

The reason is currency difficulties. Because Russian rubles aren't readily available until they cross into the Soviet Union at the Polish border city of Brest, there is no diner on the Blue Express until this point is reached.

NO SPIES And don't expect to encounter any intriguing international characters or glamorous spies. The chances are fellow passengers will be Russian Army officers and their families or Soviet government officials.

Accommodations on the Blue Express are listed as international class (first class), category one (second) and category two (third).

Travellers privately refer to category one as "soft" and category two as "hard."

The international class cars are made up of double compartments of two bunks each and a washroom in between. By Western standards, these cars appear plush but old-fashioned. They have thick rugs, curtained windows, and upholstered chairs separate from the upholstered benches which make up into the bunks.

The category one (second class) cars consist of compartments that make up into four bunks each, double deck style. They also have upholstered seats, which account for the description as "soft" compared with the wooden benches in category two (third or "hard" class).

TWO CUSTOMS CHECKS Passengers are checked by police and customs twice on the journey—at the German-Polish border and at the Polish-Russian frontier.

The major stop is at Brest although the Blue Express makes 15 other stops en route. The pause at Brest is for four hours to allow for changing the cars from standard gauge track to the Russian wide gauge.

Ordinarily, the Blue Express is made up of nine cars and the dining car which is attached at Brest. There, the Soviet travel agency, Intourist, sells meal tickets for $6 for the three meals from Brest to Moscow.

HEARTY BREAKFAST Breakfast aboard is a hearty meal. It consists of salad, cold fish, a hot meat course and tea or coffee. A midday or evening meal might include cold roast beef, a la stroganoff, baked potatoes, mixed salad, toast, butter and tea or coffee.

The Blue Express is manned by Russians but switchmen and signalmen are German in East Germany and Polish in Poland. The train leaves East Berlin at 4:43 reaches Moscow at 5:35 p.m. (local time) on the second day. Intourist expects a record number of passengers this summer because of the Soviet campaign to lure tourists to Moscow.

SAANICH FRUIT FARM

Sure it's ten miles from town and the house needs decorating, but this is a well-drained soil mostly in nature and on a gentle slope. The two-bedroom cottage is surrounded by a small cherry orchard and apple and pear trees. There are also lots of raspberries and grapes. $7950. Call G. Munro, 2-3638. CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS WESTERN REGION Sealed tenders will be received at the office of the Chief Engineer, Winnipeg, Manitoba, until 10 a.m. on Thursday, August 6, 1964, for the construction of a Coach Wheel Shop at Vancouver, British Columbia.

Plans, specifications and form of contract may be seen, and form of contract obtained from the office of the Chief Engineer at Winnipeg, Manitoba, or from the office of the District Engineer at Vancouver and Division Engineers at Kamloops and Victoria.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on form supplied by the Railway and accompanied by a cash deposit drawn on a chartered bank in Vancouver in favor of Canadian National Railways, equal to five per cent of the total amount of the tender.

No bid bonds will be accepted with tenders for this work. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

J. R. McMEILAN, Vice-President, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

NAVIGABLE WATERS PROTECTION ACT S.S.C. 1952, Chapter 138

McColl Frontenac Oil Company Limited hereby gives notice that it has, under Section 7 of the said Act, deposited with the Minister of Public Works at Ottawa, and in the office of the District Registrar of the Land Registry District of Victoria, at Victoria, British Columbia, a description of the site and the plans of wharf proposed to be built on the foreshore and bed of Victoria Harbor at Victoria, B.C., in front of City Lots 1260 and 1261, in the City of Victoria, B.C.

And take notice that after the expiration of one month from the date of the publication of this notice, McColl Frontenac Oil Company Limited, under Section 7 of the said Act, apply to the Governor-in-Council for approval of the said site and plans.

Dated this twenty-third day of July, 1964.

McCOLL FRONTENAC OIL COMPANY LIMITED, P.O. Box 100, Victoria, B.C.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR CHANGE OF NAME NOTICE is hereby given that an application will be made to the Director of Vital Statistics for a change of name, pursuant to the provisions of the "Change of Name Act," by one Keith Ellingworth-Langlois, of Research Division, B.C. To change my name from Keith Ellingworth-Langlois to Keith Ellingworth-Langlois.

APPENDECTOMY EPIDEMIC HITS CALIFORNIA FAMILY

NORTHBRIDGE, Calif. (AP)—The appendectomy box score in the Loveless family stood at seven out of eight today.

Papa James Loveless, 34, a policeman who lives, fortunately, only three blocks from Northridge Hospital, became the seventh to undergo the operation. Five of his six daughters have preceded him in the last 22 days.

Mama Sue Loveless had her appendix removed three years ago.

The only one left with an appendix is daughter Francine, 15, had an appendectomy Sunday.

St. Ann Provincial Gets Second Term

Gladys, former provincial prefect of studies.

Sister Mary Grace, superior at Mount St. Mary here, goes to Nelson as superior of Mount St. Francis, and Sister Mary Patrick moves from the hospital there to here as superior.

A diamond jubilee mass of thanksgiving was held in St. Ann's chapel today for Sister Mary Daniel, now living in retirement at Mount St. Mary. She has been in the order 60 years and is now nearing her 85th birthday.

Marking their 50th anniversary in the order this month are Sisters Mary Yolande and Sister Mary Alfreda.

Loneliest Men in World Are Canada's 36 in Korea

By DAVE MCINTOSH Canadian Press Staff Writer OTTAWA (CP)—If you feel like cheering up somebody, write a letter to a Canadian soldier in Korea.

There are only 36 of them left there now. An army spokesman says there is no present intention of withdrawing them.

The tiny unit, comprising medical and dental corps personnel and two administrative officers, is the last remnant of a Canadian force in Korea which had a peak strength of 6,500. Altogether, 27,000 Canadian soldiers saw service in Korea at different times.

Canadians have disappeared entirely from the big base camp at Kure, a city of 200,000 in western Japan. Kure, still occupied by a few British troops, is to be closed down entirely at the end of this month.

The few remaining Canadian troops in Korea look after the health of the 2,000-man Commonwealth Division, first formation of its type in history, ceased to exist last May 15.

It comprised Canadians, Britons, Australians and New Zealanders.

The 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, which left 400 dead on Korean battlefields, has passed into Canadian army history. The

Naples Diver Throws Scare In Red Ship

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—The Russian tourist ship Pobeda left Naples Wednesday after a flurry of excitement and protests over diving activities that recalled the case of missing British diver man Lionel Crab.

The Naples harbor master said the had received a formal request from the Soviet embassy in Rome to investigate whether a diver operating near the Pobeda had "caused any damage."

The diver, the harbor master said, was going about his daily work recovering scrap iron from the bottom of the harbor about 150 yards from where the Pobeda was anchored.

The watch officer of the Pobeda saw him and reported to the Soviet embassy, which asked port authorities to make sure no damage was done to the ship by the diver, the harbor master added.

Greatest Rescue in History of Sea Follows Sinking of Giant Liner

1,709 People Saved From Ship Collision; Four Die in Crash

Pride of Italian Fleet Goes Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Two great trans-Atlantic liners, laden with thousands of care-free passengers, collided with a rending crash in fog off Massachusetts Wednesday night. One—the Italian liner Andrea Doria—keeled over and plunged to its doom in the ocean depths at mid-morning today, 10 hours and 47 minutes after she had been struck.

But before the luxurious Andrea Doria vanished beneath the gentle swells of the relatively calm sea, 45 miles south of Nantucket Island, its 1,709 passengers and crew were snatched to safety by other ships in history's greatest rescue operation.

Four died later. An undetermined number were injured.

The disastrous smash occurred and the Swedish liner Stockholm at 11:20 p.m. EDT Wednesday crossed paths.

62 Canadians Aboard

Passenger lists reported 50 of the exchange and raced from all Canadians aboard the Stockholm points of the compass with every ounce of power available.

At least six were British Columbia. As they came near, the Andrea Doria's veteran skipper, Capt. added to the partial Doria list at Pier Calami, ordered all passengers and most of his crew to abandon ship.

Two Toronto men, Alderman W. Frank Clifton and importer Eugene John Mayer were known to have been aboard the Andrea Doria.

The Andrea Doria carried modern radar equipment which should have enabled it to spot another ship miles away even in the densest fog.

At 11:22 p.m. came the electrifying radio message from the Stockholm:

"We have collided with another ship."

"Badly damaged. Full bow crushed. Our No. 1 hold filled with water. . . help if you can."

Then, ascertaining the identity of the other vessel, the Stockholm told the Andrea Doria:

"Lower your lifeboats. We can pick you up."

Back came this message: "We too are beginning to list. Impossible to put boats over side. Please send lifeboats immediately."

Other ships in the vicinity, including the majestic French liner Ile de France, began picking up

Rescuer Rushed In Fog

Editor's note: The Associated Press radioed Capt. Raoul de Beaudouin, master of the Ile de France, for an account of the rescue operation after the collision of the liners Andrea Doria and the Stockholm. This is his story.

By CAPT. RAOUL DE BEAUDEAN

ABOARD SS. ILE DE FRANCE (Via Radio) (AP) — Received SOS from Andrea Doria at 11:30 p.m., as we were passing six miles south of Nantucket in a dense fog that had set in a half hour earlier. Could not see the bow from the bridge.

Immediately began trying to contact the ship for more details. Message simply said she needed assistance. We messaged we would be able to reach her in two hours.

We asked if she was sinking but received no answer. From this time on she was using her emergency apparatus. It was too far to hear anything direct, but listening to other ships, I knew she was sinking with 1,700 aboard. Despite fog, we rushed at 22 knots speed to the spot.

The Ss. Cape Ann and another ship had already arrived. One had two lifeboats and the other eight, which would not be enough. The Stockholm messaged that she was sending some, although badly damaged herself, and might need lifeboats herself.

I gave an intense mental prayer for a clearing of the fog. In truth the fog did start lifting, and there was the Doria, quickly identifiable by her stern list.

Ten of our lifeboats were lowered in five minutes and headed for the ship, 500 yards away. The crew of the boats showed magnificent discipline and courage.

Orders were given from our ship by loudspeaker.

We picked up about 760 persons, many half naked, some injured, some mourning their dead.

I am now rushing back to New York.

How shall I regain my schedule?—but what's that compared to 760 lives.

TIMES SQUARE OF ATLANTIC, CRASH SCENE

NEW YORK (UP) — The collision between the Andrea Doria and Stockholm occurred in the area off Nantucket lightship which is known to sailors as the "Times Square of the Atlantic." A score of vessels ranging from luxury liners to small freighters answered the SOS's from the two disabled giants. The navy aircraft carrier Tarawa was alerted at Quonset Point, R.I., but was not needed in the rescue operations.

I Saw a Great Ship Die Today

(Editor's Note: British United Press staff correspondent James Whelan was aboard a U.S. Navy plane which arrived off the Nantucket coast just as the liner Andrea Doria was sinking. His radioed dispatch follows.)

By JAMES WHELAN
NANTUCKET, Mass. (BUP) — I saw a great ship die today. The Italian liner Andrea Doria slipped quietly into the sea at 10:09 a.m. while our plane circled overhead.

Nearby, the liner Stockholm, her bow gutted by the collision which destroyed the Doria, limped toward New York. We saw two destroyers and two Coast Guard cutters near the sinking vessel.

We were flying about 500 feet above the ship for about 30 minutes watching the sleek $25,000,000 craft gradually list sideways deeper and deeper in the water.

At the very end, the bow tilted sharply forward and the Andrea Doria sank out of sight, nose first.

At 10 a.m. (EDT) water lapped over the bow. A minute later the rudder appeared completely out of the water. In another 60 seconds water seeped into the smokestack.

The three outdoor swimming pools, emptied earlier by the tilt of the ship, started taking water at that point.

By 10:40 a.m. the ship was lying completely on its side, water licking over the bow. Crewmen crowded the rails of nearby rescue ships to witness the end of the beautiful liner.

As the bow nosed down, a huge swell boiled up over the fantail. Then there was a circle of light green water.

As the Andrea Doria started under, lifeboats still in their davits tore loose from the ship—a grim reminder of what might have been had help not been so near when the collision occurred.

Debris gushed from the sinking wreckage. It looked like crates and lifebells.

Great bubbles mixed with heavy oil slick as the ship went down, still tugged some lifeboats behind her.

Ten minutes later all we could see was debris and oil. We took a fix and found the ship sank at 48 degrees and 39 minutes north latitude and 69 degrees 50 minutes west.

"Li boats bobbed about the Andrea Doria and the Stockholm," Geggis reported. "They were filled with bright red life jackets."

A helicopter hovered over the Stockholm, then dipped down to a space cleared on its deck to remove the injured. Survivors jammed the decks. They looked up at us but there was no waving.

Geggis said the bow of the Stockholm was "a jagged mass of steel and steel plates were peeled back like a sardine can, forming a hole extending from a foot above the water line to the bowsprit." The UP correspondent said he couldn't see the damage of the Andrea Doria because she was listing so badly, but the damage to the Stockholm indicated she had knifed into the Italian liner "like a can opener."

NEW YORK (UP) — James Geggis of the United Press, the first newsman to fly over the scene, reported that the Andrea Doria looked like a "broken toy boat on the calm sea in the glare of the rising sun." Geggis flew within 500 feet of the ship but saw no sign of life aboard.

The ocean lapped at the edge of the first observation deck.

Marilyn's Diary

Hello folks!
There are times when a day in our lives is like several pages out of a Martin and Lewis script. Take Wednesday, for example.

This was one of those days when I didn't glare at the alarm clock when it hollered at me at 7:30. I felt like swimming today and I couldn't get moving fast enough.

By 7:45, I was sitting down to boiled eggs, toast and coffee. I purposely ignored Jack.

Judges when he started chortling over again about the breakfast last week when he served me a medicine ball between two pieces of toast.

Breakfast over, we collected our gear while coach Gus fretted, as usual, about women never, never being on time.

We went to the boathouse, climbed into our coaching boat and heeded Jack Todd as he led us out to open water.

Gus ordered me over the side but, to be contrary, I complained bitterly about having to jump into that water while they did nothing but sit in the boat and soak up sun.

All of a sudden, someone pushed me and I started my swim a couple of minutes earlier than I had planned.

I suspected, and I still do, that a certain Mr. Todd pushed me but just to be on the safe side, I managed to splash and thoroughly soak everyone in the boat before our three-hour swim was over.

At one time, Jack picked up a piece of kelp, waved it over his head and ordered me to swim faster, just like Simon Legree.

After we had returned to the hotel, Gus announced that only guests in formal dress would be allowed ring-side seats to watch the fight on his TV set. We knew it wasn't being televised but we played along with him.

Gus asked for formal dress so he got it.

from rowboat as Laughren strokes strongly through the calm water. Laughren started from the breakwater at 5:38 a.m. (Times photo.)

Laughren Halfway Across In Eighth Strait Assault

(By Radio-Telephone From Times Reporter Denny Boyd)

At 2 p.m. today Victoria's Ben Laughren was more than halfway across Juan de Fuca Strait and swimming strongly in his eighth attempt to swim from Victoria to Port Angeles.

Laughren's navigator, Stan Page, put Laughren, who is making excellent time, at a point two miles southeast of Race Rocks and 10 miles from his starting point at Ogden Point breakwater.

Page expected Laughren to pick up a flood tide later in the afternoon at the international boundary, with the swim, if successful, to take approximately 11 hours.

Water was still calm and weather conditions were still perfect as big Ben neared Race Rocks.

Ben started at 5:38 this morning from the breakwater after a lengthy consultation with his swim team whether to make the attempt from Victoria or from Port Angeles.

His course took him east of Constance Bank, and by 10:30 he was clear of the bank and heading directly for the U.S. shore, being swept westward toward Race Rocks shortly after.

The water temperature of 45 degrees seemed not to bother Laughren, and he was alternating between a sidestroke and a crawl, stopping to feed on orange juice and dextrose once an hour.

CPR boat Princess Joan and MV Kalakala both veered

course away from the swimmer during the morning at the request of skipper Maurice Wilkinson of the accompanying launch Meota, and the Kalakala came to a stop nearby.

Later on, the minesweeper HMCS Comox, out on post-refit trials, came in close while the ratings on board gave a cheer for Ben. A U.S. Coast Guard helicopter also paid the swim team a visit.

Ben's wife was also aboard the Meota, while trainer Ove Witt was following the 280-pound swimmer in a rowboat.

This is the 53rd attempt on the strait, including the successful Port Angeles to Victoria swim by Bert Thomas one year ago this month.

Among the B.C. passengers on Ss. Stockholm, that was seriously damaged in Wednesday night's collision with the Andrea Doria, were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Olson and their two sons, Fred and John, of Lake Cowichan.

They left their home about two weeks ago, and bought a new car which they were taking with them to Sweden for a three-month holiday.

Mr. Olson is retired, and his sons operate a Bute Inlet logging operation.

The following Canadians were among the passengers forced to abandon the sinking liner Andrea Doria:

John de Mayer of Toronto, boarded at Cannes, France; Alexandrine Nassum, Josette Nassum and Nicolas Nassum, boarded at Naples; Frank W. Clifton, Toronto alderman, boarded at Naples.

Milan Babic, boarded at Naples; Edio Colagrandi, boarded at Naples; Eugene and Frieda Gladstone, boarded at Gibraltar; Suor Mary Callistris, boarded at Genoa; Harvey Holinger, boarded at Genoa; Adolf and Violet Grubenman, boarded at Genoa.

Greater Vancouver residents aboard the Stockholm en route to New York with 400 of the survivors include Harry Bombard, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ruus and their children, Miss Laine Ruus, Hannes Ruus and Miss Anneli Ruus, of North Vancouver.

NEW YORK (AP)—James J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, said Thursday he expected a settlement of the steel strike before this week-end.

MANCHESTER (Reuters) —England scored 307 for three wickets on the opening day of the fourth cricket test against Australia today.

B.C. Girl Drowned

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—Carol Stuch, 8, of Oliver, was drowned in Tuginit Lake here Wednesday night, police said, within sight of 10 children and two adults who were unable to swim enough to save her.

COLLEGE BOYS' SYSTEM 'TAKES' HAROLD'S CLUB

RENO, Nev. (AP)—A Harold's Club official said Wednesday the club has lost an estimated $96,000 over a period of weeks to a group of college boys with a 24-hour-a-day "system" for playing roulette.

Manager Guy Lent said he believes seven University of Nevada youths were involved, but doesn't know their names.

"And I doubt that anyone else in the club does," he added. Vagueness and anonymity always surround reports of big gambling winnings here because of the internal revenue service's interest.

Lent said he believes the youths started "casing the wheel"—recording the winning numbers—about June 1 and began actual play some time later.

U.S. NAVY EXPERTS ASK

Why Didn't Radar Prevent Collision?

WASHINGTON (UP)—U.S. navy experts were baffled today as to why radar did not prevent the collision of the luxury liner Andrea Doria and the passenger ship Stockholm.

They expressed doubt that any atmospheric condition could have blinded the electronic eyes of the two big vessels as they steamed through the fog-shrouded waters off Nantucket.

One expert said certain weather conditions could keep a radar "target" from being picked up at a distance of 15 miles or more. But he said any object the size of a passenger liner should show on a radar scope as the ships closed to less than 15 miles.

Sea return, or the action of the ocean waves, might again interfere with radar search at a distance of one-half mile or less, he added. But he said that if radar is working properly it should be able to probe the blackness of night and weather at distances greater than half a mile and less than 15.

The experts emphasized they have no way of knowing what actually happened. They assumed, however, that both ships were equipped with a commercial type of surface search radar. They said these radar sets generally work exceptionally well since they are modeled on types made to navy specifications.

baste toward the fog-wrapped Andrea Doria.

Down the dangerously leaning Italian vessel's sides on precipitous rope ladders and other devices her passengers and crew scrambled.

Lifeboat crews gathered them in, by the dozens, then by the hundreds. One man was plucked out of the water.

The epic scene went on through the early morning mists and haze until five hours later—all were aboard the hovering mercy ships.

Even the damaged Stockholm managed to pick up about 400.

Capt. Calami and a handful of his senior officers and crew members remained aboard their stricken queen of the Italian merchant fleet, calling on all their experience in a final effort to save her.

For a time it appeared there was some hope.

They managed to start pumps and halt the ever-growing angle of list, which had reached about 45 degrees.

But then the great vessel's end began to appear certain.

FORCED TO GIVE UP

Under orders from the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Eversgreen told the story of the proud liner's last moments in mid-morning:

"Settling rapidly."

"Sinking. Just her funnel showing."

Then:

"SS. Andrea Doria sank in 225 feet of water at 10:08 a.m."

It was a tragic end for the plucky pride of the Italian merchant fleet—a 29,000-ton, 656-foot floating palace put in service just three years ago at a cost of more than $29,000,000.

She was insured for $16,000,000.

HELICOPTER AIDS INJURED

The Andrea Doria was en route to New York from Genoa, Italy, while the smaller, 12,644-ton Stockholm, sailed Wednesday from New York for Europe.

The Stockholm, far less luxurious and catering to travellers desiring more modest accommodations, carried approximately 500 passengers and crew of 200. It is mostly a tourist class ship.

She suffered a fearfully smashed bow, and one of her crew members lost his life. He was Alf Johansson, 30. He died after a helicopter had whisked him to Nantucket island from the Stockholm.

The Andrea Doria ranked 13th in gross tonnage among the world's passenger vessels.

Five of those injured were flown by helicopter to Nantucket from the Stockholm, including the fatally injured crew member.

Three of the injured also were crew members. The other was a seven-year-old Italian girl. All suffered fractures.

Two other injured persons were reported aboard the United Fruit freighter Cape Ann.

HEAD FOR NEW YORK

Most of the rescue vessels set sail immediately for New York with those rescued.

They were expected to begin arriving late today, led off by the Ile de France with 758 survivors, of whom 20 were reported injured.

The other included the Cape Ann, with 175, the military transport ship Pvt. William H. Thomas, with about 165, and a cutter with a number of others.

Capt. Raoul de Beaudan of the Ile de France, in a radio account of his vessel's mercy mission, said he ordered the liner to head for the scene at 22 knots despite the fog.

The fog, he said, was so heavy that he could not see the bow of his own ship from the bridge.

Of those his lifeboats picked up, he said, many were "half naked, some injured, some mourning their feared dead."

It was, he added, "horrible."

Facts relating to those who lost their lives was clouded.

The U.S. coast guard in Boston said the Andrea Doria's captain reported three dead aboard his vessel. It was not clear whether they died before the rescue operation, or afterward.

In addition, a coast guard cutter reported near noon that it was trying to pick up a body floating in the water near the Stockholm.

GM Business Drops; Firm Said 'Too Big'

NEW YORK (AP)—A report by General Motors Corporation of a $644,000,000 decline in its business for the first half of 1956 was accompanied Wednesday by a statement by the American Institute of Management saying the company is just plain "too big."

The half-year report of the world's largest auto maker said over-all profits were down $157,000,000 compared to the first half of 1955.

The report said, however, that sales and production of GM cars outside the United States "exceeded last year's record levels."

The institute was established Canadian production for the second quarter was 78,372 cars and trucks against 74,142 a year earlier.

WELL MANAGED

The management institute, a non-profit organization, said after a three-months study that GM is an excellently-managed, highly-efficient firm, but added:

"It is too big for the good of American businessmen who must deal with it and too big for the good of the country."

In 1948 to appraise the management of business firms.

GM Business Drops; Firm Said 'Too Big'

NEW YORK (AP)—A report by General Motors Corporation of a $644,000,000 decline in its business for the first half of 1956 was accompanied Wednesday by a statement by the American Institute of Management saying the company is just plain "too big."

The half-year report of the world's largest auto maker said over-all profits were down $157,000,000 compared to the first half of 1955.

The report said, however, that sales and production of GM cars outside the United States "exceeded last year's record levels."

The institute was established Canadian production for the second quarter was 78,372 cars and trucks against 74,142 a year earlier.

WELL MANAGED

The management institute, a non-profit organization, said after a three-months study that GM is an excellently-managed, highly-efficient firm, but added:

"It is too big for the good of American businessmen who must deal with it and too big for the good of the country."

In 1948 to appraise the management of business firms.

Israeli Plane Downed

JERUSALEM (Israeli Sector) (UP)—Jordanian anti-aircraft shot down one of two Israeli reconnaissance planes that flew over Jordan territory Wednesday night, the semi-official Mideast news agency reported today.

Hemlock Prejudice Worries B.C. Loggers

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lumbermen are concerned about a widespread prejudice against hemlock which they regard as largely groundless and as a threat to British Columbia's forest industry.

"People simply prefer fir lumber," said a spokesman for the B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association. "It is true hemlock is not as good an all-round wood as fir, but you have to be a little more careful in using it, but in many categories it is a match for fir."

"In coast logging we are now cutting at the north end of the Douglas fir region, and we're into the middle of the hemlock region. Hemlock made up 24.8 per cent of the cut in 1947; 29.1 per cent in 1955. Fir constituted 58.3 per cent of the cut in 1947 and 49 per cent last year."

"By 1959 or 1960 the industry will be cutting as much hemlock as fir on the coast."

Luxury Italian liner Andrea Doria sank after midnight collision off Nantucket Island.

DRAMA BY AIR Ship Radios Told Graphic Sea Tragedy

BOSTON (AP)—Some of the drama surrounding the collision of the Italian liner Andrea Doria and the Swedish liner Stockholm was contained in the following radio messages picked up.

11.22 p.m. (EDT), from the Stockholm: We have collided with another ship. Please. Ship in collision.

12.08 a.m. from the Stockholm: Collided with another vessel in position 40-34 N 69-45 W. But still undetermined our damage.

12.09 a.m. from the Stockholm: Badly damaged. Full bow crushed. Our No. 1 hold filled with water. We have to stay in our position. Help if you can.

12.22 a.m. from Stockholm to Andrea Doria: Lower your lifeboats. We can pick you up.

12.35 a.m. from Andrea Doria: We are too bending (listing). Impossible to put boats over side. Please send lifeboats immediately.

1.05 a.m. from Ile de France to Cape Ann: Vessels near the scene. We shall be area at 1.45 a.m. What can I do to help?

1.10 a.m.: Cape Ann to Ile de France: He says immediate need for 1,000 p.m. and 500 crew.

1.12 a.m.: Cape Ann to Ile de France: We have dispatched two lifeboats.

1.35 a.m.: Stockholm to Andrea Doria: We are launching all available lifeboats.

2.25 a.m. apparently from Stockholm: The Andrea Doria has begun to abandon ship.

3.05 a.m.: Stockholm to Ile de France: Our foreship damaged. Our No. 1 hold flooded. Otherwise ship all right. Will try to proceed to New York at slow speed. If you are going to New York with passengers from Andrea Doria can we keep company?

3.07 a.m.: Ile de France to Stockholm: Will proceed New York full speed when all rescued. Please ask another ship. My schedule imperative.

Lost Italian Liner Built In 1953 for $29 Million

Loss of the Andrea Doria represents the second disaster to claim Atlantic passenger ships in just over three years.

It was Jan. 25, 1953, when the Empress of Canada burned at a Liverpool dock. There was no loss of life.

In comparison of tonnage, Andrea Doria was larger than the ill-fated Empress. Doria's tonnage is listed at 29,083 tons and the Empress of Canada was 20,325.

Here are some other random tonnage which may help to fix Andrea Doria's size in the minds of Victoria travellers:

656 FEET LONG

The Andrea was built in 1953 in Genoa, Italy, owned by "Soc. per Azioni di Nav." according to Lloyds register of shipping. She was 656 feet in length and 90.2 feet beam. She was built with five decks, powered by steam.

Recent sea losses around the world include the British submarine Sidon at Portland, Eng. (13 lives lost), in June, 1953; Swedish tanker Johannishus off Ramsgate June, 1953 (19 lost); Japanese ferry Sinun Maru, Inland Sea, Japan, May, 1955 (35 lost).

Largest loss of life in recent years occurred in Japanese waters September 26, 1954. The Swedish ferry Toyama Maru sank in Tsushima Strait with a loss of life of 1,172.

OLD MARINE FAMILY

Capt. Piero Calamai, skipper of the Andrea Doria, is a member of an old Genoese seafaring family.

He was born in Genoa, Italy, and graduated from the local Nautical Academy.

He began his sea-going career 35 years ago and is one of the youngest officers in command of an Italian Lines vessel.

One of his brothers holds the rank of admiral in the Italian navy.

Calamai served as a junior naval officer in First World War. Following the war he was made third mate on the Ss Moncalieri.

In 1936 he was appointed captain of the 16,000-ton Ss Toscana.

He was later appointed staff captain of the Conte Grande, Augustus and Conte De Savoia.

He was a lieutenant-commander in the Italian Navy during World War II.

Capt. Calamai is married and has two daughters. He lives in Genoa.

Israel Bans Pork

JERUSALEM, Israel Sector (AP)—Parliament Wednesday night adopted a law authorizing local authorities to limit on prohibit pig breeding, trading and the sale of pork. Promulgation of the law fulfills demands of the religious - orthodox parties which claim pork consumption contradicts Jewish religious tradition.

MAJOR SEA DISASTERS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The outstanding peacetime ship disaster in recent history was the sinking of the Titanic in 1912.

The sinking of the Titanic on its maiden voyage after striking an iceberg took a toll of 1,517, many of them prominent in the world's business and social life.

There have been other great marine catastrophes through the years but none that has remained in the minds of the public like the sinking in the north Atlantic of the luxury liner, considered unsinkable, on her voyage from England to the United States.

The same year that the Titanic went down, 1,000 people lost their lives when the Japanese steamship, Kikkamaru, sank off the coast of Japan.

CANADIAN SHIP SANK

Two years later 1,024 were lost when the Canadian Pacific Steamship, Empress of Ireland, sank after colliding with a Danish schooner in the St. Lawrence River. Another 1,900 lives were lost in 1916 when the Chinese steamer, Hain Yu, sank off the China coast.

Six thousand Chinese, including government troops, died when a crowded evacuation ship sank off southern Manchuria in November of 1948.

Dreaded SOS Unleashed Mighty Rescue Operations

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The clock said 11.22 p.m. EDT.

All was quiet at the East Moriches, Long Island, station of the coast guard as the radio operators logged routine messages from ships at sea.

Then came that most dreaded of all calls for help—S O S.

The Andrea Doria, Italian luxury liner, was in trouble some 30 miles south of Nantucket Island off the New England coast. She had collided in the dense fog with the Swedish liner Stockholm and needed medical assistance and life boats.

A few minutes later came a call for help from the Stockholm.

Within a matter of seconds after receiving the SOS from the Andrea Doria, the information had been relayed to the coast guard's headquarters for sea search and rescue operations in downtown Manhattan.

RESCUE OPERATIONS

The coast guard flashed an all-points orders and the organization's vast rescue plan went into operation from New York to Portland, Me.

Nine coast guard boats converged on the scene.

Two huge flying boats were ordered out from Floyd Bennett Field in Brooklyn and Quonset Point, R.I., but their flights later were cancelled because of fog.

An aircraft carrier and a navy destroyer were readied at Boston as were two more destroyers and two fleet tugs at Newport. A later order sent a number of "unsinkable" motor life boats from coast guard stations in the Cape Cod area.

As the tilting Andrea Doria lost use of her radio she switched to an emergency set. The signals were picked up by the Stockholm and relayed as rescue ships closed in on the scene.

MANY BOATS HELP

The Cape Ann, a fruit ship, was the first to arrive—shortly after midnight. She went between the two stricken ships and launched her lifeboats as the Andrea Doria played her spotlights on the water.

Two hours and 15 minutes after the first SOS, an army boat, Pte. William H. Thomas, began lowering her life boats. Next to arrive on the scene were the Robert E. Hopkins and the S.S. Elmwood, when radioed that she had 25 lifeboats.

Shortly after the arrival of the army boat, the luxury liner, Ile de France, notified the coast guard she was nine miles away and was ready to launch her lifeboats.

Through the night, the coast guard headquarters kept in constant touch with the rescue boats as numerous smaller craft joined in taking passengers off the liner.

B.C. Telephone Expands Services In Island Areas

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Completion of a $60,000 project improving and extending telephone service here has been announced by the B.C. Telephone Co.

Aerial cables containing 2,800 miles of wire have been installed providing telephone facilities in new subdivisions and 500 additional phones in the Port Alberni exchange.

A similar project in the Beaver Creek area is nearing completion, company officials report.

LAKE COWICHAN—B.C. Telephone Company announces that work will begin soon here on a $10,000 project to extend outside cable facilities in the exchange area.

When the work has been completed, aerial cable containing more than 390 miles of wire will have been placed.

Canada has a total freshwater area of 268,611 square miles, compared with 3,577,163 square miles of land.

SAILED ON DORIA! LAST YEAR

Luxury Ship's Loss Saddens City Woman

By AB KENT

A feeling akin to mourning was felt by a Victoria woman when she learned today of the death of a great ship—the Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria.

Mrs. Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, 1630 Pinewood, sailed aboard the Doria during a world cruise last year.

"You became attached to these ships after sailing with them for so long," she explained.

"It was a magnificent ship—a perfect ship—absolutely impossible for it to burn, and all those safety devices."

"It was simply beautiful and so spacious. I suppose they're building them just too big these days."

But there was something which disturbed Mrs. Jorre de St. Jorre.

In the first class salon was a life-like figure of the great

The figure was black and encased in armor, presenting a forbidding appearance.

"It was eerie and I said to my husband at the time, 'I don't like that.'"

And perhaps Admiral Doria didn't like it either.

SHOPPING GUIDE

A New Gold Color Coat To Restore or Change Shoes

By PENNY SAVER

I have a pair of gold evening shoes that were a constant source of worry every time I wore them, because once marked permanently marked. I put an end to my worries, though, after using a new gold shoe colorcoat. My gold shoes which I was afraid would become duller and duller, are shiny, and just like new again. After cleaning the shoes well, you brush the fluid onto the leather in even strokes with the applicator. Let it dry for an hour, and if necessary, repeat, but usually one coat will do. The liquid restores or changes the colors and surfaces of smooth leathers. In a box comes a bottle of liquid, an applicator, and an envelope of gold powder which is added to the liquid. Shake well and use. It costs 35 cents, complete.

Little girls' duster coats that can be worn prettily over the frothiest party dress or her favorite skirt and sweater, are available in one of Victoria's children's stores. In navy blue or powder pink, these dusters are made of washable linen. They are styled with full backs fashioned from a gathered yoke. Pockets, large and roomy, are attractively set far around the sides. The sleeves are cuffed, and four large white buttons lead to a playfully pointed collar. In sizes four to six, they are $7.95, and from seven to 14, $9.95.

For the little leaguers in town, there are baseball play-suits that will wash easily and keep their color. In grey, with red or maroon thin stripes all over, these suits have calf-length trousers with elasticized waists and cuffs, and short-sleeved shirts. There's even a peaked cap of matching heavy-duty cotton drill material. They have been sold almost as quickly as they have arrived, but there are size three's at $4.50 a set.

White cotton knit T-shirts with fly-away collars have insets of red and white or navy and white striped cotton at the neckline giving a nautical look to your summer outfit. Wear these shirts with shorts, pedal pushers or skirts for real comfort. They are $2.98 each.

Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to find any of the items mentioned here in the column.

It's Salad Week! Try These Simple Recipes

This year as its theme for Salad Week, July 26 to Aug. 4, the consumer section, Canada department of agriculture has chosen "Simplicity in Salads." It is hoped that everyone will join in the celebration and make it a year-round habit. To help you, here are ideas for simple individual salads—we will print one for every day of Salad Week. Serve these salads for lunch with a sandwich or for dinner as part of the main course. You can serve your own favorite dressings with them, or why not try the variations of French dressing that have been suggested to go with each salad? You will find both the salads and the dressing easy to make, easy to look at and wonderfully easy to eat! Here are your salads for tonight's supper and tomorrow's lunch:

TODAY

Start salad week off with a quick salad that everyone in the family will appreciate. Take big circles of cucumber, mild-flavored onion and tomato and overlap them on pretty side plates. Add large sprigs of parsley and pass French dressing that has been flavored with chopped hard-boiled egg and a touch of oregano.

FRIDAY

A fruit salad will be refreshing, especially in this warm weather. On crisp lettuce arrange an attractive mound of melon balls or cubes and colorful whole fresh berries. Or pile the berries inside a ring of cantaloupe that has been peeled and seeded then placed on a bed of shredded lettuce. Serve with dressing made from French dressing mixed with tart red jelly and a little liquid honey, or French dressing mixed with cottage cheese and honey.

Nothing is as devastating as a full-length view, front, back and side, in those department-store mirrors. But it's helpful, too, because it shows you how to correct figure and hair faults you didn't know you had.

Darlene Baird Becomes Bride Of D. Branson

In a recent summer ceremony in St. Aidan's United Church, Miss Frances Darlene Baird, daughter of Mrs. Anne Baird of Victoria and Mr. Hugh Baird of Haney, became the bride of Donald Bertram Branson, son of Mrs. Jessie Branson, 727 Pine Street, and the late Mr. B. Branson.

Rev. J. Lyn Clertue performed the double-ring ceremony and Mrs. E. Sheldrick, cousin of the bride, was soloist and sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her cousin, Kenneth Beattie, was groomed in a white nylon net over satin bridal gown fashioned with a strapless bodice of French lace. She wore a matching lace jacket with sleeves tapering to lily points at the wrists. The bouffant skirt, posed over hoops, featured a front paneling appliqued with mother of pearl sequins.

Her fingertip veil of illusion net misted from a bonnet trimmed with seed pearls and lily of the valley. Her bouquet was of stephanotis and a large orchid. She wore a single strand of pearls, the groom's gift.

Matron of honor was the bride's twin sister, Mrs. Eileen Dunaway, and bridesmaid was Miss Betty Beattie, cousin of the bride. They were groomed alike in blue and pink waltz-length dresses of nylon net over satin with matching hats of pleated net. They carried bouquets of deep pink and blue carnations. Flower girl, Cheryl Stewart, cousin of the bride, wore a yellow flowered nylon frock with pleated net bonnet. She carried a basket of mauve sweet peas and carnations.

Master David Stewart, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Best man was Wallace Dunaway, and ushers, Glen May and Cliff Compton.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother at 2806 Foul Bay Road, where the wedding party received guests in front of a flower-banked fireplace. The bride's table, covered with a hand-crocheted cloth, was centred with a three-tier cake in a mist of tulle dotted with pink rosebuds. Tall candles in silver holders completed the arrangement. Mason Sheldrick proposed the toast to the bride's future happiness.

Leaving for a motor trip to the interior of B.C. and into the United States, the bride wore a sheath dress of brown, green and beige with a matching beige duster, brown hat and white accessories. Her corsage was an orchid. Mr. and Mrs. Branson have now made their home at 2806 Foul Bay Road.

ORGANIZED PLAY

BOLSTON, Eng. (CP)—Municipal officials are offering school teachers £1 a day if they will organize games on the local playing fields during the summer vacation. It's part of a plan to keep children off the streets. Note to applicants: If it rains, the pay is cut in half.

CO-OPERATIVE NURSERY

Intent on the serious business of molding clay into shapes of favorite animals are four youngsters who attend the Greater Victoria Nursery School in Oak Bay. Pictured with one of the teachers, Mrs. F. E. Wallis, are Kelly Shepherd, Susan Wilks, Tara Currie and Kathy McGee. The school, owned by the parents, is a co-operative arrangement with parents, supervisors and teachers combining efforts to make the school a success. The parents form the executive and do the painting, furnishing and supplying as well as laying down policies for the school. Operated on the co-operative basis for the past six years, the school's program features finger painting, carpentry, clay work, easel painting, various fun projects and excursions. Director, Mrs. D. L. Durrant, is assisted by four teachers on staff. Sessions run from September to June, and during the summer a special class is held through July. In September, a new preprimary class for five-year-olds will be held in the afternoons.

ROYAL GREETING

Facts Given on Hair And Its Arrangement

Here are a few facts about hair and its arrangement.

A woman's hairdo usually reflects the mood and tempo of the day in which she is living. At certain times in history hairdressers have had a field day creating complicated hairdos. At the time of our great grandmothers women boasted that they could sit on their braids. Those were the more leisurely days!

The short bob of 1925 and the three-inch haircut of 1941, the poodle cut and our current styles have much in common. At these times women were rushing about indulging in careers, social and civic activities and sports. This sort of life calls for a simpler and more comfortable style, one which is easier to care for.

Short hair requires a good permanent unless you have naturally curly tresses.

Soaps which are too strong in alkali are hard on the hair. Some of the best authorities believe that long before drab, lifeless hair appears, unhealthy hair conditions have prevailed for a long time. Some even go so far as to believe that such conditions can lead to greying locks. Good health, cleanliness and scalp massage are preventive measures.

Test yourself to see if your hair is oily or dry. If your hair becomes oily a few days after a shampoo, if you have dandruff or thin hair at the temples, perhaps the little oil ducts are too active.

You should shampoo your hair more often than you would if you had a normal or dry scalp.

Massage helps normalize these oil glands and is therefore recommended for an oily scalp as well as for a dry one.

If you have dry hair your scalp probably will feel tense, your hair will feel brittle, you may have dry flakes on the scalp, and the ends of the hair probably will be extremely dry and may split.

If this is the case do not shampoo your hair too often. Hot oil treatments will be helpful. Massage and brushing are first aids. Look also to your vitamin intake.

If your face is round—hair

should be high on top and close at the sides of the face. The opposite is true if your face is long and thin.

If you have a small nose—wear a middle part if it suits the general contour of your face. Do not have a middle part if your nose is large. A middle part also widens the face in appearance. Therefore if you have a broad face use a slanting part. If your chin is pointed and your forehead broad—bring the hair in at the temples.

If you would like to have my leaflet about hairstyling send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 51. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

FINAL BULLETINS

Truce Observers Protected—Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said today Canada has had no reason to believe that United Nations truce observers in Palestine are not being given protection.

He added, however, that protection can never be complete because their job is so hazardous.

Government Intervenes in Car Strike

LONDON (Reuters)—The government intervened tonight in the strike of 21,000 British Motor Corporation workers.

Labor Minister Iain Macleod announced he is inviting union and management representatives to meetings next week with Sir Wilfred Ned, the ministry's chief industrial commissioner.

Mother Charged With Armed Robbery

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—The 29-year-old mother of two small children today was charged with armed robbery in connection with the $5,100 holdup of a Burnaby bank last April.

Charged is Mary Eleanor Lloyd of Coquitlam, whose husband, Lewis Elliot Lloyd, was murdered in Edmonton last June 25.

The dead man also is alleged in the charge to have been a member of a trio which held up the branch of the Bank of Montreal here April 19.

Washington Fire Rages Unchecked

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—An 80-acre forest fire which broke out Wednesday in eastern Lewis County remained out of control today as 60 foresters and loggers battled to contain it, State Forester L. T. Webster reported.

No Decision on Jets to Israel

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today denied that the government has reached a decision on Israel's request for approval of the export of some two dozen Sabre jet fighter planes.

And he replied headily to a Commons opposition suggestion that the government is taking a long time on the request, made in early April.

Egypt to Nationalize Suez Canal

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (Reuters)—President Nasser tonight announced the Egyptian government's decision to nationalize the Suez Canal Company.

Egypt Made Arms Deal With Russ

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP)—President Nasser revealed today Egypt concluded her arms-for-cotton deal last September with the Soviet Union, and not with Czechoslovakia.

Nasser's disclosures, made in a major political address on the anniversary of the Egyptian revolution, linked the Russians officially for the first time with the arms deal which shook the Middle East.

Marilyn's Diary

Shells folks!

There are times when a day in our lives is like several pages out of a Martin and Lewis script. Take Wednesday, for example.

This was one of those days when I didn't glare at the alarm clock when it hollered at me at 7.30. I felt like swimming today and I couldn't get moving fast enough.

By 7.45, I was sitting down to boiled eggs, toast and coffee. I purposely ignored Jack.

Judges when he started chortling over again about the breakfast last week when he served me a medicine ball between two pieces of toast.

Breakfast over, we collected our gear while coach Gus fretted, as usual, about women never being on time.

We went to the boathouse, climbed into our coaching boat and heeled Jack Todd as he led us out to open water.

Gus ordered me over the side but, to be contrary, I complained bitterly about having to jump into that water while they did nothing but sit in the boat and soak up sun.

All of a sudden, someone pushed me and I started my swim a couple of minutes earlier than I had planned.

I suspected, and I still do, that a certain Mr. Todd pushed me but just to be on the safe side, I managed to splash and thoroughly soak everyone in the boat before our three-hour swim was over.

At one time, Jack picked up a piece of kelp, waved it over his head and ordered me to swim faster, just like Simon Legree.

After we had returned to the hotel, Gus announced that only guests in formal dress would be allowed ring-side seats to watch the fight on his TV set. We knew it wasn't being televised but we played along with him.

Gus asked for formal dress so he got it.

Phyllis Griffiths came in a slinky evening gown which she wore backwards, giving her a plunging neckline, set off with rain boots. Dorothy Howarth wore a mink jacket and white gloves. Maria Brenk dressed up as a little girl and I dressed as a little boy with short pants and a red cap.

But Jack Judges won the kewpie doll. Jack came dressed in a negligee.

'I Think He'll Make It' Predicts Times Reporter

Via Radio-Telephone
STRAIT OF JUAN DE FUCA (About three miles beyond Race Rocks) — I think the Strait of Juan de Fuca will be conquered again today.

At 3 p.m. Big Ben Laughren, our swimming chef, had been in the water 9½ hours and is swimming strongly toward Port Angeles.

Up to now Big Ben has had good conditions, though he fought through the edge of the Race Rocks tide rip earlier today.

All going well we hope to be in Port Angeles soon after dinner.

We are just about on the international boundary, which is only six miles from Ediz Hook. All we need now is a "break" from the tides when we near the Port Angeles shore.

The expected flood tide that navigator Stan Page hoped to pick up was an hour late, but this turned out to be an advantage to Ben as it placed him directly in the stream and is pushing him toward Port Angeles.

Ben started at 5.38 a.m. this morning from the breakwater after a lengthy consultation with his swim team whether to make the attempt from Victoria or from Port Angeles.

His course took him east of Constance Bank, and by 10.30 he was clear of the bank and heading directly for the U.S. shore, being swept westward toward Race Rocks shortly after.

The water temperature of 45 degrees seemed not to bother Laughren, and he was alternating between a sidestroke and a crawl, stopping to feed on orange juice and dextrose once an hour.

CPR boat Princess Joan and MV Kalakala both veered

course away from the swimmer during the morning at the request of skipper Maurice Wilkinson of the accompanying launch Meota, and the Kalakala came to a stop nearby.

Later on, the minesweeper HMCS Comox, out on post-refit trials, came in close while the ratings on board gave a cheer for Ben. A U.S. Coast Guard helicopter also paid the swim team a visit.

Ben's wife was also aboard the Meota, while trainer Ove Witt was following the 280-pound swimmer in a rowboat.

This is the 53rd attempt on the strait, including the successful Port Angeles to Victoria swim by Bert Thomas one year ago this month.

PORT EDWARD, B.C. (CP)—Four persons were drowned late Wednesday night when an automobile went off the road on the outskirts of this north coast cannery village and somersaulted into a slough.

A fifth person, Rufus White, 40, of Masset, B.C., was taken to hospital at Prince Rupert, 11 miles north of here, with minor injuries.

RCMP identified the lone woman killed in the crash as Joyce Williams, about 19, of Masset, B.C. Three men killed with her were unnamed until relatives could be notified.

Three youths came along shortly after the accident and attempted to rescue the trapped passengers but they were unable to get into the submerged, upside-down vehicle.

Police took an hour to get the vehicle out of the slough.

It was the third B.C. accident in the last fortnight in which persons were drowned when their cars ran off the road.

1,709 Saved From Lost Liner

NEW YORK (UP)—The French liner Ile De France docked here today with the first survivors from the sinking of the Italian liner Andrea Doria. Nurses, doctors and ambulances met the ship.

NEW YORK (AP)—Two great trans-Atlantic liners, laden with thousands of care-free passengers, collided with a rending crash in fog off Massachusetts Wednesday night. One—the Italian liner Andrea Doria—keeled over and plunged to its doom in the ocean depths at mid-morning today, 10 hours and 47 minutes after she had been struck.

But before the luxurious Andrea Doria vanished beneath the gentle swells of the relatively calm sea, 45 miles south of Nantucket Island, its 1,709 passengers and crew were snatched to safety by other ships in history's greatest rescue operation.

Four died later. An undetermined number were injured. The disastrous smash occurred at 11.20 p.m. EDT Wednesday night some 200 miles northeast of New York when, for some inexplicable reason, the Andrea Doria and the Swedish liner Stockholm crossed paths.

Passenger lists reported 50 Canadians aboard the Stockholm and 12 aboard the Andrea Doria. At least six were British Columbians. Names were still being added to the partial Doria list at noon today.

Two Toronto men, Alderman W. Frank Clifton and importer Eugene John Mayer were known to have been aboard the Andrea Doria.

The Andrea Doria carried modern radar equipment which should have enabled it to spot another ship miles away even in the densest fog.

At 11.22 p.m. came the electrifying radio message from the Stockholm: "We have collided with another ship."

"Badly damaged. Full bow crushed. Our No. 1 hold filled with water... help if you can."

Then, ascertaining the identity of the other vessel, the Stockholm told the Andrea Doria: "Lower your lifeboats. We can pick you up."

Back came this message:

"We too are beginning to list. Impossible to put boats over side. Please send lifeboats immediately."

Other ships in the vicinity, including the majestic French liner Ile de France, began picking up the exchange and raced from all points of the compass with every ounce of power available.

As they came near, the Andrea Doria's veteran skipper, Capt. Piero Calami, ordered all passengers and most of his crew to abandon ship.

Then began the greatest sea rescue of all times—even eclipsing that when the mammoth Titanic, master of the sea, for an account of the rescue operation after the collision of the liners Andrea Doria and the Stockholm. This is his story.

By CAPT. RAOULE DE BEAUDEAN

ABOARD SS. ILE DE FRANCE (Via Radio) (AP) —

Received SOS from Andrea Doria at 11.30 p.m., as we were passing six miles south of Nantucket in a dense fog that had set in a half hour earlier. Could not see the bow from the bridge.

Immediately began trying to contact the ship by radio. We were unable to reach her in two hours.

We asked if she was sinking. Continued on Page 29

Cypriot Boy, Woman Slain In New Riots

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Two Greek Cypriots—a mother and a teenage youth—died today in the latest outbreaks of violence in Cyprus.

The woman was shot down in a Nicosia grocer's shop within hours of the lifting of the curfew in the area, which includes the capital's notorious "murder mile." The latest killing was the second in Nicosia in two days.

In a small village in western Cyprus, three masked men beat an 18-year-old youth to death with sticks.

It's a good thing scientific equipment for rescuing wrecks has kept pace with scientific equipment for avoiding wrecks.

There's a lot more people nearly swimmin' th' Strait these days, but th' "mission completed" list still ain't crowded.

SINKING $300 Million Surplus Foreseen

haste toward the fog-wrapped Andrea Doria.

Down the dangerously leaning Italian vessel's sides on precarious rope ladders and other devices her passengers and crew scrambled.

Lifeboat crews gathered them in, by the dozens, then by the hundreds. One man was plucked out of the water.

The epic scene went on through the early morning mists and haze until five hours later—all were aboard the hovering mercy ships.

Even the damaged Stockholm managed to pick up about 400.

Capt. Calami and a handful of his senior officers and crew members remained aboard their stricken queen of the Italian merchant fleet, calling on all their experience in a final effort to save her.

For a time it appeared there was some hope.

They managed to start pumps and halt the ever-growing angle of list, which had reached about 45 degrees.

But then the great vessel's end began to appear certain.

FORCED TO GIVE UP

Under orders from his company not to remain if the situation became hopeless, the captain and his men at last had to give up.

They too climbed down the side for the last time into waiting lifeboats.

Terse messages from the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Evergreen told the story of the proud liner's last moments in mid-morning:

"Setting rapidly."

"Sinking. Just her funnel showing."

Then:

"SS. Andrea Doria sank in 225 feet of water at 10:09 a.m."

It was a tragic end for the plucky pride of the Italian merchant fleet—a 29,000 ton, 656-foot floating palace put in service just three years ago at a cost of more than $29,000,000.

She was insured for $16,000,000.

HELICOPTER AIDS INJURED

The Andrea Doria was en route to New York from Genoa, Italy, while the smaller, 12,644-ton Stockholm, sailed Wednesday from New York for Europe.

The Stockholm, far less luxurious and catering to travellers desiring more modest accommodations, carried approximately 500 passengers and crew of 200. It is mostly a tourist class ship.

She suffered a fearfully smashed bow, and one of her crew members lost his life. He was Alf Johannson, 30. He died after a helicopter had hoisted him to Nantucket island from the Stockholm.

The Andrea Doria ranked 13th in gross tonnage among the world's passenger vessels.

Five of those injured were flown by helicopter to Nantucket from the Stockholm, including the fatally injured crew member.

Three of the injured also were crew members. The other was a seven-year-old Italian girl. All suffered fractures.

Two other injured persons were reported aboard the United Fruit freighter Cape Ann.

HEAD FOR NEW YORK

Most of the rescue vessels set sail immediately for New York with those rescued.

They were expected to begin arriving late today, led off by the Ile de France with 758 survivors, of who 20 were reported injured.

The other included the Cape Ann, with 175, the military transport ship Pvt. William H. Thomas, with about 165, and a cutter with a number of others.

Capt. Raoul de Beaudan-of the Ile de France, in a radio account of his vessel's mercy mission, said he ordered the liner to head for the scene at 22 knots despite the fog.

The fog, he said, was so heavy that he could not see the bow of his own ship from the bridge.

Of those his lifeboats picked up, he said, many were "half naked, some injured, some mourning their feared dead."

It was, he added, "horrible."

Facts relating to those who lost their lives was clouded.

The U.S. coast guard in Boston said the Andrea Doria's captain reported three dead aboard his vessel. It was not clear whether they died before the rescue operation, or afterward.

In addition, a coast guard cutter reported near noon that it was trying to pick up a body floating in the water near the Stockholm.

GM Business Drops; Firm Said 'Too Big'

NEW YORK (AP)—A report by General Motors Corporation of a $644,000,000 decline in its business for the first half of 1956 was accompanied Wednesday by a statement by the American Institute of Management saying the company is just plain "too big."

The half-year report of the world's largest auto maker said over-all profits were down $157,000,000 compared to the first half of 1955.

The report said, however, that sales and production of GM cars outside the United States "exceeded last year's record levels."

The institute was established Canadian production for the second quarter was 78,372 cars and trucks against 74,142 a year earlier.

WELL MANAGED

The management institute, a non-profit organization, said after a three-months study that GM is an excellently-managed, highly-efficient firm, but added:

"It is too big for the good of American businessmen who must deal with it and too big for the good of the country."

'Death March' McKee Sober, Says Doctor

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—

A U.S. navy doctor testified today that Staff Sgt. Matthew C. McKee was sober one hour after the night march of a recruit platoon in which six were drowned.

Dr. R. J. Acheson, the navy lieutenant on duty after the death march of platoon 71, said he had administered a sobriety test and that McKee "was in the normal limits of sobriety."

GM Business Drops; Firm Said 'Too Big'

NEW YORK (AP)—A report by General Motors Corporation of a $644,000,000 decline in its business for the first half of 1956 was accompanied Wednesday by a statement by the American Institute of Management saying the company is just plain "too big."

The half-year report of the world's largest auto maker said over-all profits were down $157,000,000 compared to the first half of 1955.

The report said, however, that sales and production of GM cars outside the United States "exceeded last year's record levels."

The institute was established Canadian production for the second quarter was 78,372 cars and trucks against 74,142 a year earlier.

WELL MANAGED

The management institute, a non-profit organization, said after a three-months study that GM is an excellently-managed, highly-efficient firm, but added:

"It is too big for the good of American businessmen who must deal with it and too big for the good of the country."

In 1948 to appraise the management of business firms.

New Radar Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP)—The $170,000,000 mid-Canada radar warning line along the 55th parallel will go into operation next Jan. 1, Defence Production Minister, Howe told the Commons today.

Dr. R. J. Acheson, the navy lieutenant on duty after the death march of platoon 71, said he had administered a sobriety test and that McKee "was in the normal limits of sobriety."

McKee is the 31-year-old former drill instructor who led 74 marine recruits into the tide swept waters of Ribbon Creek marsh April 8.

NEW YORK (UP)

The collision between the American Doria and Stockholm occurred in the area off Nantucket lightship which is known to sailors as the "Times Square of the Atlantic." A score of vessels ranging from luxury liners to small freighters answered the SOS's from the two disabled giants. The navy aircraft carrier Tarawa was alerted at Quonset Point, R.I., but was not needed in the rescue operations.

... RESCUE

but received no answer. From this time on she was using her emergency apparatus. It was too far to hear anything direct, but listening to other ships, I knew she was sinking with 1,700 aboard. Despite fog, we rushed at 22 knots speed to the spot.

The Ss. Cape Ann and another ship had already arrived. One had two lifeboats and the other eight, which would not be enough. The Stockholm messenger said she was sending some, although badly damaged herself, and might need lifeboats herself.

I gave an intense mental prayer for a clearing of the fog. In truth the fog did start lifting and there was the Doria, quickly identifiable by her stern list.

Ten of our lifeboats were lowered in five minutes and headed for the ship, 500 yards away. The crew of the boats showed magnificent discipline and courage.

Orders were given from pur ship's loudspeaker.

We picked up about 760 persons, many half naked, some injured, some mourning their dead.

I am now rushing back to New York.

How shall I regain my schedule?—but what's that compared to 760 lives.

Naples Diver

Throws Scare In Red Ship

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—The Russian tourist ship Pobeda left Naples Wednesday after a flurry of excitement and protests over diving activities that recalled the case of missing British frogman Lionel Crabbs.

The Naples harbor master said he had received a formal request from the Soviet embassy in Rome to investigate whether a diver operating near the Pobeda had "caused any damage."

The diver, the harbor master said, was going about his daily work recovering scrap iron from the bottom of the harbor about 150 yards from where the Pobeda was anchored.

The watch officer of the Pobeda saw him and reported to the Soviet embassy, which asked port authorities to make sure no damage was done to the ship by the diver, the harbor master added.
